GOLDWATER-MILLER TICKET SEEN

By WALTER T. RIDDER

SAN FRANCISCO — The 1964 Republican National Convention which will open here Monday will probably do the following things:

1, Nominate Sen. Barry Goldwater as candidate for President of the United States.

2. Nominate Rep. William E. Miller, of New York, as candidate for Vice-President.

3. Write a moderate civil rights platform which will compromise the differences between the party's varying desires, and

4. Adjourn sometime on Thursday.

The world "probably" is used for the simple reason that when some 2,600 or more politically worked up Americans gather in one place almost anything can hap-pen. It is possible, for instances, that the No. 1 spot could go to Gov. Pennsylvania, or to Gov. ton. He may well yield to those pressures on the Nelson A. sible but not probable.

For excitment and argument in the convention, the civil rights platform plank offers the greatest opportunity. Already the so-called "liberal" wing of the Republican Party has demanded a wording which goes far beyond that which the likely nominee, Gold-water, wishes to accept. The current word from Goldwater headquarters is that the senator is willwording which will avoid a head-on party fight. The strategy being followed by the Arizonan is to get the proceedings over with as fast and as smoothly as possible and he will bend as far as he thinks he can on the civil rights plank in order to forestall a floor fight.

However the "liberals" are pressing hard and may insist upon a plank which declares the recently-passed Civil Rights Act constitutional, a position in direct contradiction to what Goldwater has said. Such wording would obviously be unacceptable to the prospective candidate and it is upon this issue that a convention brawl is most likely to take place.

The role of former President General Dwight D. Eisenhower, could give the GOP meeting a dramatic turn. The

$62-Million Package Eyed for Building Bond But a But a

Twenty - six "essential" Los Angeles County building projects, with an estimated cost of $62.9 million, will be presented Tuesday to county supervisors as potential items for a November bond issue.

By far the largest single item is a proposed new 800bed hospital, at a cost of $18.4 million, to replace the county's present Olive View Hospital.

Several projects in this area, including the proposed 51,615,000 addition to the Long Beach County Building, are among the 26 items.

AFTER slashing $12.7 million, principally in capital improvement projects, from the record-breaking 1964-65 hudget in June, supervisors ordered L. S. Hollinger, chief county administrative officer, to prepare a list of "essential" building projects for possible submission to the voters

Nov. 3 in a bond issue. Hollinger said the 26 items he is suggesting are of immediate urgency, and plans are either completed or under way on all but four projects.

All 26, he said, either were deleted from the current budget, or were originally scheduled for financing in the 1965-66 budget.

NO PARK projects are included among the 26, Hollinger said, because any county bond issue measures for such facilities would conflict with the state's $150-million park and recreation bond issue, which is Proposition 1 on the Nov. 3

Hollinger pointed out he was suggesting the 26 items, "from which list, one or more specific items may be selected for a bond issue." He did not give the coun-

Barry, Scranton Give Their Views

WASHINGTON (A)-Sen, Barry Goldwater, who fought the civil rights law, said Saturday that whites or Negroes who take to the streets "in violation of the law dishonor their causes . . . and defame this

But a canvass of the views of Goldwater and Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton showed Goldwater omitting civil rights from his list of probable major campaign issues.

Scranton, on the other hand, named "progress in equal rights" as among the main campaign issues, and called the new law an "essential step forward."

The front-running senator and his foremost challenger for the Republican presidential nomination answered 11 questions on campaign issues submitted by the Associated Press.

Scranton said his chances of winning appear "sur-prisingly excellent," despite "Encouraging." Goldwater's words about violence apparently re-flected his reported concern that the presidential campaign might detonate a racial explosion, possibly set off by extremists among his own supporters. He not only voted against the rights bill, but has called portions of it unconstitutional and said its enforcement would require policestate methods.

Questioned whether the law would lessen street demonstrations, and whether such protests might provoke a white "backlash" in the North, Goldwater said the climate of violence and disorder has resulted from a governmental philosophy which ignores individual responsibilities and capaci-

PLATFORM HALF DONE Democrat Policy Blasted by GOP

SAN FRANCISCO (A)-A half-completed Republican platform "indicted" the Democratic administration Saturday for policies which it charged will lead to "a potential parity of power with communism" instead of clear mililary superiority for America.

It said that the Johnson administration is in the hands of "federal extremists," reckless in managing public funds and restraining individual freedom and creative

The document on which Republicans will seek to unseat President Johnson in November accused his administration of "weakness before communism," of opening a "hol line first with a sworn enemy rather than with a proven friend," and of having fostered discord and distrust in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization

AT HOME, THE REPUBLICAN document charged, the administration has failed to reduce unemployment to and has "exploited interracial tensions by extravagant campaign promises, without fulfilment.'

The Republican platform writers, torn among themselves over the writing of a civil rights plank, accused the Democrats of "playing on the just aspirations of the minority groups, encouraging disorderly and lawless elements, and ineffectually administering the laws."

The Republicans asked the American voters this question:

"For these four years the leaders of the Democratic Party have been entrusted with the nation's executive power and overwhelmingly in control of the Congress. The question must be asked: have these leaders successfully advanced the purposes of this mightiest nation mankind has known?

"TRAGICALLY, IN EACH instance, the answer must

"Let the Democratic Party stand accused."

The 100-member GOP platform committee, still snarled in dispute between the powerful forces of Sen. Barry Goldwater and the outgunned backers of Gov. William W. Scranton, went on battling behind closed doors over key platform issues including "extremism"

Lion Kills Trainer, 70, as Audience Watches

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (P)-Thirty men, women and children watched in horror Saturday night as a full-grown male lion at-tacked and killed its 70year-old trainer at a children's amusement park near here. Capt. Einest Engerer, a native of Germany, had just started the evening performance when the lion attacked. He had placed the lion on a pedestal and had snapped his whip as a signal for two female lions to enter the cage.

As he snapped the whip, Engerer stepped back, tripped and fell to the floor Women's News WI-8 (Continued Page A-6, Col. 1) of the cage,

The lion jumped from the pedestal and grabbed the trainer around the neck, piercing his jugular vein, An assistant tried to force the lion away from Engerer's body with an electric prod but was unsuccessful. The lion mauled Engerer's body for more than 20 minutes before Forsyth County sheriff's deputies and Winston-Salem police killed it with four blasts from a shotgun and four bursts from a submachine

STUDENT HELD AFTER BARRY SIGN HITS IKE

AMARILLO, Tex. (UPI) -A West Texas State University student was charged with assault Saturday for allegedly hitting former President Dwight D. Eisenhower with a "Goldwater for President" sign when Eisenhower's special train stopped.

Melvin Phillip Floyd, 23, of Spearman, Tex., denied he threw the sign at Eisenhower, He said he tossed it at the train but thought Eisenhower had already gotten aboard.

Another West Texas State student was released. The former President doubled up as the sign struck him in the side, but he was not hurt. He had been waving to the crowd as the train pulled away.

After he was hit, he kept waving "V for victory" with his fingers. Floyd was jailed and

Snub of Ike in Platform Stirs Furor

SAN FRANCISCO (A)-President Dwight D. Eisenhower's name from the first installment of the Republican platform Saturday created such a furor that the platform writers Saturday night were putting it into every available spot in the second installment.

Supporters of Gov. William W. Scranton charged that the original omission was deliberate and some accused the conservative backers of Sen. Barry Goldwater of attempting a deliberate snub of the former President.

BUT SATURDAY night, Rep. Charles Goodell of New York, assistant to the chairman of the platform committee, told reporters midway of the final, closed dratting session:

"We have been referring to President Eisenhower throughout.

"The changes were made unanimously," he added.

At one point the platform reference to the "open-skies policy of 1955" was changed by amendment to the "open-skies policy of President Eisenhower," Goodell said,

Scranton Keeps on Fighting

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

SAN FRANCISCO (4) Rank-and-file Republican convention delegates swarmed into town Satur-day and into caucuses that should all but wrap up and deliver the party presidential nomination to Barry Goldwater.

Unless there's another San Francisco earthquake along political lines next week, the Arizona senator is going to become the nominee on the first ballot Wednesday, The convention opens Monday.

UNDAUNTED by Goldvater's enormous lead in delegate strength, Gov. William Scranton of Pennsylvania fought tirelessly, if futilely, on.

Evidently the senator will be running on a platform built to Goldwater specifications. The 100 redeyed members of the platform committee toiled far into Friday night and again Saturday.

The first half of the platform won't stir up much trouble in the Republican legions, but the second half may lead to a fight on the convention floor over civil rights and other bones of contention between Goldwater and Scranton forces,

The convention votes on the platform Tuesday. Scranton was counting

GAINS THREE

SAN FRANCISCO (A) -Sen. Barry Goldwater's headquarters said Saturday night that three Pennsylvania delegates previously pledged to Gov. William W. Scranton have switched to Goldwater in the race for the Republican presidential nomination.

Denison Kitchel, director of the Goldwater for President Committee, said the switch brings to five the number of Pennsylvania delegates publicly com-mitted to Goldwater.

If Senator Goldwater is nominated the American people will have to adjust themselves to a new kind of candidate-and if elected-President. It will mean a candidate who speaks out on issues without hedging or playing up to different groups with different attitudes. When Goldwater told a reporter that no Republican could defeat Johnson "as of now" he not only gave an honest opinion, but spoke the real opinion of a large majority of Republicans. But his "as of now" was the key part of his statement. It would have been much easier to say-"of course we can defeat him." But we doubt any realistic individual really believes "of course" would have been an honest statement.

Before the California primary election there were even greater doubts. But that election showed there was a widespread surge of conservative reaction in this country. It showed up in Democratic elections in Wisconsin, Indiana and Maryland, where more than a third of the Democrats voted against Johnson in these primary elections. No one can say how these votes will be cast in November. But there are strong indications that the forthright attitude of Goldwater is consolidating strength that can win against Johnson. It is equally evident that a so-called moderate or appease- Pro-Scranton Letters ment attitude would give few new votes for a Republican candidate.

The revelation of how Goldwater's statements have been distorted and taken out of context is changing the attitude of many people. He gave an honest opinion when he said he doubted any Republican could defeat Johnson "as of now." But he has given many reasons why it can be done 41/2 months from now after a strong candidate brings out the arguments against the Johnson administration and general trend of the Democratic party. In my opinion there is a very good chance of Goldwater winning in November, But this will occur only if he continues his honest approach and the American people adjust themselves to appreciate honest statements and not political ex-

He has voted his convictions on the constitutionality of the Civil Rights Bill. He voted against the test ban treaty because Russia had only recently broken a similar agreement-and Goldwater demanded safeguards. On foreign aid he says technical assistance and military aid are valuable—but he questions the value of our spending billions of dollars in over 100 foreign countries where 15 years and our $100 billion have brought us few friends-or brought freedom to those we have tried to help. He has voted for every Social Security bill as a senator.

On the farm program he has said-farm production, like any other production, is best controlled by the natural operation of the free market—there is a positive evil in programs that reward people for not producing. The only way to persuade farmers to enter other fields of endeavor is to stop paying inefficient farmers for produce that cannot be sold at free market prices.

It has been a long time since the American people have had such positive statements on vital issues. The frantic efforts to stop his nomination by distortions of his position have consolidated support for his views among conservative Democrats as well as Republicans. He gives the people a choice between paternalism by government—continued, unbalanced budgets -and an end of wasteful foreign aid and similar domestic programs. There is a doubt as to whether he could be elected. But he gives the people a definite choice that no other leading GOP aspirant gives. But there is a very good chance that people of both parties will welcome such a change. That is why "as of now" does not apply to next November .- L.A.C.

In the latter role he could—if he so wishes. It is generally conceded that he most probably will not take any dramatic part in the proceedings, despite heavy pressure from certain quarters for him to come against Goldwater and for Scranton. It is now so late in the game that it is questionable whether the General could stop Goldwater even if he so wanted, but an Eisenhower stand on the candidates would undoubtedly serve to generate considerable excitement. However, the General's leanings are towards a quiet, uncontroversial convention and in view of his aloofness

It is now possible for many who are hard of hearing to regain all or part of their hearing loss.

By HARRY SHARPE

Scn, Barry Goldwater all but collared the Republican presidential nomination last week after a bruising party fight that could leave permanent scars.

The Arizonan was so supremely confident of first ballot nomination by the San Francisco GOP convention this week that he predicted a Republican sweep next November-from court house to White House.

PARTY chieftains conceded that only a miracle could block his convention triumph. Still trying desperately to bring that about, a wave of Goldwater popularity, were the senator's chief rival, Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, and Henry Cabot Lodge. The latter quit as ambassador to South

Rockefeller also threw his support to Scranton and together the three tried, ical philosophy, the right wing John Birch Society, and other extremist groups.

Goldwater sought to heal the breach with a declaration that "we are going to come out of the convention united and fightingnot with each other, but with the Johnson administration. . .'

At the same time he proclaimed that he would withdraw from the White House race if the platform adopted were unacceptable to him. He said the platform should not be used "as a factional wedge or a substitute for judicial or legislative decision."

FORMER President Dwight D. Eisenhower disagreed. In Chicago as he left for San Francisco, the general-still declaring his neutrality vis a vis Goldwater and Scranton --- said the platform should recognize the great issues of the times, state the principles and say how they should be applied. But Eisenhower wouldn't say whether it should brand constitutional the new civil rights law which Goldwater voted

Accompanying lke was his brother, Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, who will place Scranton in nomination. Also typifying the party schism was Sen. Kenneth B. Keating's position, An aide to the New York Republican said the senator would not campaign for Goldwater if he is nominated and would run for re-election "on his own record," Goldwater warned that this could "be a tactical mistake" which could cost Keating his Senate seat.

LODGE called Goldwater "trigger happy" in relation to the East-West cold war. Scranton demanded that the platform underwrite the civil rights law and thus rebuff Goldwater.

Rockefeller appealed to Eisenhower and former Vice President Richard M. Nixon to break their silence and form a coalition to bolster Scranton's sagging hopes. Also joining the stop - Goldwater phalanx was Michigan Gov. George Ronney who pleaded for a platform denouncing all extremists.

Goldwater was reported reliably to have selected GOP National Chairman William E. Miller as his first choice for the vice presidential nomination. He regards the 50-year-old New York congressman as 'a real gut fighter" who thinks like he does and would wage an effective campaign.

In deference to the Republicans, the Democrats, who plan to nominate Johnson at their own wing ding in Atlantic City next month, played dead, although the President challenged a Goldwater pronouncement that his administration is "fiscally irresponsible."

JOHNSON called a press conference at which he presented statistics backed by the American Bankers Association, Henry Ford, Jr., and economists painting a rosy business and fiscal picture. The President said he hones to give the country "more good news" on the economy this week.

On the turbulent racial rights front, the President appealed for non-punitive enforcement of the rights law "as a landmark of buman justice." Atty. Gen, Rohert F. Kennedy reported that initial compliance had been "very, very good" though FBI director J. Edgar Hoover went to Jackson, Miss., to open a new

This pert miss of many moods is 18-year-old Inger Sande, Norway's entrant in the International Beauty Congress at Long Beach Aug. 5-15. Inger feels at home along the ocean for she hails from the picturesque port of Bergen, where she is a modeller's assistant. A modeller in Norway is not someone who turns pretty girls into models, as you might erroneously guess after looking at Inger. It's a pattern-designer, and talented young Inger is studying hard to become a designer of ladies' clothes. "That is why I want to win the contest," she says with disarming candor, "to have some money to finish my educa-tion." A 5-foot-7, 115-pound green-eyed blonde, the beauteous descendant of the Vikings measures in at 34-22-361/2. Her favorite food is Chateaubriand, her favorite sport—natch—sailing. She loves animals, goes for John Gavin, Peter Sellers, James Stewart, Doris Day and Danny Kaye, prefers Chopin to the Beatles. Her kind of man? "One who loves dogs, children and, of course, me."

Sound of Laughter His Big Reward, Clown Says

By MARY NETH

Paul Alford doesn't mind being called a "real clown." That's what he is.

He's got out-sized flappy shoes, a flashy, bold plaid suit a spinning polka-dot tie, plus a bag of funny tricks and bevy of young admirers to prove it.

Even when he isn't dressed the part - he's dreaming up new routines -keeping his eye out for unique props.

Why be a clown? "Why asks Paul, He wonders that everyone doesn't want to be one. A finish carpenter by trade, he spends off hours entertaining children in hospitals or at Shriner events. Tonight and Tuesday evening he will put on an hour's performance at the Lafay-ette Hotel for kids whose moms and dads are attending a convention there.

"I don't want to sound Pollyanish," avers this handsome 6-footer. "But, making people laugh, especially kids, sure adds up to a real good feeling."

And, Mr. Paul, as he bills himself, does do that. He has a magnetic attraction, a peculiar affinity for "the

Although he's a bachelor himself, he gets plenty of at-home help from small relatives. Forty neices and nephews proudly call him Unk and act as critics for his new routines.

Since then he has put on many a show and has fullfilled one important childhood ambition, making a smash debut as a circus clown. "There always have been clowns," says Alford, who has made quite a study of the historic men of mirth. "They even had them back in China around 1818 BC.

"Other than the Augustes, most popular these days, are the carpet clowns (ones who go right into the audience) and white clowns (terribly elegant beruffled fellows who only do fellows solos)."

No matter, what type he calls himself, Alford really calls forth the kids like a regular Pied Piper. On stage, alone or with partner Smitty, he's always on the move (a "still clown is no clown") eliciting squeals of laughter and shricks of debungles and often ad libs his way out of one funny situation into another.

"I'm on the edge of collapse when I finish, "he admits with a smile." But I love it. Every show's a challenge — and I like a challenge.

"Most of all I like to hear laughter. And, a clown always does.'

How affective is the Executive Search route for the man currently earning $10,000 to $50,000 per year? Many individuals interested in securing increased responsibilities, growth potential and higher pay will rely solely upon these firms in their search for a better job. They will confidently send in their resumes, make a few phone calls and sit back and wait. One, two or three months will go by and nothing happens. They will assume the market to be tight, continue on in their present position and try again at a later date. Years will go by with no significant progress.

Other individuals, realizing that very little comes to the man who "sits and waits" will investigate our unique services and progress accordingly. ty board a very optimistic picture of the outcome of any bond issue, however.

Since 1940, Hollinger reported, the county has submitted 30 bond issue measures. Of these, 13 have carried and 17 have failed. Three of those which carried the two flood control bond issues of 1952 and 1958 and the Marina del Rey issue, re quired only a majority vote

HOSPITAL medical facili ties have been most successful, with four out of seven bond projects approved, Hollinger said. Juvenile facilities were approved on three bond issues, but defeated on three.

Of the 10 band issues approved, five were "repeat" items, covering projects which previously had been turned down.

Final selection of which items, if any, will go on a Nov. 3 bend issue should be made by supervisors by Aug. 18, Hollinger said. This will give the county cousel and registrar of voters time to do the necessary paper work.

OTHER local-area projects among the 36 listed by Hollinger are:

Powerhouse expansion Rancho Los Amigos Hospital Downey, $1,136,000.

San Pedro County Courts Building, $1,299,000.

Replacement for Norwalk sheriff's station, $818,000.

General development, South Coast Botanic Garden, Rolling Hills Estates, $847,400.

All of the projects on Hollinger's list involve expenditure of $500,000 or more. Most of them top $1 million. Two other major projects in clude $6.5 million for replac-ing existing buildings at Mac-Laren Hall juvenile facility and enlarging it from 148 to 400-person capacity, and $2 million to expand Los Pa-drinos Juvenile Hall for girls from 310 to 400 persons.

HOLLINGER also had been asked to report on possible construction of buildings by private interests, which then would lease the facilities to the county with the latter having option to purchase.

Hollinger said this method is "much more costly" than a bond issue, and commented that the supervisors "have properly reserved" the lease purchase method only for es-sential projects for which other methods are not feasi

Teen-Agers Take Over U.S.

There is little doubt as to derstand why these same peo-Laughing it up at what teen agers have created to lul their parents into a state of premature senility. Evidence?

"How do you shoot a green elephant?"

"With a green elephant

"And how do you shoot a yellow elephant?"

"Hold his nose until he turns green, then shoot him with a green elephant gun."

IT ALL started with the attack on reason.

Some deep thinkers not so long ago decided that what is really wrong with western civilization is that it puts all its eggs in the basket of reason, and the thing that we have to recognize is that reason is the enemy.

This was right up the Teenager's alley. Any parent who has tried to counter the instincts of her young with the sweet saneness of reason will immediately recognize the impregnable wall that goes up just before the offspring goes off numbling "nobody understands me." The wall makes the Iron Curtain appear as mere gossamer.

THE TEEN-AGE revolution is here and three-quarters of the adult population is already absorbed into the new order. Teen-agers control what goes into films, the radio television and there is a suspicion that the daily newspapers are really written for them.

What makes the whole thing so unbelievable is that adults are paying for all this by lavishing allowances or the young unheard of when you and I were young Maggie.

IT'S NOT that this situa tion just grew. There is sufficient evidence around to in-dicate that it could be called a plot. Teen-agers are clever all right. They know just what they're doing,

Any parent will tell you the kids just don't talk to them any more. They have their own little cells where they plot their revolution.

They write in their secret diaries and barricade them selves behind doors on which they brazenty hang signs: "Parents: Keep Out!"

IT IS ONLY by study of their publications that it is possible to get some idea of the gigantic growth of the "movement." You have to subscribe to the junior and senior high school news papers, And even then you have to read between the "Teen-age years," writes John F. Tholen in a recent issue of the Poly High Life, student publication, "are a trying time of life, beside being an experimental one. . . The teen-age set is often criticized by adults as being wild and irresponsible. Every teen-ager owes it to himself and his friends to always try to make the teen-age group seem mature and responsible in the eyes of his teachers, parents and other adults."

There is some stuff in there about studying and making good grades, but that is obviously just window dressing,

More evidence of their in-tent to take over the world necessary? Okay. Here it is. We have studied the junior and senior high school publi-cations put out in the Long Beach Unified School District throughout the year and nearly every issue has some fea-ture devoted to the Beattles. This campaign has been going on for a long time now-ar intelligent, underground movement. It is aimed at only one thing-taking over the country. Last week they came out in the open. A movement to stampede both Republican and Democratic conventions into nominating Ringo for President was reported nationwide. RITA PEDERSEN, writing in the Lakewood High paper, is aware of the struggle and sees it as a long range war.

MALGOLM ET THERE'S a good lady in town who is awfully upset over seeing headlines which identify the GOP frontrunner as "Barry." From her complaints to this desk, I gather that she's not merely disturbed by what might be considered overfamiliarity and informality in the headline use of the first name only of a big man—she just doesn't think Barry Goldwater ought to have that first name, a fine Irish mani-

When I told her I couldn't see what any of us could do about a decision made by the candidate's parents over 50 years ago, she said she was disappointed in me. There is, she said, more than one way to skin a cat, and she in-dicated she would take the matter up with Goldwater's political opponents.

I asked her to let me know how she fared. Now there'd be a campaign issue for you!

WHEN I said something of the kind once before, a Navy officer friend of mine challenged the comment, but it still appears to me that the proportion both as to population ratio and the number of service men drivers as compared to others.

These guys are killing themselves off awfully fast. Two more sailors were injured here Friday night, Service identification shows up with tragic frequency in traffie acidents reports. Sometimes the news indicate the highway between here and San Diego must be strewn with Marine accident vic-

What's the explanation? Do these men, whose regular work calls for limited movement and restraint, simply go wild when on liberty and they get behind the wheel of

When it was suggested here some time ago that driving safety campaigns be staged among the service men, I was told bluntly it was already being done. If that's so, it obviously needs to be made more effective. The motor accident destruction among these fine young has a substantial investment, and who are highly valued by friends and family as well as country, is simply

MAYBE you'll happily never encounter one, but this being the time of year when people get out on the open country, I think maybe I should say something about the pajaroello tick,

We don't have many dangerous ticks in Southern California, but the pajaroello is here in considerable numhers and seems to be increasing and going farther afield, The pajaroello is mottled brownish gray and is about a quarter of an inch long until he gets to sucking blood. Then he swells up big.

This tick is not actually big wound poisanous, but his wound can be serious if the victim is allergic to the creature's salivary fluid.

The thing to do if hitten by a pajaroello is to suck out the fluid by mouth application and to apply an antisep-tic and sterile dressing as soon as possible. There's no need, I'm sure, to advise swallowing the fluid once it has been sucked into the

AND speaking of getting out into the open, those who do it here about are more likely to encounter other people than ticks.

A reader just ralled to ask me, as a reputed mountain man (I love the description, accurate or not), where to go on a week's camping trip nearby that will provide solitude and surcease from constant contact with the human horde.

I couldn't give much help. Our region does have some lovely mountains, but they're close to a lot of valley houses, and in good weather they're pretty jammed with people. One can't hope for much solitude in any section or facility that is open to the public.

Laguna Pageant in 29th Season

The 29th annual Pageant of the Masters and Festival of Arts opened Saturday at Laguna Beach's Irvine Bowl and will run through Aug. 16. At final curtain, an estimated 250,000 people will have seen and thrilled to living pictures created from well-known masterpieces. Each night in the romantic open-air amphitheatre nestled in the hills at the north of Laguna Canyon, the 8:30 o'clock program will repeat the same 25 masterpieces always followed by the reverent portrayal of "The Last Supper." For most visitors the pageant is a moving experience, richly refined from the days when the festival was new and primarily intended as a site for artists to sell their works. Eight hundred townspeople contribute their time and talent to an endeavor matched nowhere. The Festival grounds open daily at noon, close at midnight.

TRIAL RUNS SHOW

Long Beach taxicab passengers are getting slightly more than the mileage they pay for, according to a series of spot checks supervised by the City Bureau of Fran-

Twenty trial runs by 10 cabs chosen at random from downtown stands showed that the meters are allowing an average of 70 feet more than the 1.4-mile minimum specified by city rates for a 90-cent fare. Chief Engineer Henry E. Jordan, who reported the results, had ordered the tests in view of charges that Los Angeles Yellow Cab meters are shortchanging customers.

Cabs tested here are owned by the Diamond and Yellow Cab Cos., which have no connection with the Los Angeles firm. The local companies operate all cabs with city-wide Long Beach permits.

JORDAN AND Officer Jerry Harris of the police traf-fic division made the test runs over a measured course along Pacific Avenue northward from Third Street.

The 90-cent fare and 1.4 mile course represented 50 cents for the initial ride of .4-mile, plus 10 cents for each additional quarter mile. The average cab traveled 70 feet beyond the end of the course before the meter changed for another 10-cent charge, Jordan said.

Twelve of the 20 runs exceeded the course length by an average of 145 feet, while eight runs were short by an average of 40 feet. Jordan said the variation was "not unreasonable" in view of constantly changing traffic

Barry Victory in California Looms Big in Convention

EVEN WHEN RESULTS seem obvious long in advance, national political conventions always open in an aura of excitement and suspense. The dimensions of the prize and the possibility of the unexpected are capable of holding the interest of the most cynical observer. So it is with the 1964 GOP convention in San Francisco.

LOGIC TELLS US that Sen, Barry Goldwater of Arizona is "in." There is always the possibility, however, that the firmness of the commitment of Goldwater delegates has been misjudged or that someone -Dwight Eisenhower's brother Milton, for examplemight suddenly seize the imagination of the convention. Such things can happen.

But if the performance goes according to script, Goldwater will get the nomination, very likely on the first ballot. If he does get it, the achievement will be another testimony to the political power and prestige of California.

For it was here that Goldwater scored the primary election victory which put the seal of success upon his candidacy. Had he lost the contest in California, all hope of a convention victory would have died instantly. Winning in California was crucial; he did it; and apparently he has been able to build a successful nomination bid upon that structure. California, the key state, turned Goldwater into the key man.

IT IS POSSIBLE to sympathize with the frustrating and apparently futile battle conducted by Gov. William Scranton, Henry Cabot Lodge, and the other "moderates," but certainly the saddest figure on the eve of the convention is Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York.

It was Rockefeller who put his political reputation on the line in the primaries and who fought to the showdown in California while the other moderates whispered their encouragement from the sidelines. Certainly he would seem the logical person for the convention to turn toward should Goldwater somehow lose out—but it probably won't work that way. Just as California gave Goldwater an essential boost, it delivered the coup de grace to Rocky.

The convention contest pits a man who defeated the champion of the moderates against a couple of the fellows who sat in ringside seats. Naturally, the betting has to be strong for Goldwater.

Extension Needed

FRATERNITIES AND SORORITIES whose members attend California State College at Long Beach are asking for an extension of permission to occupy housing in the city's R-4 zones while they attempt to work out a program which will put them in the ARTHUR HOPPE campus area.

We feel they should be given that consideration with a time limit set in the authorizing ordinance. Once that is done, the city should lend its good offices and hest efforts to aid the fraternal building corporations in reaching a satisfactory solution. In other cities where new colleges have been developed, municipal authorities moved early to prevent the development of such problems as have occurred here. Long Beach should recognize this responsibility as a college

That there is justification for the complaints of many property holders in fraternity neighborhoods is agreed, even by fraternity spokesmen. The extended permission program should lay down restrictions to avoid friction between the houses and their neighbors, and the fraternities should undertake rigid self-policing Strike for Peace, which wants more peace; as a matter of honor in response to tolerant and understanding action by the City Council.

The most promising solution is mittee decides, it's going to make somebody to provide sites for fraternity housing on still-unoc- mad. Suppose it adopts a firm plank on a hot cupied land deeded to the State by the City for the issue and comes out strong for better fishcollege. The proposal that a portion be deeded back to the city to be used for fraternity housing should be immediately explored.

Barry's Past and Future Based on 'Creative Dissent'

I, P-T Political Editor

KEYSTONES which may serve Sen. Barry Goldwater through platform, through the Republican nomination and through his campaign for the United States Presidency were little noted and scarcely remembered from his Friday presentation before the GOP Platform

They are, in his own words, "creative dissent" and "unity of principle."

Goldwater has sold his partisans for years of the "creative dissent" theme They rejoiced again Friday when he paraphrased it like this: "I don't believe any senator should just go along wagging his tail after his leader."

His "unity of principle" pitch was a wistful return to his often-stated preference for a Republican statemen of principles rather than a lengthy platform of specifics which he once characterized as "misinformation and lies."

These keystones are the reasons for the Senator's success. They are the reasons he has 86 locked in Califormia delegates for him, 86 alternates just as strongly committed-and he could have had thousands more out of California.

THE TURN TO GOLDWATER is, in fact, a turn to dissent. And so it seems there could be no more futile exercise in San Francisco than the preachment against Goldwater's minority position of dissent, the tactic being used by his would-be stoppers.

Delegates, and especially the two-thirds block of Harry's people on the Platform committee, seems to be "Of course we know he voted against cloture, against the Civil Rights bill, against foreign aid and against other items in which he represented a minority among Republicans. But, you see, that's precisely why we want

Thus, a Scranton argument that Barry is a dissenter yields from Barry's people only a "Hear, hear!" and nothing at all in dismay or surprise.

THE SENATOR'S TASK as a nominee, then, is not to dispute his dissension, but to demonstrate that it truly is creative. This task is monumental. It is difficult in one instance because of the extremists who endorse his positions for reasons less worthy than Goldwater's. For example, Goldwater claims defense of the American Condent or party can win. But feated due to the nationwide stitution as a reason for his no vote on the Civil Rights bill. He is lauded by individuals and groups whose motive is patently racial.

His task is monumental because he must sell the nation's Republican voters that their representatives in Congress have voted wrong on many of the major issues of our life. Then he must sell the same conviction to vast numbers of Independents and Democrats.

IMPOSSIBLE? Perhaps not. Because the Senator is not about to impute "destructive compliance" to his congressional colleagues while he claims "creative dissent" for himself. He surely will, instead, attempt to stake out a new mainstream in America, and to show Americans at the same time that honorable men in Congress have taken wrong turns from the mainstream with good but misguided motives-a faulty reading of the will of their constituents.

Goldwater's rudder in this white-water cruise is "unity prosperity issue, but lost in of principle." That device, in his view, can excuse his 1932 against Franklin D. colleagues for their faulty readings of national direction Roosevelt because of the and goals of the past 30 years.

My prediction is that, if elected, he will work hard towards becoming an esteemed legislator; that he will be modest and courteous to his senior colleagues; and that, in time, he will be admitted to the inner club of the Senate.

has always been his brother Milton, Ike has always referred to Milton as "the brains in the family," has followed his advice on agriculture, on Latin America, and on almost every subject where Milton has offered it.

AFTER GENERAL Eisenhower got into the White House, his brother Milton went to socialist-torn Bolivia, which had just seized all foreign property, and recommended that the United States not only work with but support financially a government just as revolutionary at the time as that of Fidel Castro. This policy was followed.

Milton was even national chairman of the U.S. Committee for UNESCO, the educational branch of the United Nations which the DAR, the Goldwaterites, and the right wing consider treasonous. In fact, there is

Hot 'n' Happy Dodgers Win

HOUSTON - The Dodgers didn't take batting practice before Saturday's game and wisely so. They saved their hitting for the game and managed to hang on for an 11-9 win over the Colt .45s.

The game was not played according to Abner Doubleday's design, much less according to Hoyle. The 17,107 who attended must have thought they were watching the sack race at a fat man's picnic.

'Good Deal Wins Derby

iBy HANK HOLLINGWORTH mile and one-quarter later had bagged the classic three but the two pretenders

Real Good Deal stole the $116.100 Hollywood Park Derby Saturday, but the 51,567 witnesses and a million TV viewers will attest that the real heroes were jockeys Johnny Langden and Ralph Neves.

In winning more Holly-wood Derbies than any other pilet, 57-year old Longden chartered a magnificent course on Real Good Deal —the only one he knows: Get out in front and stay Real Good Deal (a narrow 2-1 (avorite) popped from the starting gate like a champagne cork and one was a strong length and one-half leader over his stomest competitor, second-favored Close By.

Longden had a lot of horse, but few will disagree that the old man from England really won Saturday's 24th Derby.

Neves, 48, a mere child by Longden's gauge, was feted the entire afternoon as a result of his recent retirement announcement. Eight of the day's nine races were named after the Portuguese Pepperpot . . and the other one, the Derby, might just as well have been called a Neves

special, too, since Ralph times himself. After presenting the trophy to Read Good Deal's owners, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. (Pie Man) Johnston, Neves was awarded two trophies, then carried from the winners' circle on the shoulders of other jockeys. No football coach ever spent a more satisfying afternoon.

The rich chase began on a surprising note. Only Real Good Deal and Close By were supposed to battle for the early lead, but, behold, Royal Eiffel and Count Charles sped right from the gate with the two main contestants. The strategy probably was correct,

From that point, the chase was strictly of the two-horse variety.

Real Good Deal had a solid length and one-half margin throughout the entire backstretch, although Close By seemed under a snug hold by Bill Shoemaker and capable of making a move at any second.

The Angels have angrily asked for a hearing and Vic Power is considering a defamation of character suit in the wake of a 10-day suspension and $250 fine meted the Cherub infielder Saturday by American League president Joe Cronin

The president reached his decision entirely on the report of umpire Jim Honochick, who ejected Power and manager Bill Rigney from Friday night's first game with Chicago and then ac-cused Power of "spitting in my face."

"He's (Honochick) a liar," charged general manager Fred Haney. "He said he was going to punch Power in the nose and so he's just looking to justify that cationing without pay.

"I want a hearing," demanded Haney after receiving notification of the suspension, "Ten days is a joke and I've placed a call to Cronin so that we can air our side." CRONIN, however, proved as elusive as the Boston strangler Saturday as calls to his Massachusetts home and office were not answered or returned. "That doesn't surprise me," said Jimmy Piersall, who drew a three-day suspension last season for a violent runin with Bill Kinnamon in Boston. "I tried to reach Cronin and explain my side," revealed Piersall, "but for some reason he was always out of the office when I "How can anyone act as both judge and jury? The only reason they don't make the umpires report publicly is because they lie. This is the worst I've "I no spit," said the stunned Power. "How can they make such a de-cision without asking my side?" won-

Angels Stir Mr. Rigney

The Angels are a cinch bet not to win the American League pennant, but boss Bill Rigney thinks they'd have a real chance if (1) the majors enjoyed the luxury of a split-season and (2) he had his present personnel last April.

"Boy, if the majors started everybody from scratch after the All-Star Game, like we used to do in the old Coast League, we'd have a good chance to meet Baltimore in the playoffs," enthused Rig when the Angels resumed action Thursday night.

"On the other hand, if I had the guys I've got now the whole season, maybe we'd be up there with Baltimore, Chicago and the Yankees.

Rig has been known to become excited quickly When a newcomer bats .333 his first week with the Angels, but his present enthusiasm is something different. The man actually drools when he tackles the nightly problem of making out a lineup.

"I feel like a kid with some candy and ice cream,"

rejoiced Billy. "Here I can take three or four scorecards, make 'em out and tear up every one of them. I've got so many guys I'm worried about the good ones I can't get in the lineup every night."

Rigney's words weren't idle ones. With his "new" Angel corps he can maneuver like a chess player.

HANK

His solid rightside attack also includes Jim Fregosi, Vic Power, Felix Torres and Joe Adcock.

EXCLUDING THE PITCHER, the new-look Angels had only two players in Thursday night's starting lineup who were with the club last season, Fregosi and Rodgers.

The other six people were Bobby Knoop, Power, Adcock, Clinton, Wonderful Willie and Piersall. (Okay, llyde, don't argue with me about Piersall. He was with the Angels for only 20 games at the tag end of '63.) Everybody gives credit to general manager Fred Haney for making the swaps that suddenly rocketed the Angels into prominence, so I have to join the cheering mob. I had the impression last season that Mr. Haney had offense of Saturday for a reagiven up on baseball and was ready for the rocking chair, but I guess there's a lot of life in the old boy yet.

Anyway, the Angels now have the codgers on the but 23 runs for him. A FEW PARAGRAPHS BACK, 1 mentioned exclusion BOY BATBOY of Thursday night's pitcher. That was merely to illustrate the new-look point. Nobody really ever can exclude Bo Belinsky from any Angel conversation.

Before the game, Bo was as relaxed as a cow in the pasture. Which is Bo's usual manner. I don't think the guy would act nervous in death row or confronted by those law suits you used to read about.

(Come to think of it, doesn't some matron now have a case pending against lio regarding loss of $1,500, which she thought she had merely "loaned" him? Oh, well, in view of Bo's string of activities, this incident is strictly minor league.)

"What's new on the (Leo) Durocher thing back in Vermont?" wondered the pride of Trenton, N.J. "I know what the guy's going through. Just because he's got a name, some guy's trying to get publicity. I hope Leo beats in the public.

"How many people you think came out to see me tonight?" he clucked. "You think maybe we got 10,000.

Well, I better go out and count the house."

With that, Mr. Belinsky took the field and prepared to warm up with coach Del Rice. Before his first pitch, however, Bo looked over the stadium like a surveyor, took off his cap to show the girls still interested that his hair was in place, then hitched-up his belt.

Bo must have liked what he saw. He proceeded to hurl a nifty, two-hit shutout. Private life agrees with Mr. Belinsky of the new-look Angels.

Above all, Mike Austin is a nice guy who likes people and is liked by people.

Austin was eliminated in the first round of the Southern California PGA Championship at Recreation Park Thursday, but the story of how he arrived to play in the tournament is as bizarre as befitting its main character.

LET MIKE TELL IT:

"I flew over to Scotland a week ago to play in the British Open and introduce the Flammer overseas. The Flammer is my golf invention, the greatest aid to the golfer ever invented. I named it the Flammer from the Greek word Flamma which means illumination. I chose the name because the Flammer sheds light on the correct golf swing.

"The Scottish people were crazy about the Flammer and I've never been received so graciously. I was born on the Isle of Guernsey and lived in Scotland as a boy, so it was sort of a homecoming for me. The heads of the old Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews treated me like I was a member and allowed me to demonstrate the Flammer inside the clubhouse. Imagine, that was the place a professional golfer wasn't allowed to enter 25 years

'I played a few practice rounds with Bob Walker, the Scottish champion and the longest hitter in Britain, and he said, 'Nobody could outhit me.' I drove one ball 25 yards over the green on the 18th hole at long.

"I played my qualifying rounds for the British Open on Friday and Saturday, and shot 73-73-146. I finished early the second day, looked at the scoreboard and saw that there were 47 players ahead of me for the 32 places. I didn't see how I could possibly make it.

"So I called the airlines to get a plane back to the states so I could play here in Long Beach. They informed me that there was only one seat left on a plane leaving right away or else I would have to wait four days and miss the tournament here,

I left the course and flew home.
"When I arrived back home in Hollywood, I received several phone calls from pros and friends asking me why I had returned. They had heard over the radio that I had qualified to play in the tournament, don't know for certain, but I've been told now by 30 or 40 people that they have seen or heard it.

"Wouldn't that be something if I really did make it? To fly that far and come back. But I love this tournament, and wouldn't have wanted to miss it for the world, and I did accomplish half of my mission.

"I now have Flammer distributors for England, Scotland, Ireland, New Zealand, South Africa, Egypt, Holland, Germany, France and Hong Kong. My man in Hong Kong is Mr. Luh, the pro at the Fan Ling Country Club and I predict great things for the Flammer in Hong Kong.
"The one person who should be most thankful that I didn't get to play in the British Open is Tony Lema. He may have beaten me, but my drives would have made his look puny."

Austin will be a headline performer today at the clinic which follows the cham-pionship match at Recreation Park, Don't miss it. A great showman and quite a guy is Mike Austin.

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (UPI)—U.S. Open champion Ken Venturi settled down affer having a freeurday and come from behind to grab a seven-point lead in the fourth round of the Wykagyl round robin golf tournament with a score of plus-29.

Venturi, two under - par for six holes, shot four straight bogeys after the camera-bug began to get on his nerves and he threatened a sitdown strike until the man was removed.

"I didn't say I'd quit," Venturi explained, "I just wasn't going to play another shot until that photographer went away." Ken came back to record a 38-35-73 for a score of plus-one for the day, plus-29 for the tournament and a seven-point lead over Tommy Bolt, who fired a 70 for plus-22.

Venturi, leader at plus-28 as the fourth round started. got off winging and boosted his lead with an eagle at the 517-yard par-five sixth hole where he rammed a 2-wood 10 feet from the pin and sank his putt.

But at the seventh, the photographer --- club member J. L. King, who was taking pictures for next year's program-apparently began to rattle the Open champion. Venturi bogeyed the seventh, eighth and ninth and double bogeyed the 10th before the photog-

Furor Over Lorick

NEW YORK (UPI)-Commissioners of the National and American pro football leagues disagreed Saturday on which league owns the rights to star Arizona State halfback Tony Lorick, and the Oak-land Raiders of the AFL hinted they may take the case to court.

Both the Raiders and the Baltimore Colts of the NFL claim to have signed Lorick to legitimate contracts in the latest of several "double signing" cases that have cropped up since the AFL was founded five years ago.:

Announcement of the disagreement was made by commissioner Joe Foss of the

NFL Trading Fast and Furious

As far back as I can remember, there never has been as many major trades in the National Football League as there has been since the end of the 1963

At last count, there have been 16 trades involving 42 players, including some of the biggest names in the game . . Sam Huff, Sonny Jurgensen, Norman Snead, Tommy McDonald, Buddy Dial, Dick Modzelewski, all-pro center Jim Ringo, Earl Gros, Fred Williams, Rich Kreitling, Clarence Peaks, Red Mack, Sam Baker, etc.

Only two of the 14 NFL teams failed to pull off a trade the San Francisco 49ers and St. Louis Cardinals, but there are indications one or both may make a deal within the

The two most active teams in the trade marts, or course, have been the Washington Redskins and Philadelphia Eagles.

Joe Kuharich now has made six major deals since he took over as head coach of the Eagles in March. He has traded off nine players while acquiring 13 in a large scale effort to get the club out of the Eastern Division cellar.

Joe not only traded to plug gaping holes in the Eagle roster, but also to correct a problem which had torn the club into two "armed camps" and resulted in fisticuffs between the players last

The Redskins have acquired eight new players and club officials actually feel they can make a run at the New York Giants for the Eastern crown. "Maybe we've traded ourselves there already, maybe we're still a man away," says coach Bill McPeak, whose job reportedly is at stake this season. "We won't know until we get everyone in camp." Key men acquired by the Redskins, of course, were Jurgensen, one of the league's finest all-around passers, and phia, a crew put together in Huff, the veteran middle linebacker from the Giants.

But the Giants weren't sitting still . . . and pulled off meter (about 11/4 mile) two deals that appear solid enough to keep them at the top Olympic course at Orchard

For Huff, they got defensive end Andy Stynchula to weather, the fourth-seeded plug up a big gap in the defensive line and also got a jack-of-all-trades offensive back in Dick James. And later they traded Modzelewski to Cleveland for end Bobby Crespino, a topnotch receiver, to beef up the already effective aerial attack directed by Y. A. Tittle.

The firing of Heinrich, who came to the the Central Park Far West football firm of Svare, Heinrich, Wietecha and Schnelker, was a surprise to even Ram insiders.

But Svare said Saturday that "although the decision was most difficult, it was not a sudden thing. Last January, I decided to devote more time to the defense and put Ray Wietecha (offensive line coach) in charge of the offensive. It didn't work

What Svare left unsaid was that there must have been differences of opinion between Wietecha and Heinrich, who was in charge of the offensive last season.

said Heinrich when he received the news at the Rams' training camp at Orange Saturday. "It can be interpreted several ways."

The 33-year-old former Washington Husky quarterback star and offensive coach of the New York Giants and Dallas Cowboys said, "The news came sudden to me. I have no other plans now. I hope to stay in football, but it is awfully late to get a new job this year."

Svare was asked that if Waterfield accepted the position would the former great quarterback of the Rams be assigned to calling the plays from the bench as Hein"No," he replied, "the coaches will call the plays. There will be no individual assignment."

If Waterfield refuses the job—and a high Ram official told the I, P-T that he believes he will decline—then this writer hazards a guess that Svare will make a strong attempt to land his former teammate and close friend, Frank Gifford, from the Giants.

However, football still is Waterfield's first love, and there no doubt will be pressure exerted upon him by Ram friends to Shoemaker also attributed the rich victory to Longden: "Everytime I came to Real Good Deal, John would pull away. We just couldn't tag him today, although Close By ran as well today as he did in his last two winning races. I had some trouble on the first turn. I was outside of three horses and finally had to go on after waiting to see what those two between John and me were going to do. Longden beat me today, when all the votes are counted."

Performing Art's jockey, Jim Craswell, admitted inexperience was his colt's big problem, "but he's going to be a real top colt. Man, he was rolling at them down the lane and two - mile, each spaced an he's a powerful dude."

Longden's previous Derby winners were Busher (1945), Solidarity ('48), Pedigree ('49) and Four-and Twenty ('61). Which was his most thrilling?

By LEW ALLISON

(Fishin' Around for Donnell Culpepper, Who Is on Vacation)

The image of the United States Navy is more than a little tarnished in the eyes of hundreds of Long Beach-area fishermen, who apparently have lost the war and must give up hope that the ban on fishing at the Seal Beach Weapons Station jetty might be relaxed.

Hopes that restrictions might be eased with the completion of dredging and other operations in the Anaheim Bay channel were dashed by Capt. W. C. Hall, commanding the station. The rocks, he ex-plained, are part of the station he commands, the station is a restricted area, and he is responsible for enforcing the restrictions. Interest in the situation among sportsmen is evidenced by the hundreds who have been arrested as trespassers, fined $29. Both the Seal Beach Police Department and the Orange County Sheriff's Department have been enlisted to help put down rebellious fishermen who have ignored the barbed wire and posted warnings. The west jetty, at the end of the Seal Beach public strand, is in the city limits, while the east jetty is n county jurisdiction. Many who fish there do so because it is fun for the price of a sea bass he has taken this season. This one, caught on Pacific Landing's Fisherman, weighs 5 pounds more than the boy who hooked it.

-but only the Seal Beach station has decided to keep people the Clympic team and her trip to Tokyo.

Pioneer Firm Adapts to Changing Times

Working in his garage back in 1921, Ivan Wheaton started the Wheaton Candy Co. in Long Beach. Today, the company is turning emphasis on customized food service—but it still makes candy. THE NEW UNIT is the latest step in a series of diversifications since Ivan Wheaton, a World War I Marine Corps aviator, established the Wheaton Candy Co, in a garage behind his home in the 600 block of Loma Avenue in 1921, By the beginning of World War II the company was marketing its chocolates through 11 Southern Calistores. By the end of World War II, Wheaton had be-

THIS WAS a significant time of change in the Wheaton story. Expansion continued with the establishment of a second corporation, W & W Vendors,

There still was evidence, however, of a missing ingredient, according to Pang-Wheaton.

"WE TRIED for years to feed people automatically and were so committed to this concept that we couldn't see what was lacking," he said; "but, as we say out here, when everything clse fails, why not try the truth?"

"With the exception of a few specific cases, we found that complete automation just does not serve employes in a manner that will send them back to their work stations in the best frame of mind, and this is especially true of those who must deal with the public," said Wheaton, who believes he has found the answer in an innovation called Pang's Pantries.

THE NET result has been a replacement of the conventional company cafeteria or fully automated snack bar with a custom designed, personally attended, compact buffet service of hot entrees, fresh salads and desserts that is augmented by automated cofcream, pastry and other dispensers,

"What we are really do-Ing is getting food to the employe which is as much like home-prepared quality as you can find," Wheaton explained.

THE PANG'S Pantry concept is now a proven technique and W & W Inc., Food Service Systems is rapidly expanding the service. Pang's Pantries already have been installed by Honeywell Corporation, the Broadway Department Stores, and other Southern California firms. Meanwhile, new installations continue to appear.

Pang Wheaton believes his custom-installed pantries thus have consummated a happy marriage between the warmth of catered dining and the efficiency of automation.

"If you find a need and fill it," he states, "you will find that business develops. The philosophy behind. our growth can be expressed simply—make din-ing a gracious human-event."

DANCING IS PART of the lively activity of every Mexican fiesta. Here dancers perform a "jarabe" or folk dance in a Mexican village.

Fiesta in Mexico

By Fred Taylor Kraft Travel Editor

THAT MEXICO at long last has established itself as a major world tourist destination is: attested to by the fact that this year more than a million Americans will vacation there to taste its sanguine pleasures and exciting adventures.

Mexico has everything from extravagantly wild and bizarre natural wonders, including two towering volcanoes to pyramids of another civilization; from humble villages to a great capital whose glamour and sophistication is talked about wherever travelers gather.

And, it is a land of interesting people who love to celebrate, and who are pleased when their visitors celebrate with them.

Southland travelers find it easy to get to Mexico. Three airlines-Aeronaves de Mexico, Mexicana and Western—all fly direct from Los Angeles International Airport. Greyhound conducts bus tours. The highways are generally good for those who wish to drive".

ALMOST ANY DAY in the year a parade of procession is winding through the streets of some Mexican town, Indian dancers in gaudy costumes appear to perform their tribal dances. There's the echo of mariachis and marimba music. Bullfights are enacted in blazing color.

All of which generally adds up to a ficsta, which may last a day or a week, and roll around as often as 30 times a year in some localities.

No one visiting Mexico should miss seeing at least one important fiesta. Some, such as Independence Day—Sept. 15-16—are nationwide. At 11 p. m. on Sept. 15, the President of Mexico gives the "grito," the cry of independence, from the balcony of the National Palace in Mexico City. It is echoed in every Mexican town. The fireworks then become deafening, the tempo of the celebration a thing to witness.

JULY 30 MARKS the death of Father Hidalgo, patriot who shotgunned the first revolt against Spain in 1810. The celebrations are nationwide but particularly impressive in Hidalgo's home bailiwick in San Miguel de Allende, Dolores Hidalgo and Guanajuato.

Another colorful ceremony-this one in Mexico City Aug. 21-honors Cuauhtemoc, the last of the Aztec emperors, who was tortured and killed by the conquistadors when he refused to reveal the hiding place of the legendary hoard of Aztec gold. Indian dancers in authentic Aztec costumes perform at his monument on the broad and beautiful Paseo de la Reforma.

DATES OF SOME of the other fiestas in the next few weeks:

Aug. 1-31: Reynosa, State of Tamaulipas, annual cotton harvest carnival featuring fireworks, queens, floats and fairs.

Aug. 1-16: San Juan de los Lagos, State of Jalisco—huge pilgrimage and festival dating back to colonial times, with climax Aug. 6.

Aug. 6-15: The Feast of Assumption widely celebrated throughout Mexico with the largest fiestas at Aguascalientes, Amozoc, Cholulu, Milpa Alta in Federal District, and Izamal, in Yucatan.

Aug. 23-24: San Bartolo Naucalpan, near Mexico City-large fair that includes dances, fireworks and cockfights.

Sept. 6: Mardi gras at Pochutla, in State of Oaxaca, featuring a procession of grotesque figures in medieval costume that usher in the festivities for Virgin de la Natividad.

Sept. 8: At Taxco, a fiesta features an extraor dinary dance-drama describing the battle between the Lord of Tepoztlan and surrounding chiefs.

YOU CAN. With a round trip to Rome as the farthest point, these are very flexible tickets. You couldgo home by way of Scandinavia with stops in Switzerland and Germany at no extra: cost.

You can always re-write tickets at any point - no matter whether the original carrier makes these stops or not. They have to put you on another line that does make the stop you want.

Two Shes on Skis

KATHY takes lead above as she and sister, Wendy, keep in trim by tire hopping. Below, close knit family gathers around the piano as Wendy plays for at-home sing-along.

By MARGARET McKEAN

Two pert and pretty teen-agers want to come down from a mountain top faster than anybody.

They'll be wearing skis when they do.

The Allen sisters, at 18 and 19 years old, seem destined to ski their way to the Olympics.

Skiing is not a sometime thing with them. Training is year around, dry land in summer and snowy peaks in winter at Mammoth Mountain,

"They come to town only to see their dentist." said Wendy and Cathy's mother on a rare weekend when she had her daughters at home at 3900 Carolina St., San Pedro.

Sometimes they travel down from the mountains to be present when the awards are passed out. Latest one, presented by the Helms Foundation, was for Cathy as outstanding junior skier in 1964 in the Far West Ski Association.

Both seem happy to win awards but are indifferent to the inherent glory. They forgot they were to be starred in an hour long filmed television show and didn't even turn on the set.

THEY WERE 6 AND 7 years old the first time they wore skis.

"It sounds corny but it seems I knew then they'd be good, real good," remembers their dad, Grant Allen, who added, "I was never a good skier, just an enthusiastic one." (His job is with the sea, he's marine superintendent for Global Marine doing off-shore drilling in Long Beach).

"My brother had a cabin at Green Valley when the girls were little, it was our weekend home for years," he continued.

Recognition for Wendy and Cathy's prowess didn't wait for high school graduation.

They went to Chamonix, France, to train, the only two girls in the western division junior

They went to Slowe, Vermont, for competition; have skilled in Oregon, Washington, Idaho, and in Aspen, Colo., which they say is the nation's best ski country.

Their longtime coach is Dave McCoy who helped champions like Jean Saubert win gold medals at the Olympics.

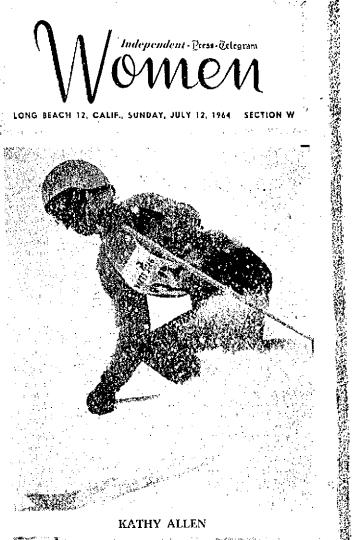

"Dave is tops in the country, a really dedicated coach. He owns the lodge at Mammoth Mountain. We live there with the McCoys and their six children and the lodge guests. We train from 4:30 a.m. on; we do some work around the lodge. It's private citizens like Dave who send United States teams to the Olympics," the girls chorused.

THEY'LL BE READY for the 1968 winter Olympics in Grenoble, France.

Before then there will be competition just as important to them, the International Federation of Skiing tourney in Portillo, Chile, in 1966. They also will travel the senior circuit all over the United States from December to March, and

Newlywed Terry and Mike Kessler have a world of travel on ice. As members of an ice extravaganza, they're out to skate their way through South America come September—through Europe next

"It's a cool way to go places," says Michael, handsome 6-foot-tall 23-year-old artist-turned-performer. "Take the trip through the Latin lands. We'll see, among others, such famed spots as Guatemala City.

A new man on the blades, he took them up just two years ago, Mike's warmly enthusiastic about this wintery way to make a living. And, he should be.

Since he took up skating professionally, he's acquired a beautiful wife (he met her in the show), a honeymoon (plus pay) in Mexico and invitations to stay in spas and resorts here and on the continent. Terry, his bride of two months, a tall, willowy blue-eyed brunette, is just thrilled with ice as a mode of keeping on the go.

"I joined Holiday on Ice last July," she says. "Mike didn't sign up

UTILIZING highways, waterways and sidewalks, Sema Club members and guests traveled by cars, bus, and shanks' ponies Thursday for their annual summer strictly for fun social.

They went to sea to see-not sea, but homes.

First they drove to HH in their own cars; switched to shuttle bus service to see some of the homes; switched again to Harbour's cruise boat, "Islander," to tour more homes on the waterfront.

In between time, there was much walking to, in and lout of model homes. A highpoint of the day was the 'cocktails and luncheon "break" at the development's Huntington Harbour Club.

A few in merry melee of meanderers were Toni Mallery, Bev Carver, Lois Bockman, Agnes Mallery, Nikki Pittman, Vee Nelsen, Dora Lee, Ber Beret, and Barbara Quick. Toni, candid camera clicking away, idid her best to catch everyone off guard and now they're all worried how they'll look. Barbara, Sema remember, added greatly to tour's enjoyment by giving tips on color coordination of homes. She's an expert in this field.

STILL RECOVERING from their annual "Safe and Sane Fourth," painfully, are certain members of the Monita Street (College Park Estates) Block Party participants. As it turned out, a few of 'em would have fared better playing rugby on the freeway.

First casualty of the day was Don Barden. In the morning softball game he slid into home plate and skinned his knees so hadly he was sidelined. In same game, played on asphalt of nearby playground, Burt Barrud, swinging, running, fielding, and all in carefree barefoot condition, blistered his feet so hadly he wasn't able to get shoes on until midweek, hobbling gingerly all the while.

Then came the volley ball matches. As a result Dr. 'Joe Traub and Cal Lenzen are wearing casts. Joe broke one foot; Cal broke bones in BOTH feet. In the Moms vs. Kids kickball game, Rose Bishop developed such a painful charley horse she was hors de combat for

THE MERRY pace grows merrier for Assistance League debs in the party whirl prior to their bow to society July 25 at International Ballroom of the Lafayette Hotel.

Traditionally, the girls, their escorts and fellows of the stagline are lavishly feted. Their parents come in for some happy special events as well. First was Mary Barden and Bette Barden's co-hostessed party, a dinner and dance, for dads and debs to rehearse the formal opening waltz. That was Thursday, Saturday, at the home of "Brownie" Berkaw the girls and the fellows were supper and dancing party guests of "Brownie" and co-hostesses Thelma Dreckman, Marjorie Webb and Esther Gilmore.

Next Saturday the young people will have a hottenanny at the Seal Beach home of Jimmie Nutter being co-hostessed by Lois Wright and Jane LaMasney.

VIRGINIA COUNTRY CLUB teemed with people Saturday night and conversation and laughter bubbled from room to room. Assisting were Ruth and Dwight Robbins, Veryl and Howell Honeywell, Elsie and Joe Riddick, Vivian and John Davis, Mollie and Bob Reid and Hester and Bruce Gray.

But the real kicker of the evening was the sneaky timing (but gala) announcement same night of engagement of Davis' daughter, Marjorie, to Dr. Ken Countryman. Details elsewhere this section. Hoo boy, total surprise!

SKYWARD swoosh to Seattle took Flo and John Brooks to Northwest country Friday. They are there to be on hand for all pre-wedding festivities for son, Bill, and fiancee, Candy Carleton. After the wedding (to take place next Thursday) they'll be in proper sentimental mood to take vacation sidetrip to Victoria where they honeymoond (37 years ago) at Empress

IT WAS idyllic at Idyllwild when Dorothy and John Munholland entertained in their mountain home for Maggie and Fred McKinney and their houseguest, Dorothy Spowart of Pittsburgh, Pa. Maggie, voice fully recovered from vocal cord repairs, said dinner at the resort's Tyrol Restaurant was elegant, terrific, astounding surroundings-but have your check book or wallet ready upon entering!

BEGINNING to feel like a permanent boarder and roomer at St. Mary's Hospital is Ann Bishop. She spent three months there having broken arm, other ailments, tended. Then, one week out of Etherville, back in again for surgery Friday. Same room, same view—and fortunately, same friendly faces.

A SIMPLE statement does not always tell a simple story. Take, for instance: "Sterling Gainer Pillsbury Jr., M.D., son of Dr. and Mrs. Stirling Pillsbury has returned home after an absence of 14 years to go into practice with his father and F. Lyle Gray, M.D."

Gainer, born in Long Beach and a grad of Poly class of 1950, received his A.B. (cum laude) from Stanford in '54 and his M.D. from its medical school in 1957,

He took his rotating internship at U of Pennsylvania Hospital in Philadelphia, served two years in the Navy Medical Corps, and has just completed his fourth year residence at Stanford Hospital, the last year of which he was chief resident in his department. Simple? Well, hardly! He and wife, Lynne, are residing at 2541 Pine Ave.

IS THE RUMOR TRUE—or false? Rosie Nicholson is in the dark but cheerfully assuming it is false. She heard that son, Bill Broz, student in the American precollege program in Paris, had broken a limb. But Bill, something less than an ardent fan of the write letters home type, hasn't mentioned word one of any such accident. He's written twice since departure mid-June! On the other hand, daughter, Brenda Broz, who is studying at Cambridge, England, concurrently, fires letters home with every bit of fresh, breezy news she

After summer school is out, Brenda and Bill will get together for a visit with friends in Majorca.

IT WAS not only hot and humid—it was humid and hot-in New York when photog caught un-wilted and fashionable Pilot Clubbers, below, Marianna (Mrs. Louis) Williams, Lakewood, and Eva (Mrs. Mark Miner, downtown gang, as they were about to part company for post-convention trips. But how on that informality far left-and in front of the Waldorf-Astoria, no less?

Eva and Mark went on to tour Washington, D. C. (where it was equally hot, humid) and Marianna and couple of Pilot conventioneer friends hied off for Bermuda. She should be home by today-if it wasn't just too much fun in that lovely isle. Eva and Mark returned last Sunday, glad, glad, glad, to be in cool, cool, cool Pacific breezes.

Treasures of Art in Washington Galleries

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

WASHINGTON, D.C.-A facet of our nation's Capital stalled by new director, of which I was previously unaware is the wealth of art treasures to be found here. The National Gallery is untouched, to my knowledge, in the combination of the quality of its collections with the magnificance and taste of its facilities,

The collection in the Duncan Phillips Gallery, open free to the public, includes all major modern painters in depth with examples from earlier artists like Goya and El Greco who presaged the forms which we call modern.

Just down the street from developing artists. the Phillips, at 1503 21st St. NW, is the Washington Gallery of Modern Art, A reshowcase for major traveling shows.

Critic Reviews Eight Years

By RACHEL MORTON I, P-T Musle Critic

Today I am beginning my eighth year as music critic and writer of Major & Minor Notes for the Independent, Press-Telegram, Just think of it—nearly 400 Major & Minor Notes columns; all on ONE subject—MUSIC! And heaven knows how many music reviews are within the covers of those seven huge scrapbooks of mine! I never dreamed I would "last" this long. (I am not a young woman.)

If my columns have not been brilliant literary efforts. at least they have served to acquaint my readers, first hand, with some of the greatest personages in the musical world through my personal interviews with them. It is my honest conviction that, had it not been for my own career as an opera singer, I could not have interviewed most of these celebrities. They are very busy people, or past needing publicity. But they have, without exception, re-ceived me as one of them and many have become my dear friends.

GREAT ARTISTS, I have found, have characteristics in common. They all love to was realized the following live in luxurious surroundings; they seek beauty of nature to look out upon; they are kindly disposed people, never jealous or quibbling; most of them have pets; they all have a sense of humor and music is the enduring passion of their lives.

NEW YORK—Where else in the world could you see "Oliver" on one side of the street and catch a glimpse of Liz Taylor and Richard Burton on the other.

Then have your hair styled at midnight next to a Capa girl, sup coffee afterwards at a counter across from TV's Mr. Kleen, and hang your hat (a must) on the forty-second floor of a hotel where Charles Boyer, Jill St. John and Jimmy Stewart often hang theirs.

Where else could you lunch in the most luxurious of gourmet establishments (The Four Seasons) to view the most prophetic of space suits, then that evening dine amid the ivy-covered heritage of a lavern built in 1870 (Central Park's historic Tavern-on-the-Green).

Oswald Jacoby When Not to Finesse

Here is a hand that illustrates when not to finesse.

In the actual play of the hand, South went up with dummy's jack of clubs at trick one. East covered with the queen and eventually South lost two diamonds and a club.

Had South restrained his impulse to use that club jack fittle at a time to obtain would have come up roses.

There was no reason for him to play that jack right away. If East held the queen of clubs, the jack would be gone and forgotten. If West held the queen of clubs, the jack would hold the trick but, as Fred Karpin points out, if West held the queen of clubs at trick one he would also hold it at trick two, three, four and so on.

Now let's see what would happen if South plays low from dummy. He would win the trick with the ace, ruff a heart, draw trumps, ruff his last heart, and play the ace and another diamond.

EITHER opponent could win that diamond trick and lead another diamond for a second defensive trick. Then, if West held the lead, he would have been forced to play a heart or a diamond. South would ruff in dummy and discard his losing club from his hand.

If East held the trick, he would have had the additional option of leading a club in which case dummy's jack would actually take a

Q. Can you tell me if as a young man President Johnson had curly, wavy hair and was called "Curly" by his friends? — L. E. Turlington, Dunn, N.C.

A. He had curly hair (see photo), was not called "Curly."

Q. Does Martha Raye have a daughter in show business? What is her name?—George P. Sellars, Biddeford, Me.

A. Yes; Melodye, now married and expecting a child, had a short show business fling.

Q. What is the relationship between Jackie Kennedy and William Walton?-V. V., Alexandria, Va.

A. Walton, chairman of the Commission of Fine Arts, Washington, D.C., painter and ex-political correspondent for the New Republic, is an old friend of the late President's and a good friend of Mrs. Kennedy's. What both have in common is a love of good art, music and architecture.

Q. Pope Paul announced that the sacraments were no longer to be withheld from those Catholics who chose to be cremated or whose relatives decided on it. Didn't he make that decision because in many countries there is a shortage of land for cometeries?—L. Lovett, Boston, Mass. A. In part. The land shortage is acute in England, the Netherlands and Belgium.

Q. Didn't screen star Errol Flynn leave a fortune in England when he died?—R. L., Januica, N.Y.
A. The Chancery Division of the British High Court reports that the Errol Flynn estate has assets in England of $420,000 in savings bonds and cash.

Q. I've heard that four of the most successful Negro women singers chose white husbands, Will you print

Q. I understand that Swedish Princess Desirce, recently married, asked her grandfather, King Gustav, for a tractor for her wedding present instead of the family jewels. Is this so or just publicity? — Kathleen McCarthy, Oak Park, Ill.

A. True. Desiree, who studied agriculture, said a tractor would be more useful than the family jewels on her husband's farm.

Q. Why has nothing ever been said in the American press about M. Bleustein-Blanchet, the mastermind behind Gen. De Caulle?—Ron Guido, Los Angeles, Colif

A. M. Bleustein-Blanchet, 55, runs the largest publicity agency in France, also the American-type drugstore on the Champs-Elysées in Paris. He met Gen. De Gaulle during the war when he flew for the Free French. In 1958 De Gaulle called him in as a TV consultant. Bleustein-Blanchet advised De Gaulle to "throw away your glasses, throw away your notes, insist upon close-ups, speak with dramatic intensity." De Gaulle followed the advice. Bleustein-Blanchet conducts the monthly poll which reveals De Gaulle's popularity quotient in France. Most American newspapermen have not heard of him.

Q. Does Mrs. Lyndon Johnson really hold two bachelor degrees?—Ellen Baker, San Antonio, Tex.
A. Yes; one in acts, one in journalism.

Q. What is Groucho Marx's real name?—Al Kleitz, New Haven, Conn.

A. Julius Marx.

Q. When Cassius Clay was in Egypt a few weeks ago, he suid he was looking for an Egyptian bride. Is Cassius to be believed?—L. Reynolds, Columbia, S.C. A. Hardly.

Q. Is it true that Gen. Eisenhower is widely disliked in Great Britain, which is why Field Marshal Montgomery denounced him over the BBC on the 20th Anniversary of D-Day? Did our government demand an apology?—T. S., Washington, D.C.

A. Eisenhower is and always has been popular in Great Britain. Montgomery is bitter about Eisenhower and rarely misses an opportunity to criticize him. Following Montgomery's BBC blast, a U.S. embassy spokesman in London said: "Attacks by Field Marshal Montgomery on Gen. Eisenhower are nothing new." And Marshal of the R.A.F. Lord Tedder said of Montgomery: "This outburst is a pitiful example of a man's second childhood."

Q. I was told that Mario Moreno (Cantinflas) is the world's best paid comedian; also that he maintains a number of charity houses and a number of orphanages. Also that if a mother is unable to support her child, all she has to do is write to him and he will send after that child.

Is all this true?—Trinidad A. Navarro, El Paso, Tex.

A. All but the last part. He does not send for children.

Q. Who said: "A gentleman is one who never strikes a woman without provocation"? — Mildred Cummings, Miani, Fla.

A. H. L. Mencken, American writer, editor and critic (1880-1956).

Q. To whom is model Suzy Parker married?—Geo. T., Chicago, Ill.

A. Actor Brad Dillman.

Q. I recently saw Marlon Brando and David Niven

in a comedy. Brando was fat and unfunny, and it looked as if he and Niven were both wearing hair-pieces. Am I right?—Lois Noonan, New York, N.Y. A. Brando is rapidly losing his hair but still doesn't wear a hairpiece. Niven wears one in all films.

An American family in Vietnam

by ED KIESTER

COYER AND PHOTOS BY LARRY FRIED

in Vietnam: Larry and Lesley Nelson attend school in a building with bars on the classroom windows and an armed guard on the roof. Their mother shops in a commissary encircled by barbed wire and patrolled by a pistol-carrying MP. Their father packs a .45 on many of his missions with the Vietnamese. And the whole family must be careful to avoid crowds, stay out of unfamiliar areas and never to leave Saigon.

Navy Lt. Comdr. Andrew Nelson; his wife Liz; Larry, 11; Lesley, 8; and Jeffrey, 5, are among 500 U.S. military and 1,500 U.S. civilian families in this embattled country. They live in a virtual state of siege, surrounded by danger and uncertainty with occasional overtones of terror. They do not know when a bomb or a grenade could go off, or when they themselves could become targets.

You might think that under the circumstances these Americans would be petrified. You might wonder why in the world they stay in this wartorn nation at all. Yet the fact is that the majority like their comfortable existence, wouldn't dream of leaving voluntarily and — like Liz and Andy Nelson — are calm, cool and collected about it.

"We're not heroes," says Liz Nelson, a short, brunette former schooltcacher from Old Greenwich, Conn. "People back home get the idea we're bravely facing gunfire all the time. Actually, life here isn't much different from life in some other places we've lived. In fact, it's even better in some ways." Her husband, a career Navy man and son of a Navy officer, is more emphatic. "Just because I carry a weapon sometimes," he says impatiently, "doesn't mean I'm in danger of being shot on the way home."

Actually, many persons in the U.S. are not even aware that there is a U.S. community here. And the overwhelming majority of the 16,000 Americans aiding the South Vietnamese government in its struggle against Communist Viet Cong guerrillas do not have their families with them. They serve 13-month "hardship" tours and leave their wives and children at home. But a small handful of personnel—highly skilled, hard-to-replace specialists who serve two- or three-year tours and employees of the State Department and other agencies—are permitted to have their families here. There are an estimated 1,700 families in Saigon and another 300 in other parts of the country.

TERRORIST TARGETS

Recently these families themselves have assumed an important role in the conflict. The Viet Cong have begun a campaign of terrorism against U.S. personnel, including dependents. The most serious incident occurred Feb. 16, when a terrorist threw a bomb into the Kinh Do Theater, an American movie house, and killed 5 persons and wounded 50 others, many of them women and children. A few days later, a bomb went off under a crowded grandstand at Pershing Field, the U.S. athletic facility, during a softball playoff game. Two more were killed and 18 hurt. Since then there have been repeated lesser incidents.

In the wake of these attacks, U.S. officials, here and in Washington, have debated whether to evacuate all dependents. But they concluded that such a move would be a virtual admission the U.S. could not protect them—and a clear propaganda victory for the Communists. Accordingly, Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge announced that individual families could go home at government expense if they wished, but ruled out a mass exodus. It is known, however, that the U.S. is considering, on the highest level, a total evacuation, coupled with an announcement that the move is a prelude to clearing the decks for action.

Here in Saigon, however, it is often difficult to convince yourself that any threat exists. Although you can sometimes hear gunfire within its limits, this city, with its broad, flower-decked boulevards, its sidewalk cafés and Paris-at-the-turn of-the-century architecture, its stately women in their flowing ao dais, still seems like the idyllic setting for an old James A. Fitzpatrick travelogue. And, indeed, for the Americans here, life can be beautiful, comfortable and placid.

HOW THE NELSONS LIVE

Take the Nelsons, for instance. Their home is a high-ceilinged, four-bedroom-and-three-hath stucco place with air-conditioned sleeping quarters and a servant staff of four. The children swim and play badminton at the near-by Cirque Sportif, founded by the French in the colonial days and just as Old Empire today. They can shop dirt-cheap for all kinds of things-Liz recently bought a handmade, hand-embroidered dress for about $6 and a pair of children's slippers for 30g. Social life is brisk. The wives hold a regular round of bridge parties, fashion shows and charity affairs. They even follow the social protocol of the stateside military post, making the required calls on the wife of the Ambassador, the wife of the commanding general, the wife of the AID mission chief and so on, in the accepted order.

Even some of the alleged hazards of living under the gun are little different from those military families encounter elsewhere. There is the matter of the contaminated water, for instance; Liz must boil every drop before the family can drink it. Or the vegetables. Families are told firmly not to eat them until they have been washed in purified water, soaked in a chlorine solution for 20 minutes and then rinsed.

Yet real danger does exist, and no one can ever completely forget it. "You try to put it out of your head, but you can't," says Liz Nelson. "You're always conscious of it in the back of your mind." Almost everyone in the community knows someone who was injured in one of the bombings, or someone who has sent his family home because he feels the danger.

The community abounds in rumors, most of them allegedly based on "intelligence reports." "Have you heard the latest intelligence report?" one wife will ask another. "The VC are going to bomb the commissary!" 'The most chilling rumor, which crops up repeatedly, is that the terrorists plan to kidnap American children. This would show dramatically, the argument goes, how weak is U.S. and Vietnamese security.

BEACHES ARE OFF LIMITS

And military authorities have clamped some tight restrictions on the U.S. community. Movies and sports events have been stopped since the theater and stadium bombings. The bowling alley has been shut down. Extra guards have been posted at the hospital, PX, commissary, school, church and dispensary. Social gatherings are limited to 20 persons unless an armed guard is present. And although Vietnam has some of the most beautiful beaches in the world, at Nha Trang and Cap St. Jacques, Americans are not permitted to drive to them.

Liz and Andy Nelson knew about the restrictions

tables. Americans are told to sterilize before eating.

Shopping, Liz Nelson and maid look over local vege-

and the hazards before they came to Saigon. But they didn't hesitate. Ever since they met on a blind date in Washington in 1947, their lives have been one separation after another. Most recently, the family lived in Newport, R.I., while Andy was on duty with the Atlantic fleet, and often was gone for several months. This time, given a choice of a year's tour of duty without his family, or two years with them, he immediately chose the longer stretch.

"I just decided we were going to be together every chance we had," says Andy, who was at sea when two of the children were born. "The idea of being separated for that long just made me unhappy. I'll admit, I wondered if this was a good place to bring children and all, but I finally decided to be fatalistic about it. Besides, Liz and I talked to a lot of people who'd been here. They liked it and minimized the danger."

First, however, the Nelsons had personal problems to settle, Jeffrey was born with an extreme hearing deficiency and poor vision, and it was necessary to be sure he could get proper treatment and speech training in this part of the world. Liz learned that he could receive medical care, lined up a Vietnamese woman tutor with a degree from Boston College and contacted a specialist in Bangkok. Next, arrangements had to be made to take the others out of school. This completed, Andy took the two-year term as an adviser to the operations office of the Vietnamese fleet.

UNCERTAIN ARRIVAL

He left for Vietnam on Jan. 9. On Feb. 20, four days after the theater bombing. Liz received authorization to follow. "There was a big flap at the time about evacuation," she recalls. "The possibility of danger itself, though, didn't bother me. What I did worry about was they might cancel the orders when Andy was already here." No such thing occurred. The family sat up 22 hours on a flight to get here, arrived to find the dependents expecting to be pulled out at any moment. In time, however, the hubbub subsided,

Today, the Nelsons are well settled in Saigon. They're pleased with the children's school and playmates and see no evidence that the tense atmosphere affects them. Liz carries on an active social life, recently volunteered to conduct classes in English at the American-Vietnamese Association. The family entertains a steady stream of friends, many of them "temporary bachelors" from Andy's unit.

And danger notwithstanding, Liz has fallen in love with Saigon. She's learned already which restrictions must be obeyed strictly and which bend a little. Thus, with her maid Thi Hai, Liz barges around Saigon on her bicycle, exploring shops, wading into the Central Market, striking up acquaintances. She declares that "you've got to remain aware and alert," confesses that she "often worries about the children," but adds she has had no trouble and has seen little evidence of any. "I think the terrorism aspect is dying out," she says.

Some authorities here agree. They point out that the worst outburst came just after the coup that ousted Ngo Dinh Diem and attribute it to the fact that the government's intelligence network broke down during that period. Under the new government, these sources maintain, terrorism has become less common, and a number of incidents have been nipped in the bud.

LEARN TO SWIM. At least half the persons in this country would drown if they had to swim for their lives. Last year there were 6,500 deaths by drowning. Approximately 50% of the population consists of nonswimmers. These allegations are made by Robert O'Donnell, director of the N. Y. Safety Council, who says drowning ranks fourth among fatal accident causes, outnumbered only by traffic accidents, fire and falls. He urges all Americans to learn how to swim.

BANKRUPTCY. Newest racket in the U.S. underworld is bankruptcy. Here's how it works. The mob gets a "front," supposedly a respectable business man, to purchase any operating. business. The "front" then buys as much as possible on credit. He sells the goods at cut-rate prices, takes the money and deposits it in a numbered account in a Swiss bank, Presently he declares bankruptcy, admitting that he spent much of his firm's money on high living. The law can do nothing to him. In the past 4 years gangstors have boosted the fraudulent bankruptcy rate by 40%, the loss to creditors from $100,000,000 a year to $350,000,000. The Department of Justice admits the racket is rapidly getting out of hand.

AIR AGREEMENT. According to the Warsaw Convention, air passengers flying overseas are now limited to a maximum of $8,300 in damages in case of accident. If you believe your life worth more than $8,300, take out additional insurance, either from an agent or an airport machine.

INSANE POLICEMAN. Suppose several persons were sent to jail on accusations and evidence supplied by a police officer. Suppose it was then revealed that the officer had been insane for years. What would you do? The London Metropolitan police are now in the midst of that dilemma. Detective Sgt. Harold Challenor is alleged to have planted pieces of brick on eight people arrested last July after demonstrations against the Greek royal family on their visit to England. He has been charged with making false statements, unlawful arrests and fabricating evidence. A prison doctor who examined Challenor said he was a paranoid schizophrenic who had been abnormal for a very considerable time. More than $5,600 has already been paid in compensation to people concerned in his cases, and the Director of Public Prosecutions is now reviewing more than 20 cases handled by Challenor, supposedly a top gangbuster.

PREDICTION. In the next 10 years 38,000,000 Amoricans -- an average of at least one member in each household -- will be killed or injured in a motor accident. This information is contained in a Call to Action fact sheet compiled by the insurance companies of the Kemper group. To alleviate the situation. the insurance committee suggests the following steps: (1) better law enforcement; (2) considering driving licenses as revocable privileges rather than irrevocable rights; (3) state laws to make seat belts and safety devices compulsory.

BLACK LUFTWAFFE. The new African state of Tanganyika and Zanzibar has hired West German air crews to train and organize its air force. Other independent African states may follow suit.

POVERTY & PLANNING, In all the millions of words mouthed by politicians on the war against poverty, hardly anything is ever said about a major cause: uncontrolled fertility among the poor and uneducated. Donald B. Straus, chairman of the Flanned Parenthood Federation of America, blatantly placed the problem before the House Education and Labor Committee: "The vicious cycle of poverty persists in part because couples on the lowest rung of the economic ladder tend to produce the largest families. The poor in this country do not want more children they cannot feed. It's simply that they do not know how to prevent them -- this is particularly true of uneducated Negroes --and relief agency rules generally forbid their being told. If President Johnson is genuinely serious about ending poverty in this country, he will start seeing to it that child planning information is made available to the poverty-stricken and uneducated, in line with the teachings permitted by the various churches.

UNDETECTED CRIME, Professor Leon Radzinowicz, director of the Cambridge Institute of Criminology, is the authority for the statement that 85% of all crime in Great Britain and probably elsewhere goes undetected. The 85% consists of crimes never reported. crimes reported but where the perpetrator is never caught (which applies to two out of three crimes) and, finally, criminals who are apprehended but not convicted.

ver since she was 12, Garifalia Hardy has looked 18. This premature blooming into womanhood has caused her trouble and success - a trouble which will soon involve her in a headline-making court battle, a success which will shortly find her under contract to at least two major film studios.

At 15, Gari Hardy, a Marilyn Monroe look-alike, is 5-feet-7, weighs 123 lbs., measures 36-21-32.

A bleached blonde, green-eyed and enormously photogenic, she has worked in three films: What a Way to Go, John Goldfarb, Come Home and The Art of Love. All these jobs were secured on the basis of her shapely figure, which three years ago brought her a notoriety now scheduled for resumption.

When Gari Hardy was 12 years old, attending the seventh grade in Beverly Vista elementary school, Beverly Hills, she was 5-feet-5, 118 lbs., measured 34-21-32, dimensions admittedly larger than those of her classmates, also 12.

One hot October day Gari arrived at school wearing a sun dress with a high square neck, shoulder straps 13/4 inches in width and a skirt 11/2 inches below her knees. "I had made some brownic cookies for a school party," she recalls, "and I took them to the vice-principal's office. She looked at me, said my dress was indecent and that she was taking me home at once. On the way home we saw my mother at the grocery store. As we drove up, Mummy thought there was something wrong. I got out of the viceprincipal's car, and she said to Mother, 'Mrs. Hardy, here's your daughter. Her dress is improper for school. Cover her up before you send her back."

Indignant and angry, Mrs. Eileen Hardy drove her precocious daughter home, clothed her in a demure sharkskin sailor dress, sent her back to class. She then called on Dr. John French, the school principal, and demanded to know what was wrong with the little sun dress her daughter had been wearing.

NYLONS & A BARREL LOOK

According to Mrs. Hardy, Dr. French told her: "We've had problems with Gari before. She wears nylon stockings-besides, she has a disconcerting barrel look."

"I asked him," says Mrs. Hardy, "if he meant her skirt was too full, and he said, 'No, she's too big up here,' indicating the bust, 'and if you can't cover her up completely, don't send her back to school."

Mrs. Hardy, divorced wife of a Bakersfield cattle-auctioneer, thereupon bought a $25 muu-muu for her daughter. Muu-muus are long, shapeless, sacklike coverings American missionaries introduced to the natives of Hawaii 125 years ago. They hide all physical charms below the neckline.

Before Gari went off to school clothed in her flower-print muu-muu, a reporter aware of the previous day's happening asked her what she planned to wear. When Gari told him a mun-mun, he said he was coming along to photograph her. Mrs. Hardy was most co-operative and welcomed all reporters.

When Gari hit the Beverly Vista schoolyard in her muu-muu, the viceprincipal and the boys' physical education teacher rushed the girl, before the press could have a field day, into the principal's office. Here they tried to phone her mother, called the police, presently took her home, where she was besieged by reporters and photographers. Later Mrs. Hardy received the following letter from the school: "Gari appeared this morning in a dress which we deemed unsuitable for school wear. Since she has been counseled on numerous occasions regarding suitable school dress, we are suspending her for five days for failure to follow directions."

Gari's suspension was played up in the press, and it wasn't long before a call came from Hawaii offering her and her mother a five-day trip, all expenses paid, to the 50th state, "where the wearing of a muu-muu to school is considered no crime." The trip was quickly accepted.

Eventually, Gari returned to Beverly Vista elementary school, a celebrity of sorts. But, according to her mother, her classmates began teasing her-children are cruel-and it wasn't long before the physically precocious girl had a nervous breakdown, was treated for 16 months. Any mention of school during this period, Mrs. Hardy says, immediately sent Gari into temper tantrums and crying fits. When she recovered, the board of education assigned a teacher to her home each day, and Gari was permitted to graduate from elementary school. Gari is now enrolled in a private high school. She has filed a claim for $100,000 against the Beverly Hills school board, charging them with loss of time, health and education. If the claim is denied, she will file suit for the same amount in California Superior Court, according to attorney Ward Sullivan, former partner of the late Jerry Giesler. Sullivan believes his client has a strong case. Certainly when it comes to trial, it will achieve nation-wide press coverage.

PUBLICITY WON'T HURT

Gari maintains that she prefers to earn her fame on her acting ability.

"I don't want to be known," she explains, "as the girl who got thrown out of school. Of course," she adds realistically, "I don't think the publicity will hurt one bit."

It was not publicity, however, which got Gari Hardy her first film break. It was her striking face and even more striking figure. Last year, when she was 14, she and her mother were snacking in the Bevetly Wilshire drugstore. They were approached by Joe Whitman, an old friend and father of actor Stuart Whitman.

"Gari," he said, "I want you to meet someone." He introduced her to producer Frank King, who thought she was at least 20. King said, "You're a beautiful girl. Are you an actress?"

"No," said Gari, "but I'd like to be." "Go see Leon Charles," instructed King. "He's a dialogue director working at 20th Century-Fox."

Cari and her mother made an appointment with Charles. When they turned up on the set of What a Way to Go, Leon Shamroy, ace cameraman who worked in most of Marilyn Monroc's films, was amazed at Gari's resemblance to the late star.

"It's incredible," he said. "You could be her twin."

Immediately Garl was hired to work in What a Way to Go. The director of the film, Lee Thompson, then signed her for his next, John Goldfarb, Come Home.

Gari Hardy was on her way.

Today, this 15-year-old tribute to nature's wonders is approaching the rise to a long and lucrative screen career with confidence and enthusiasm.

Untutored and as yet completely unproven as an actress, she is endowed with curvaceous physical assets and an ambitious mother who will get her more publicity than any salaried press agent ever could.

Remember the name—Gari Hardy. She may be another Marilyn Monroe.

Editor's Note: Chicago-born Lee Tully, approaching 40, is touted these days as one of the potentially great monologists in show business. Tully, a stand-up comedian, features topical material tinged with satire. Originally an All-City basketball star in Chicago, where he played for Tuley High, Lee broke in as an apprentice comic on the Borsch Circuit, then went to work for Ben Blue as a straight man. Married and the stepfather of his wife's two children by a previous marriage, Tully now lives in New York, where at the top nite spots he tells such jokes as these:

I try to keep up with foreign affairs, but the Cuban situation really puzzles me: The capital of Cuba is Havana; the government is in Moscow; and most of the people live in Miami Beach!

my favorite jokes

by Lee Tully

A small African country sent word to the United States that its people were starving. So our State Department sent the people there a 16-piece jazz band -and they ate them!

One of the biggest problems our country faces today is the state of our economy. The United States is making more money this year than Europe and Asia know what to do with.

"After careful examination," said the doctor to his patient, "I'm sorry to tell you that you have only four hours to live. Is there anyone you would like to see before you go?"

"Yes," answered the patient, "another doctor."

In America, where we spend millions of dollars a year just on health alone, is it any wonder that we have so many healthy doctors!

Many people believe that because of the World's Fair, hotels in New York have doubled their rates. Not true. Some have tripled them.

But don't worry or change your plans for visiting the Fair. You can still get a beautiful room for $12 a day . . . Of course, if you want to stay overnight, it's extra.

Lunderstand that a full-blooded Indian was hired as an extra bartender to handle the rush business this summer in New York. He didn't last very long. He asked his first customer, "What will you have?" When the customer said, "I'll take a Manhattan," the Indian charged him $24!

I have often wondered why it is that doctors write their prescriptions in Latin, but now I think I've finally figured it out. The doctor is actually writing a note to the druggist which says: "I've got mine-now you get yours."

My wife is a light eater. The minute it gets light, she starts to eat . . . She is dying to move to Beverly Hills, where all the big movie stars live. She says we'll start out on a small scale---just a swimming pool and tennis court. Then the next year we can build the house!

We have two dogs at our house, but we never let them sleep with the kidsthe kids bite!

South of the border, a native Latin spectacle produced for the benefit of Americans is putting a strain on breeding farms producing cow's husbands. It is the Sunday bullfight program that calls for six bulls a week, in corrida season, and bulls are non-reusable for an easily understandable reason. There's no problem of crossing the border and returning again for the increasing numbers of aficionados—bullfight fans—among Americanos visiting Tijuana, Baja California. So, Sunday is a working day in Tijuana economy for the great number of residents involved directly or indirectly in the business of bullfighting and serving the tourists attracted thereto. Today's cover color photo by Rich Roberts captures the drama of the bullfight, and there's more on Page 10 about this attraction and a visit across the border.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION RECALLS

Oddities of Party and Presidency

By Hoyt McAfee

WHEN Republicans rise to the challenge of picking their presidential nominee in a San Francisco convention starting Monday, they may produce a surprise or two. Even so, it is a safe bet it will be no match for the blockbuster which came out of the Republican convention in 1880. In that one, Republican delegates turned to an outspoken non-candidate and literally rammed the nomina-tion down James A. Garfield's throat!

After 34 frustrating ballots, that national convention re-mained deadlocked. No one of the three contenders-Ulysses S. Grant, Gen. Sherman, or James Blaine could muster enough votes to nail down the nomination. Promptly, then, an admirer proposed Garfield's name for consideration.

In response to that Garfield bounded to his feet and shouted: "Please disregard that, Mr. Chairman! As much as I appreciate the compliment, I am in no sense of the word a candidate. May I add for emphasis: I have no in-terest in the nomination."

BANG WENT the gavel at that moment—and James A. Garfield was ruled "out of order!" He continued to protest, but was squelched at every turn. On the 36th bal-lot the "hot potato"—or pres-idential nomination—fell into his unwilling hands! As every history student knows, James A. Garfield rolled on to victory against his Democratic opponent, Winfield Scott Hancock. Later he was assassinated.

For sheer indifference on the part of a presidential "prospect," however, consider the case of Zachary Taylor war against Mexico, Taylor shrugged his shoulders over word that the Democrats had convened in Philadelphia.

Some expected Henry Clay (famous for the remark, "I'd rather be right than be President") to make the grade on his 5th try for the nomination. Instead, he met defeat again. And Zachary Taylor, unconcerned over what was going on at the Democratic national convention, sought rest and relaxation at his home in Baton Rouge, La. One hot July morning soon thereafter, the pustman came by on his appointed rounds. He held out a bulky letter and remarked: "Postage due on it, Mr. Taylor."

ZACHARY TAYLOR refused to accept it and instructed the postman: "Please return it to the sender," That letter contained the official notice of his nomination as the Whig candidate for president!

After his election, incidentally, he gave the stuffed shirts in Washington a real jolt by riding his favorite horse, Whitey, through the White House gate and across the lawn. From that day till Zachary Taylor's death, his mount roamed and grazed freely about the White House grounds!

ANOTHER military hero-William Henry Harrison—also made himself "at home" immediately after entering the White House. His inauguration on March 4, 1841, proved a rugged, tiring experience for him: an occasion marked by his delivery of a recordsetting 8,445-word speech, out of doors and in a snowstorm! Later, although he was by then hoarse of voice and feverish, Harrison decided that what he needed was plenty of his favorite drink — milk. It distressed him to discover that the White House kept no cows on its premises! President Harrison hit upon a ready solution for that.

Accompanied by two aids, he visited the nearest cattle market, selected a cow, and led her back to the White House grounds! An improvised lean-to was erected for her shelter. And until Harrison's death one month later, he — the hero of the battle of Tippecanoe — had all the fresh milk he wanted.

IF THESE true incidents seem to be a bit wacky, stick around for a minute! John Quincy Adams was, from all accounts, the first U.S. President to indulge his yen for swimming in the raw. But he had to steal away to a quiet stretch of the Potomac River for his early-morning "dips."

An enterprising woman re-porter in Washington secretly learned of these outings and followed the President one day. After he had divested crept forward in the dawn's early light and sat on his clothes! Then she spoke up:

"Mr. President, I'm the one who has been trying to interview you for weeks. Now, shall we have a private, friendly chat?" By then, President John Quincy Adams' teeth were chattering. He knew there was only one way for him to retrieve his clothes so he answered every one of the girl reporter's questions rapidly! She wound up with

AS A MATTER of record. no U.S. President has ever been born in June. No chief executive had ever died during May. More presidents have been born in October and November — five in each one — than during any of the other months. More presidents have died on July 4 --three of them - than on any other date.

George Washington's elec-tion as first president of our young Republic caught him in an embarrassing plight. He suffered from an acute shortage of cash. It was his painful experience to have to borrow enough money from a friend — Richard Conway of Alexandria, Va. - to attend

SNAPSHOT CONTEST Sponsored by the Independent, Press-Telegram & The News

Orphan Dollars

By Jack Baldwin

A BANDONED bank accounts-orphan dollars--in the sum of more than $371,000 were transferred into the care and keeping of the State of California in 1963 simply because the depositors, or their heirs, failed to keep the accounts active and their whereabouts known.

And, for all the state knows, some of this money might have been yours!

Last year 1,447 accounts were de-clared "Abandoned" and the proceeds turned over to the state because the accounts had shown no activity for the past 15 years.

California law spells out quite clearly the procedures to be followed by banks, savings and loan associa-tions, credit unions and insurance companies holding funds of persons presumed to be dead or from whom they have had no contact for 15 years.

A survey of six local branch banks indicate the reason savings and checking accounts show no activity such as deposits or withdrawals for such long periods of time are mani-

ONE VICE PRESIDENT theorized that some depositors with relatively small amounts in their accounts simply forget they have the account.

Another official said it was not uncommon for a man (or wife) to open a secret account. Occasionally they

Bad addresses, illegible writing, and misspelled names can be the cause of some accounts being labeled "dormant" and ultimately being declared "Abandoned."

In some cases depositors unfamiliar with the state laws put money into an account and deliberately "forget"

A recent case in point is that of a Garden Grove farmer, Approximately 19 years ago this Orange County citgrower and his wife deposited $500 in a savings account as a gift to their newly-born grandson. The cou-ple planned to "forget" the account, letting it grow with interest, until the boy was ready for college.

However, when the couple went to the bank to withdraw the money they were shocked to learn the money had been turned over to the state four years ago.

WHAT HAPPENED to the Garden Grove grandparents is not unusual. It happens to all accounts "abandoned" after 15 years.

It's the law!

But this does not mean that banks and savings and loan associationsboth governed by the same state laws -are an unsafe place to keep money. Far from it, for the same state stat-utes which caused the bank to trans-fer the "abandoned" money to the state can be used by the depositor to recover his rightful property.

Those who "distrust" banks and hide their cash under the mattress, or secrete it in the phone book, or in the toe of an old slipper, can only turn to their pastor for solace if their hardto-come-by savings goes up in smoke or over the back-yard fence in the pocket of some thief.

Procedures to be followed by financial institutions doing business in California is set forth in the section for Civil Procedure of the California Codes—Section 1500.

SUPPOSE some member of your family dies and you are surprised to last-known address of the depositor —an address often 15 years old.

If the amount left by your uncle had been in a checking account and amounted to $10 or less, you might do just as he did—forget it!

SERVICE CHARGES against the account over the years, in most cases about 75 cents per month, would have eaten up the account. Also the state would charge a minimum of $10 or 1 per cent of the amount (whichever is greater) as a handler's and caretaker's fee. For example, a checking account of $135 abandoned for 15 years office it stopped earning interest. The state is not obligated to pay interest on money transferred to it for safekeeping.

ASSUMING THE bank and the state controller's office complied with the law this is what happened after your uncle's account was declared "Abandoned."

Between June 30 and Nov. 1 of the year the account became 15 years old, the bank notified the administrator of unclaimed property in the Sacramento office of the state controller the account was deemed to have been abandoned. The controller's office then sent a letter to the last known address of your uncle. If no reply was received his name and address was published "in English, in a newspaper of general circulation in the county in which the person was last known to have lived at least once each week for two successive weeks."

In 1963, the list for Los Angeles County was published on Nov. 13 and 20 in the Los Angeles Times and for Orange County in the Fullerton News Tribune on the same dates.

IF YOUR UNCLE had given no address or one that was out of state then the legal notice would have been published in the county in which the bank or savings and loan association has its principal place of business.

The Bank of America's home office is in San Francisco. The Farmers & Merchants Bank, the Security First National Bank, the United California Bank, and the First Western Bank all have their home offices in Los Angeles County. The main office of the United States National Bank is in San Diego County.

However, if your uncle's account had amounted to $25 or less the controller would not have been required to have advertised it. For such amounts he is only required to send a letter to the depositor's last known address.

The controller is authorized to charge the account a pro rata share of the expense of advertising it. He may also charge against the account any expenses incurred in the handling, storing, or selling of any properties given into his care. In the case of abandoned "real property" these charges might be levied for automobile and truck storage, commission for the sale of real estate, or for taxes

SINCE YOUR rich but secretive uncle failed to contact the controller or his bank the money in his account was transferred to the Administrator of Unclaimed Property. Money received by the state is deposited in an account entitled "Abandoned Property." (In 1960 the amount "aban-(Continued on Page 20)

learn you have inherited the proceeds of a savings account heretofore un-known to you. You go to the bank where the account is supposed to be on deposit and are told there is no record of such an account.

Here is what may have happened to your money and what you can do

to get it back,
If, during the past 15 years, your "rich uncle" had failed to either deposit additional funds or make a withdrawal or had not corresponded by letter, memorandum, telegram (the law doesn't mention phone calls) or by any other written acknowledge-ment, the bank or other savings agency may declare the account whether it be savings or checking--

Before funds in the account may be turned over to the state, "reasonable diligence" must be exercised in attempting to locate the "missing" depositor. This effort usually takes the form of a letter mailed to the would have been entirely consumed by monthly service charges. However, since your wealthy uncle left you his money in a savings ac-count, take hope, Policies are slightly different concerning savings accounts compared to those governing personal or commercial checking accounts. Savings accounts carn interest and thus grow through the years.

The lowest amount on which any of the six local branch banks pay interest vary from a minimum deposit of $1 to a minimum of $25. If your wealthy uncle's account was above these minimums it would have grown through the years, but only up to 15 years. Had he "activated" the account with a deposit or withdrawal or by communicating with the bank the account would not have been turned over to the state and the interest would continue to have been added to the original amount.

Beneath abaione's rough shell is a source of prized food.

By Lew Allison

ALIFORNIAN Haliotidae are one of the most primitive kinds of snails, whose shells are found imbedded in Paleozoic rocks.

They also are the prize of the diving sportsman, the delicacy of the epicule, and still important commercially to California.

Abalone once abounded by the thousands on the tidal rocks of most of the California coast. Waders could get them, and once they began to find out how tasty the abalone could be, the waders did get them, eluding game wardens with great hauls of them from dollar size up. The abalone quickly disappeared from such easily accessible places.

But there still are rewarding catches for adventuresome sportsmen who will risk rocks, rough water and the depths to pry them loose.

HALIOTIS IS one of the toughest critters you're likely to come up with -if you do get him up. One doesn't just wiggle down with his swim fins, pluck an abalone off a rock and pop back up ready for dinner.

If you're going after him you'll need a tool. A husky screwdriver will do, or you can purchase a stainless steel or aluminum abalone iron, or use an old-fashioned tire iron. If you get under one before he's aware of you, he can be flipped off his rock with just a good quick pry. But be a little slow about it and that abalone will be clamped down solid and you're going to have a lot of trouble loosening him.

There's a pretty common fable dealing with the abalone fisherman who got his fingers clamped under Haliotis' shell and there he stayed until the tide came up and drowned him. This is reaching pretty far. But there is an element of danger in this sport, just the same, particularly for the free diver who may be out of breath when his fingers get pinched. It's easy to panic down there.

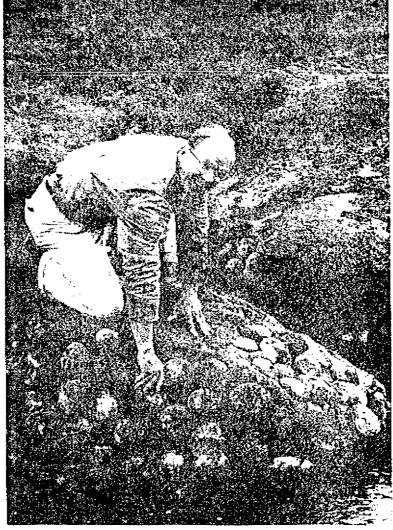

ABALONES FEED on kelp, which means, too, there often are entangling weeds around your prize, and you have to fight these as well as keep on the alert for any unpleasant wild life like cels or sharks.

So the first rule of abalone fishing is pretty obvious—don't do it alone. Even commercial divers with professional equipment recognize that law.

The second rule is not a matter of life and death to you, but it is to the abalone—observe bag limits and legal sizes. The sportsman's limit is five, in combination of all species. Minimum sizes: Red abalone, greatest shell diameter, 7 inches; green, 61/4 inches; pink, 6 inches; black, 5

Man is almost the only predator that depletes the abalone population.

The fishery is stabilized, and each year-the season is from March 16 to Jan. 14-just about the same number of abalone grow to legal size, and the state's total catch is about the same, though the number of divers

Abalones once were for the taking on tidal rocks, like those shown above. but demand has cut numbers until now diving for them is almost a "must."

Wardens watch as closely as possible, and overlimit or undersize catches can be most expensive. An abalone you don't want to keep must be put by hand right back on the rock where you found him, He will move around the rock for a bit foraging for food, but he likes to return right to that smooth spot he's worn and he's not much for traveling

ONCE YOU'VE got five fat mollusks in the hag, you're still a long way from the dinner table. Haliotis is hooked to his beautiful shell by a big muscle in the middle of his back, and that has to be cut before he emerges. The unpleasant business part at the bottom of the creature is removed, the tough outer surface and the edges are trimmed off, leaving about a pound of meat from the mid-dle known as the "foot," or muscle, A rubber tire easing is just as tender

Cut it across the grain with a sharp knife into half-inch steaks. These are placed on a block and massaged, none too gently, with a wooden mal-let. After a while the steak, now somewhat thinner, feels soft and velvery. It can be pounded too much, of course, into a pasty mess; how-ever, hard spots remain if it's whacked too lightly or unevenly.

This has to be a hand process, even in the commercial processing plants.

If you run the steak through a polverizer as you would a cube steak, you will have nothing better than a handful of rubber bands.

Once flattened out tenderly, though, it's a delicate, tasty morsel you have. Salt and pepper the steak, dip it in beaten egg and then in bread crumbs, and fry it in hot oil until delicately brown. Don't cook it too much or it will be tough and dry. Properly done, the finished entree is like a choice yeal cutlet, only better.

ONCE ABALONE were harvested for their shells, which were shipped to China, to be cut into blanks, then shipped back to American manufacturers of ornaments. Today only a few of the shells are in demand for novelties, and the rest are left to disintegrate. The sportsman may clean them and seal the holes to make unusual, beautiful chowder bowls.

Orientals developed the use of abalone for food early in California his-tory. At one time many were dried and shipped to China until state law prohibited this too-rapid depletion. Canning never proved profitable. To-day about six million pounds are harvested commercially each year about half of them in the north-cen-tral area, chiefly near Murro Bay, and the other half in Southland waters, mainly off the channel islands.

There are processing plants at Santa Barbara, Newport Beach and San Diego. There the steaks are frozen to be moved to distributors, who market them mainly to restaurants and hotels. They can be hought at retail at a relatively few markets that offer seafood specialties.

A DIVER covering one to five miles of the rocky ocean floor in a day may send 20 dozen or more abalone in bags up to his companion, or two partners, in the boat above. For these they may receive $3 a dozen at the plant. The commercial diver, who operates under state permit, may not take abalone in water less than 20 feet deep and his catch must conform to minimum sizes. With SCUBA equipment—air tanks—the skin diver may invade this harvest ground in the depths. But usually the sportsman keeps closer to shore, and with a little experience he can take his limit with no more equipment than fins, face mask and something to pry loose the reluctant gastropod.

Commercial interests blame water pollution for depletion of the abalone from the shores of this area. Conservationists are more likely to blame the game hogs. At any rate, commerdivers have been forced out to the islands for their livelihood-mostly Santa Barbara and San Clemente Islands and a relatively small fishing grounds near San Diego.

Globe-Trotter With Sails

Known around the world, the 40-foot "Newporter" ketch (above) is the development of C. E. Ackerman, Orange County boat builder, who designed them for utility and comfort.

By Lou Jobst

PRANGE COUNTIAN C. E. Ackerman's yearning to make sailing a less Spartan business has put the name of Newport Beach on every sea of the globe.

Ackerman is creator of the renowned 40-foot "Newporter" ketch, possibly the world's most sought after and best known medium-sized sailing vessel.

And, undoubtedly, the most famous of the famous breed is Newporter No. 49, better known as the "Black Swan."

Named by its owner, the late motion picture idol Tyrone Power, the sailing career of this storied and beautiful craft is a modern Odyssey.

Boatbuilder Ackerman conceived his "dream boat" design during a two-year, 15,000 mile voyage through the South Pacific

HE LIKED to say he began work on creating the 11-ton ketch-rigged craft when he stretched out on the cabin deck of the 45-foot South Seas schooner in an effort to find the section of the boat with the least pitch and roll for the purpose of creating a level galley.

At the time of Ackerman's cruise, sailing was back-breaking work with few conveniences and less comforts. You were considered soft if your boat carried an auxiliary engine or even had a toilet aboard. Cabins were small, stuffy and conducive to seasickness.

Few women were attracted to such a life, and the wife of the serious yachtsman was likely to become a "boating widow."

Ackerman set about on a stem-to-stem, top-of-the-mast to bottom-of-the-keel study of his schooner and, during a two year period, developed blueprints for an airy and light craft capable of comfortably carrying six to eight persons.

Features conducive to comfort abound are shown in this view of the main cabin which includes charcoal side.

MAKING EXTENSIVE use of fiber glass, he built a boat that featured a wide main cabin with dining, sleeping and head room (6 feet, 4 inches) for four adults and a deckhouse stateroom for two others. He installed such unheard of luxuries as a cabin stairway (eliminating a hand-over-hand ladder), a fully-appointed modern galley and shower and bath. He redesigned the usually uncomfortable cockpit into a lounging station for eight persons. He even put in a charcoal-burning cofonial fire-

The completed boat weighs illitons, has a waterline length of 32 feet, a 13-foot beam and carries 837 square feet of sail-She can do nine knots.

Ackerman had planned to sail his "dream boat" back to the South Pacific, but was prevailed upon to sell his craft. He built another and then another until his six-month stay on the beach had stretched out to 17 years and nearly 100 "New-

Corridas for the Yankee Dollars

By Rich Roberts

OST sun-loving residents of Southern California find it easier to leave the country than to leave the

This peculiarity of Southland living offers the opportunity to participate in another way of life in a foreign country—Mexico — without such international nuisances as visas, injections and travelers' checks.

You don't even need to bring your toothbrush, unless you brush after every meal, because it's a cinch to be back across the border and home by bedtime.

But although Mexico is, unmistakably, a foreign country, the activity and economy of Tijuana, Baja California, is geared to the United States.

YOU SPEAK your own language and observe your own customs, privileges granted freely by your hosts because you are also spending your own money.

The chief single tourist attraction during the warm months is bullfighting, the Latin nations' traditional corrida, a Sunday afternoon spectacle of blood and bray-

ery. Even this, in Tijuana, is presented primarily for the benefit of Americans from north of the border.

Because of the tourist trade Sunday is a working day in Tijuana, A survey showed that the largest group attending the bullfights comes from the upper Southland area; next are tourists from other parts of the U.S., followed by people from the San Diego

THE POOR Tijuanan seldom manages to get, out of his pottery shop between the hours of 4 and 6 p.m. when the bullfights are in swing. Many who have visited the bullfights prefer to leave their cars on this side of the border, Tijuana traffic is Mexico's answer to Destruction Derby.

For a dollar one may park a car on this side of the line at any of several convenient lots located about 100 yards from the border.

Then for 50 cents per person-with a full load-one of the eager Mexican chauffeurs will hustle you into town or directly to Plaza El Toreo, the downtown bull ring--sort of like taking the jalopy, and leave the driving to Scrape.

But it is suggested that the standard 50-cents-per-person fare be specified before you enter the machine.

THE OTHER bull ring, Plaza Monumental, is a longer drive and the going rate is a dollar a head. Monumental, the "bull ring by the sea," operates in July and August, Plaza El Torco in September.

Tickets are $3.85 to $12.65 at the ring.

With bullfighting winning more patrons from north of the border, Tijuana has become a corrida center.

This weekly dispatch of a half-dozen bulls puts a strain on the breeding farms. While Tijuana cabbies have long since learned how to reclaim used cars, nobody has figured out how to reclaim used bulls.

But whether you share the Latins' devout understanding of the corrida or regard the whole thing as a ghastly exhibition of cruelty to animals, it does make for an interesting afternoon.

The taxi ride alone is worth the price of admission.

Trumpeters signal the phases of the bullfight, taking cues from judges seated below who award trophies.

INGENIOUS USE of flower arrangements in the remodeled and enlarged residence of Mr. and Mrs. Buford Moore, 5218 Ebell St., has resulted in what friends of the Moores call a flower garden home.

From the street face, the dwelling would be termed neat, attractive but rather small. Changes that include additions have altered its actual complex, however. And Mrs. Moore has been responsible for planning and executing all of the interior decorating as well as much of the manual labor, including knocking out walls, to bring about her concepts of theme and comfort.

A large bay window in the living room was one of the first alterations made in the home, adding fresh qualities to both the living room and the exterior of the house. In the center of the window, Mrs. Moore placed a high pedestal supporting one of the handsome flower arrangements.

A CURVED black sofa faces the window across the room. Small occasional chairs in white are nearby.

The kitchen has been completely redone with new cupboards, cabinets, built-in appliances and work areas. A wall of the kitchen has been knocked out and made into a wide archway leading to a large family room with its own private bath. Color tones are aqua and green. A long sofa faces the fire-place across the room. Twin chairs in olive green are at right angles to the sofa viewing the TV in the corner.

The dinette set in the kitchen overlooks the family room and the family may watch TV when at informal meals. When entertaining guests, the rooms merge as one large unit.

ADJOINING THE family room is a large, closed in lanai, where, in a tropical setting, are a sofa, accasional chairs, coffee tables, a small dining set, and various colored lights placed around the ceiling.

The use of the flower arrangements is one factor that gives the home its individuality. There are flowers in a hanging basket above a dinette table in the kitchen. A large cluster is on the other side of the balcony by the table. Near the glass wall in the family room, overlooking the garden, is a large plant. Mrs. Moore has blended the artificial with the real in such a way that a second glance is needed to see which is which.

7HEN your food is wellchilled, and your luncheon is well-planned, success is assured. So, the next time you invite "the girls," surprise them with a well-chilled soun and festive sandwiches Chilled soups are an established feature of continental cuisine; there's Spanish gazpacho, French Vichysoisse, fruit soups from Scandinavia, and many more. Why not try your hand at a frosty soup and win yourself a reputation as a gourmet chef?

This recipe for Chilled Buttermilk Soup takes its inspiration from a popular Danish recipe. It inherits its refreshing quality from old-fashioned buttermilk, a favorite summer drink with generations of Americans.

Preparing the soup is simple and effortless, even on a siz-zling hot day. Beat up an egg, lemon juice, sugar, lemon rind and vanilla, then whip icy-cold buttermilk in your mixer or blender until frothy. Fold buttermilk into the egg mix-ture and pour it all into chilled bowls or a tureen. Serve immediately, and if desired set in beds of crushed ice to keep that Arctic tem-perature. You'll get all the tangy flavor of buttermilk at

Mint leaves and lemon wedges provide a pretty garnish, and dainty open faced sandwiches complete the menu. Give your guests a choice. # WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif., 90812, for origin and meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

PEAR MISS RULE: Please explain the surname BRASHIER—C. J., Long Beach.

C.J.: BRASHIER evolved from the early English term "Braesier" meaning "brass worker." The family ancestor made brass statuary and lamps for use in medieval churches. Ancestors include Reginald de Brazur in 1283 and Thomas Brasyer, 1455. The Brashier and Brasier family coat-of-arms has a diagonal gold stripe between three silver rings on a red shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly explain LAISURE. — M. L., Garden Grove.

Garden Grove.

M.L.: LAISURE and Leisure are modern American forms of the old French surname Le Seur, The source was the village of Seur in central France. Seur deciphers as "on the height," the town located as well as what the ancestral Le Seur family home.

DEAR MISS RULE: What is the meaning and pronunciation of COOMBES—K. C., Long Beach

Long Beach.

K.C.: COOMBES is a dialetical English surname from Combes meaning "at the hillside hollows," the ancestral home site. This name is correctly pronounced "cooms." The family shield is red, emblazoned with a silver-centered X-shaped cross. John Coombs was a Massachusetts citizen of the mid-1600s.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give genealogy on CALLA-WAY. — J. C., Huntington Park.

J. C.: CALLAWAY originated from an Anglo-Saxon English soldier who was given the unusual nickname Gal-Wig This joyous individual was so-named because Gal-Wig meant "singing warrior." This complimentary given name later became the surname of his descendants. Records of 1272 list William Calleway of Devonshire, England, a primary progenitor.

(Continued from Page 15) and was an endearing baptismal name in the early Middle Ages. Lucero means literally, "Morning Star," referring to the beautiful planet Venus, which was shining brightly when the beloved Lucero forefather was born. No coal-of-arms is accessible for Lucero.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please analyze PROO—E. P., Long Beach,

E.P.: PROO is a phonetic re-spelling of the southern French surname Prou meaning "sons of the wise one." Proo can also be an alteration of the English surname Prew designating "valiant and gallant one.

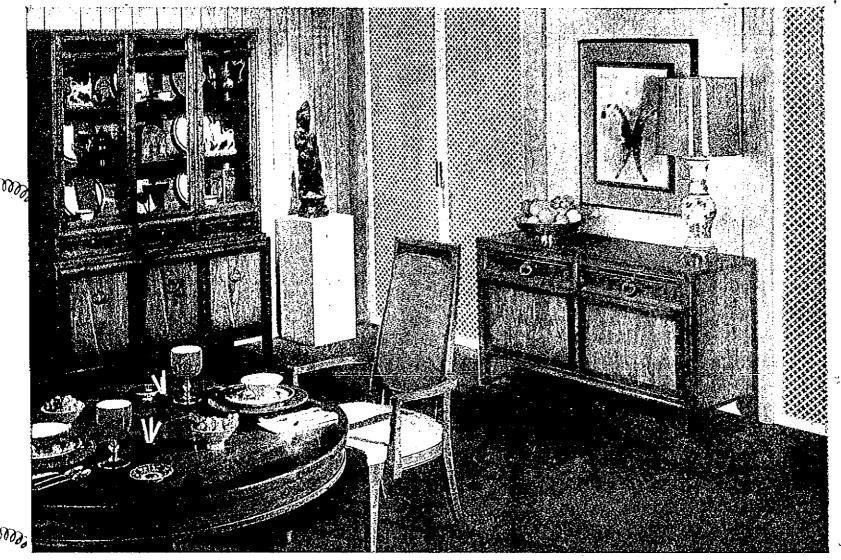

DEAR MISS RULE: May we have data on RIEGER.— E.R., Garden Grove.

E.R.: RIEGER had its start as a 12th century German warrior hero name. "Hrodoger" evolved into Rodo-ger, then Rieger after usage as a surname. This name compliments a Germanic leader for it means "victorious spearman."

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like the background of GO-MEZ, J.M., Westminster.

J.M.: GOMEZ is an old Spanish surname derived from the Gothic warrior title Gunmar-ez. This primordial givenname meant "son of the famous ruler." The Gomez shield is gold, emblazoned with five blue fleurs-de-lis, arranged two, one and two. Modern descendants include Juan Vicente Gomez, president of Venezuela in the early 20th century.

Subtle elegance is the mood, and textured and wood-grained finished hardboard wall treatments are the method in this up-to-the-minute dining room

It's Done With Hardboard

RASHION'S pendulum is well past mid-swing on its trip from casual to elegant. Left behind are "far-out" modern and strictly functional furnishings, while right ahead are the true classics—those materials, textures and design motifs that keep coming back like a song.

One reason for the return to classic motifs is their versatility. Not limited to one room, not dated by novelty treatments or gimmicks, they are enduringly appropriate. They wear well.

The classic elegance of today is a far cry from the 18th century "don't touch" drawing room, for it's built to take the punches of family living—and come out smiling.

For example, such traditionally elegant backgrounds as marble and richly figured wood grains can now be effected with paneling of dent resistant, wipe-clean hardboard. Even the expensive look of filigree grillwork can be achieved with die-perforated panels of this inexpensive material.

Furnishings of many periods are at their best against these classic backgrounds, but especially well suited to their timeless quality is a new "Concerto 75" collection by Basic-Witz, shown here in a dining room.

The interplay of three textures on the dining room walls serves as a pale, elegant foil for the deep-toned furniture and the clear splashes of color in carpeting, lampshade and accessories. These textures—cherry wood-grained finished, the look of travertine marble and filigree panel doors—are but three faces of hardboard's many new surfaces.

The deep-textured simulated marble hardboard (far less costly but more flexible than the real article) makes a handsome pedestal for the Oriental statue which gives the room its Far Eastern flavor.

Capable of producing many decorative moods, these same components—classic-lined forniture and hardboard paneling team up in a bedroom that is long on charm but short on space. Here, too, is clegance. And the prevailing mood can grow, with only a change of the bed-covering and accessories.

Visual stretching of a bedroom's tiny dimensions is accomplished by using the randomgrooved walnut wood-grained finished hardboard wall panels horizontally instead of vertically. Relating the dark finish of the furniture to that of the walls also makes the room seem larger.

Other uses for the filigree hardboard panels include room dividers, folding decorative screens, cabinet doors and shutters. They may be painted to match or contrast with any decor and, like all hardboard products, can be handled with ordinary wood-working tools by the family handyman.

What makes hardboard so ideally suited to today's twin demands of practicality and elegance is its unique nature. An engineered wood product, it can outwear other wood panel products for it is more resistant to moisture, dents and the "hard knocks" of general family use. It also offers the "plus values" of easy cleaning and easy maintenance.

To the wealth of prefinished textures and surfaces—ribbed, striated, perforated, embossed and wood-grained finished—of familiar hardboard paneling another finish has been added: Plastic. This brings hardboard panels into the kitchen, bath, laundry and other areas where high humidity might pose a problem. Special designs in the new plastic-coated hardboard are geared toward kitchen or bathroom use—such as tile effects, pastels and small-scale decorator patterns.

Whether it is used to set the theme of an elegant living room or as a huffer against scuffs and dents in the children's playroom, hardboard ranks as a contemporary classic for its ability to "take it"—and look lovely in the process.

HOW YOUR CHILD LEARNS

Looking for a Job

By Howard E. Kent

QUESTION: "Can you offer some tips on how a new graduate should conduct himself when he goes to be interviewed for a job?"

ANSWER: The United States Department of Labor provides a checklist of items which its counselors have found most important. Most of the items apply to newcomers in the job market as well as to older applicants:

1. Take with you a summary of past experience and education, with names, places, and dates.

2. Have ready a list of three to six people or firms (with names, addresses, and telephone numbers) which may be used as references.

 Take your Social Security card.
 Don't take anyone with you to the interview. 5. Be on time for your interview, not even one minute late.

6. Dress well, but not gaudily. Be clean and neat. If you are a woman, do not use flashy make-up or excessive jewelry; if you are a man, avoid sports

7. Even if you feel tired or a little unwell, sit up and look alert. Don't yawn, slouch or show signs of nervousness.

8. Answer all the employer's questions frankly, honestly, and briefly. Don't hoast, but speak with confidence.
9. If you are asked to fill out a number of forms

Whather it's for surfing on a boat wake, a new sport, or riding the ocean's big waves, the necessary board may be home-made easily, inexpensively from a pattern.

By Steve Ellingson

T'S BEEN A long time coming, but it's here-surfing for everyone on any water anywhere. Heretofore, surf-ing has been limited to those who live near the ocean. Now that same sport can be enjoyed by millions of boating families on any lake or river. The idea is completely new and is called "boat surfing." It's so simple that it's surprising someone didn't think of it years ago.

Here's what you do run your boat (outboards and inboards work equally well) between 8 and 12 miles an hour. The wake from your boat creates a veritable "ocean sea" behind you. Ly-ing on your surfboard, you hang onto a 20-foot length of towline as the boat driver eases up to maximum wake speed. Keep your balance, rise to your knees and, gradually, stand up. Suddenly, you'll feel that "propulsion" drawing you along, Toss the towline clear and you're riding free. A little practice and you'll soon be cutting from wake to wake at speeds much faster than the boat.

UNLIKE the traditional coastal surfers, who ride their waves a couple of hundred yards off shore, the "boat surfer" does his stuff a mere 20 or 30 feet behind a slow running boat. The suction of the boat's wake carries him along for miles on end. The sport is catching fire every-where there are boats, water and people. Before the summer is over, it's expected to rival water skiing as the world's fastest rising sport.

Surfboards are expensive to buy, but inexpensive when you build them yourself. The one pictured here may be used either on the ocean or behind your boat, And any amateur can undertake this project with success when he uses a full-sized pattern. A list of required materials along with lots of easy-tofollow illustrations and direc-tions are included. The pattern also shows how to use the board after you've built

New Theory in Heart Attacks

D. FORBES-ROBERTSON

The fabulous Maxine Elliott, star of the theater of her day, was known as the most beautiful woman in the world. Her English niece, Diana Forbes-Robertson, tells about her in "MY AUNT MAXINE" (Viking, $7.50).

GEORGE ABBE'S latest work, "ONE MORE PUR-ITAN," Windfall Press, Chicage, $2.75), a novella, and so small in size, holds more interest than many a fat novel. The canvas is New England; though sketched mainly in various shades of gray, the characters live in these, a poet's pages, the whole moving and rhythmic prose.

The husband, Neil, a teacher, in order to find life bearable with his wife, Verna, lives with her family. Verna torn between her Aunt ary, who controls the household; her mother, a person less aggressive; and her husband. Norie, the young visitor to their home, brings to Neil's hours a new longing: Norie is that warm fire Neil's household dominated by chilled neurotics. But that is only the bare out-line of the novella. Flesh and blood are here.

Abbe, well known for his etures in Southland colleges and clubs, and as a contributor to the quality magazines, knows New England as few novelists know it.

Economical yet forceful, the novelist-poet wastes not a word in this short but important work. In addition to his human characters, evident is the humanitarian's interest in animals, particularly the hero's pet dog.

The Era of King Edward VII

Edward's boyhood was austere - remember that his mother was Queen Victoria! But the pace of his life quickened.

In his time kings ruled, India was the "richest jewel of the empire," Disraeli, Gladstone, Franz-Joseph, the Kaiser and the Czar were living beings to be reckoned with. So were Lily Langtry, Lord Balfour, Bismarck, Kitchener and a young firebrand named Winston Churchill.

The 500-page volume comes to America after months on the best seller lists in Britain.

EVEN IN backward Asia women have achieved a new public status in recent years. "WOMEN IN THE NEW ASIA" (Columbia University, $10) describe the impact of that change on the private and the domestic lives of both men and women in a number of countries in Southeast Asia. Peel cantaloupe deep enough so it is all ripe. Next, cut off one end just large enough to take out seeds and clean out. Have gelatin prepared and pour into cantaloupe and replace end. Set in dish or container so it will sit upright until gelatin is set. Next take cream cheese that has been softened and spread all over cantaloupe and put back in refrigerator until set. # Secret War in the Kitchen

By Ruth C. Ikerman

EVEN ON days when all seems serene in the fam-ily kitchen, the housewife may be in the middle of a new battle in the constant tussle with nature,

Right now I'm trying to win an argument with a beautiful orange persimmon by persuading it to ripen fast enough for me to bake a batch of cookies by next Saturday, it would take a safe-cracker's tools to even dent the skin of this delicious fruit when it is intent on keeping its skin intact.

Why fruit as good to eat as this should object so heartily to becoming the ingredients for something so tasty as a persimmon pudding, I'll never understand. But they are sure fighting back and right now seem to have won round 15, but I'm going to turn them one more time, hoping for success.

When I bring the pudding finally to the table, else in the family will have any idea of the battles of the secret war which this housewife has been waging with the ripening fruit,

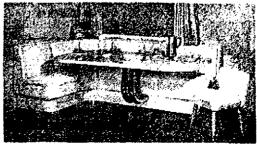

THEN THERE'S the housewife's battle with seeds in lemons and oranges. Seeds which stick like they were growing in mucilage when you try to pry them out first with a spoon or fork will slip out like greased lightning and fly clear into the bottom of the pie custard. Then you must stir and stir to get the seeds out of the flavoring before the pie goes into the oven.

But the real battle victor in most kitchen wars at our house is that choice piece of walnut hull which merrily mixes in with the choicest of the white meats. You can't get it out without spooning through all the rest of the fruit cake you are mixing.

And why try, for it is al-ready firmly imbedded in the piece which is destined for your most critical relative to put into her mouth at a family dinner, The wny that wal-nut hull with unerring accuracy finds that particular slice in any given loaf is final proof of the superiority of nature over the housewife in the secret wars in the kitchen.

Red abalone are the principal commercial species for the north-central part of the state. Most are taken from a 25-mile área around Morro Bay, some from San Nicolas Island and a few near San Diego, but they are rare along the southern coast. They are the largest of all abalone and draw the highest prices. Sometimes they are found over 11 inches in diameter but average nearer 8 inches. The reds are found in active surf, seldom incoves or quiet water. Most of them are at depths of 35 to 50 feet, although many are taken between high tide mark and 25 feet.

PINK ABALONE, the important commercial variety of the southern area, are plentiful off the channel islands and prefer quiet coves and inlets-an advantage to the Southland skin diver. They are most plentiful between 20 and 80 feet, but are found from the tidal rocks to depths as great as 180 feet. They may be as large as 10 inches, averaging 6-7 inches. The pinks have been fished commercially only since World War II. They now account for almost half the state's total product,

Also likely to be found by the skin diver in this area are black and green abalone, both of which like shallow water. Greens, easily taken. have been heavily exploited, but still make up about 20 per cent, of the southern commercial catch. Because their meat is not as attractive as the pure white meat of pinks or reds, the green abalone is not as highly prized. The blacks are abundant, but because of their small size and darker meat---which is not, however, inferior in quality-they are not much sought.

If the abalone become extinct, it will be because of game hogs and pollution, and not the fault of the female abalone. During a given couple of days of late spring a six-inch fernale may release more than two million eggs into the sea, there to be fertilized by the male's sperm. Free-swimming larvae hatch the water and after two or three weeks begin to grow a shell, then slowly sink to the bottom to fasten themselves to rocks where, if living conditions will support them, a limited number of survivors will live on algae they can scrape off. By one year they have attained the size of an inch and begin consuming seaweed, and within four to five years they have matured at three four inches in diameter. Their rate of growth from that time on depends on environment.

the boat, was charmed by her and bought her from Richmond. He painted the hull a shiny black and dubbed her the "Black Swan" for a swashbuckling Techniswashbuckling color film he had made,

When he was sent overseas to make a film later that year, he put the "Black Swan" aboard a freighter and shipped her to the Mediterranean island of Majorca. He intended to make a cruise. aboard, but was fatally sticken by a heart attack while on the set of the movie, "Solomon and Sheba."

"THE BLACK SWAN" was bought by an RAF flier who, during 1959-60, sailed it throughout the Mediterranean, touching most of the famed ports and landfalls of the area. Renamed the "Black Moth" in 1960, she was taken out into the Atlantic, up the coast of France to England. After re-fitting, including the installation of electronic gear and a Mercedes Benz engine, the Newporter 49 set out in Sept. 1961 on a south Atlantic crossing to the western hemisphere. The 10,000mile voyage via Gibraltar, North Africa, South America and the Barbados ended 11 months later at New York.

The trip, considered one of the classics of modern sailing, has firmly established the Newporter as a globe-trotter in a field dominated by generally much larger vessels.

Lively Fish for a Dead Sea

By Bob Young

CALIFORNIA'S largest lake, the Salton Sea, was once a dry and desolate stretch of desert wasteland. Today it provides one of the most remarkable sports fishing areas in the nation.

On pleasant spring and winter weekends, the Salton Sea is dotted with the boats of fishermen. Certainly there's nothing unusual about that, for many lakes attract numerous weekend fishermen. But fishing in this 340-squaremile body of salt water is unique in one respect; every game fish in it belongs to a salt water species transplanted from the ocean. Salton

Young fisherman and corvina he took from Salton Sea, casting a small, wobbling spoon from the shoreline.

Sea, which once supported only a few mullet that got into it through irrigation water, now has a population of sports fish which run into the millions.

Success of this fantastic fishing program can be directly attributed to the California Fish and Game Department working with the assistance of Dr. Boyd Walker of UCLA, who supervised the three-year study of what type of fish might survive and thrive in the dense salt water.

BECAUSE of the peculiar character of the sea — high salinity, and water temperatures which frequently near 100 degrees — it seemed an almost hopeless task to introduce a fish that would live. And, as a matter of fact, since 1920 a total of 34,000 fish, drawn from 35 species, 27 genera and 15 families—ranging from trout to tortuavahave been tested in the Sea. Till 1955, only two, the constal mudsucker and the gulf croaker, both bait fish, survived.

The croakers made an explosive growth and in a few years, they numbered in the millions. The ability of the croaker to adapt itself spurred interest in developing the sports possibilities of the lake, A "shot-gun" plant of other species was made and they came up with a bell-ringing success. Both the sargo, a small, tasty game fish, and the orange-mouth corvina, made the grade. It was especially encouraging in the case of the corvina, a popular fish with the sportsmen in the Gulf of California and a fish cldsely.", related, to the so-called sea trout of the Gulf of Mexico. In additions to being able to withstand wide ranges of salinity, food and water temperatures, the corvina has other advantages: it is an excellent fighter, will take artificial lures, is an excellent food fish, and sometimes reaches rather large sizes. One specimen netted by the Fish and Game men weighed more than 40 nounds!

THE SARGO, also a very desirable food fish, reaches a size of only 10 to 12 inches, but fishermen like it because it is a bluegill type fighter, caught on bait, and is a good pan-sized fish.

At the present time, the greatest limiting factor in the number of fish is probably the food supply; but artificial reefs have been dumped into the Sea which will attract pile worms and other food for the fish. Icthyologists are continually seeking out new ways to enlarge the crop of available fish.

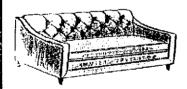

Corvina are astonishingly strong and when the pressure applied they come exploding from the water like a tarpon. They make short, incredibly fast runs which test both the metal of the reel and the mettle of the fisherman.

Happily, these fine, fighting fish may be caught from both boat and shore with nearly equal success. The best fishing time is during the spring and fall. Although the fish bite well in the summer, the desert weather is discouragingly hot. The Sea is ringed with accommodations of all sorts, including those for campers, There are ramps and boat basins at various offler sites along the shore.

Twenty-two years ago Mrs. Arnett and her husband bought a home out on Pine Ave. where they had ample space for pets and the place became a refuge for stray cats. The Ametts turned no cat away even though the veterinary bills, food costs, and advertising were fantastic, Mrs. Arnett became interested in the Humane Society which at that time was very active.

THERE ARE other individuals-but not enough-who share Mrs. Arnett's feelings. Mrs. Linda Evans of Long Beach is one. I was in a veterinarian's hospital when she came in with several ladycats for surgery. # Exec's-ercises

Ight vein but with a serious purpose, a small booklet, "Exec's ercises," has been prepared by the YMCA in the interests of physical fitness, and the Y urges that the suggested exercises be applied to daily routine. Obviously, the exercises fail to provide a complete physical fitness program, but are supplemental and a step in that direction. The Y hopes that the booklet, a series of captioned line drawings, will help the executive who finds it difficult to get needed exercise. Southland Magazine hopes to, too, and presents the exercises with captions altered slightly to fit the lines of type.

Iris may be planted in bare-root form in mid-year and some varieties of bearded iris will bloom twice a year.

By Joe Littlefield

EEARDED IRIS are not only a garden favorite today, but they were one of the favorite flowers of ancient times. These levely blossoms were named after the Greek goddess Iris of the rainbow who was the fleet-footed messenger of Zeus and Hera.

These flowering plants were grown by the ancient Greeks on the graves of their women, because one of Iris's duties was to lead women's souls to the Elysian Fields.

Charles V of France chose the form of the bearded iris "Fleur-de-Lis" as the royal emblem of France.

Today, bearded iris have become so improved in size, form, and color variations, that they merit choice spots in our gardens. What's more important, hybridizers have, and still are, introducing more varieties that are repeat bloomers, "remontant iris," those that flower at least twice a year, and some long-er than that. This makes them even more desirable where gardeners seek more color in their gardens rather than just restful "greens."

IT IS with some trepidation that we name some of the repeat bloomers, those that flower more than once a year or the winter bloomers, because we'll be naming some of the older varieties, and one of them in particular (which we don't want you to quote us when you ask the iris specialist for it) is Blue River. This cornflower blue iris has a fresh fragrance like the hardy outdoor violets when first picked.

variety, onco bred-Wenonah a soft powder blue veined white, a lower grower than the fleur-de-lis bearded type. There are more varieties of these repeat bloomers, and newer varieties, too. Check with an iris specialist about them.

Remember that bloomers will suffer frost damage if you grow them in areas where the frosts are quite frequent.

BEARDED IRIS may be grown in full sun or partial shade, Planted along a walk or driveway they present an informal hedge type planting.

July is a good month to dig up old iris clumps, refreshen the planting area with some well decomposed manure or compost soil mixed with bone meal. The old clumps should be separated and the young plants reset.

Be careful that part of the top surface of the rhizome is above the soil line.

Iris plantings in heavy soil should be planted on built-up "plateaus." This means the planting area of the soil should be two inches or so higher than the rest of the flower bed. Now's still time to buy bare root iris for planting.

Caricature by PETE WILLETTE ALFRED CORNWELL

Champagne and Candlelight

NOTHING in the whole beautiful world pleases Alfred Cornwell more than designing a new treat to enchant the palates and sensibilities of his patrons.

At his fashionable Alfred Restaurant, 700 E. 45th St. near Atlantic, Alfred once again has created a masterpiece. Called Champagne and Candlelight, this marvelous dinner includes a broiled filet mignon with wonderful mushrooms and a Bordelaise sauce. Since this is an Alfred creation, naturally it also includes much more, such as champagne (a delightful Hanns Kornell vintage); colorful, tastebud-tingling hors d'oeuvres; .soup du jour or fine salad, vegetables and beverage. The grand finale is crepes Suzette, an extraordinary dessert confection.

The price for that array of goodness really shouldn't be mentioned, since perfection should never be priced. But, for the curious, let us note that it is $4.95, a reasonable sum indeed, when you consider Alfred's surroundings and service. Champagne and Candlelight, incidentally, is featured only Monday through Thursday nights.

Daily and Sunday, Alfred's serves such other epicurean treasures as grenadines of beef, frog legs Provencale, crepes Neptune (French pancakes stuffed with crabmeat), jumbo mushrooms Marianne and numerous fowl and sea food delights, such as pom-pano Key West, an unusual fish affair baked in a vegetable parchment hag. The dinners, priced from $2.75, include hors d'oeuvres, soup or salad, vegetables and beverage.

BERT'S EYE VIEW

Family Failure Television Star

By BERT RESNIK TV and Radio Editor

Bill Szathmary is a family failure.

He says so. As Bill Dana, well, he's ok. As Jose

Jimenez, well, he's alright, ton. But as Bill Szathmary-strictly a family failure.

He hopes newsmen attending the 31st International Convention of the American Newspaper Guild in Long Beach's Lafayette Hotel won't hold that against him when he entertains them at their banquet Tuesday night.

Now you take his successful brothers and you'll see why Bill feels he's kind of let the family down.

There's Irving Szathmary, arrangerdirector-composer, Irving, back in the 30s, was a prime mover in the breakthrough of modern jazz, quite an accomplishment.

Currently, to keep an eye on the family failure, he's musical director of "The Bill Dana Show," It's a bellboy series which returns to NBC-TV for a second-season starting in the fall.

THERE'S AL Szathmary who made it big in the construction business. Cur-rently, he's helping the family failure build his future by serving as Bill's personal aide.

Sid Szathmary has been a violinist with the Indianapolis Symphony for 19

The genius of the family is Arthur Szathmary, professor of philosophy at Princeton University. Arthur graduated from high school when he was 15 years old and received his first degree from Harvard when he

"HE COMMUNICATES on every level there is," said Bitl.

For awhile, the philosophy professor communicated the fact that Bill Dana is his brother. But he's stopped that

It's not that he's ashamed of the family failure, nor would Arthur agree with Bill in the latter's own self-definition.

It's simply that when students realized the philosopher and comedian were brothers, enrollment in the Princeton prof's classes swelled out of proportion.

The knowledge of his popularity has not swelled Bill's head.

"I'm the family failure," he repeated. "I'm the only one who never made it. What you going to do?"

There are a few consolations. Like speaking Freach, German, Spanish and Italian.

Like doing a great deal of the writing for his series.

Like acting in the series, which "is * *

YES, THERE ARE a few consolations. He knows, for example, that when he worked nightclubs, it was always

permissable for parents to bring their children if they didn't mind the youngsters being up late at night. His material was never blue.

He knows that as a performer, there is "nothing like the love you can get from an audience when things go well,"

He believes he's on his way to being a millionaire and that might be "fun"

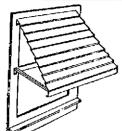

As a matter of fact, when you get right down to it, if he had it to do all over again, he'd do it exactly the same

AND SOMEDAY he may no longer look at himself as the family failure. For he's doing a considerable amount of serious poetry writing. If he can over-come being "self-conscious," he may attempt to get it published.

So far, however, he doesn't think he's written any better poetry than his first

POLITICS '64: Conventions: Political Method or Madness? Political analyst Samuel Lubell and correspondent Walter Kiernan take a light-hearted survey of past conventions at 9 a.m., ch. 9. Focusing on zanier happenings, show also looks at platforms, keynote addresses and nominations.

DISCOVERY '64—First of 3 special programs, illustrated by drawings, political cartoons and newsfilm, to acquaint children with the history of politics is at 2:30 p.m., ch. 7. Howard K. Smith and Edward P. Morgan join host Frank Buxton on a visit to the Cow Palace, and former President Dwight Eisenhower answers questions of Gettysburg 5th graders during an interview outside his office on the Gettysburg College campus. Other specials will air on the eve of the Democratic convention and on election eve.

MEET THE PRESS—Traditionally, series expands to a full hour during convention weeks, dividing its July 10, 1960, hour among JFK, LBJ and Symington, and its July 24 hour that year between Rockefeller and Goldwater. However there was only one taker this time, so Gov. William Scranton (Pa.) gets the full 60 min. at 5:30 p.m., ch. 4, from San Francisco.

CONVENTION PREVIEWS—Believing that conventions, like ballgames, cannot be appreciated without a pre-game score-card, line-up and ground rules, CBS, NBC and ABC all will blueprint what to look for in the byplay of the conclave in San Francisco, evaluating the candidates and touring their own TV facilities on the Cow Palace floor and other key locations. Walter Cronkite anchors a 30-min. preview at 6:30 p.m. on ch. 2 with Huntley and Brinkley hosting a full hour at same time on ch. 4; while William H. Lawrence, Howard K. Smith and Edward P. Morgan are joined by ABC's on-the-air consultant, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower during the ch. 7 hour at 7:30 p.m.

There's More Cameramen than Convention Delegates

By MYRON FEINSILBER

NEW YORK (UPI)-A total of 1,308 Republican delegates will gather in San Francisco to decide on their candidate for the presidency. A total of 1,670 television people will gather to report that decision.

The money spent by the networks for covering politics in 1964, starting March 10 in New Hampshire, is conservatively estimated at 18 million dollars, This amounts to about 26 cents for every vote which will be cast on Nov. 3.

Twenty-four years ago, the National Broadcasting Co. (NBC) dispatched 20 people to Philadelphia to cover the Republicans by "radiovision" and estimated its audience at 50,000 "scattered all the way to remote parts of Pennsyl-vania and Massachusetts."

This year, NBC estimates 100 million will watch the Republicans, Other estimates put the figure at 70 millionroughly the same number as there will be voters on Nov. 3.

THE CONVENTION was planned for TV. Republican officials have vowed to climinate favorite-son nomina-tions acclaiming "the man who" will be forevermore forgotten 10 minutes after his moment of glorious television exposure.

The platform, which ran 15,100 words last time, probably will not be read on the air this time, although what it says on civil rights is likely to be one of the convention's most disputed decisions.

A 40-foot platform has been built in the Cow Palace for the TV cameras, although it will block the view of hundreds of delegates.

And the convention sched-ule was arranged for the ma-jor events to occur during 'prime" evening hours on the East Coast, which is three hours ahead of San Francisco. That means delegates will be taking their seats during the cocktail hour, after the people in the East have had din-

COVERING the conventions is a matter of extreme competition among the net-works. Although all carry essentially the same show, all battle for the largest share of the audience,

Elmer W. Lower, president of news for the American Broadcasting Co. (ABC), explains:

The sponsors of news shows do not pay enough to cover their costs. But the networks feel they win pres-tige and image with news coverage. And there is some carry-over of audience people who tune in one network for the news at 7 p.m. stay with that network when entertainment starts at 7:30

BOB'S BANTER and CHARLIE'S CHATTER

We happened to be chewing the lat the other day with a friend of ours who also runs an independent food store. He asked us how our golf scores had been lately. We both said we wouldn't falk about that, because we didn't have time to play often enough to get those scores down the way we would like.

INC. This friend said if we ran our store (CHERRY AVE. FOOD & LIQUOR MART, 1429 CHERRY

"Trouble with you guys is ... you've got to oversee everything. I buy my meats and produce from brokers over the phone. Saves a lot of time and the stuff's usually O.K. But you two have to SEE everything yourselves before you buy.

"You follows want to handpick everything, like selecting your meat at the packinghouse, and going out into the local fields to pick your produce. Must of the time, who's going know the difference?"

Well, we didn't take time to argue with him. Let him run his store as he sees fit, but we're NOT ABOUT to change OIB way. We think you, the customer, does KNOW the difference... in the fruits and vegetables that are just a little better quality.

And in our meat department (THORNDIKE'S FINE MEATS) we blink you KNOW a good pleee of ment when you see it, and TASTE it. That's why only the best goes into our slump, ABC has hired Dwight D. Eisenhower as a commentator to help cover the Republican proceedings. The "New York Daily News" reported his "salary" to be $200,000.

TV Networks Concentrate on Republican Sessions

Eisenhower will have the right to go on the air whenever he wants to and has agreed to appear at least twice a day from the St. Francis Hotel where he has a suite and where ABC has built a studio for him. He will discuss the convention with James C. Hagerty, vice president in charge of corporate relations for ABC and Eisenhower's press secretary when he was President, and with ABC editor William H. Lawгепсе

Huntley and Brinkley will be back in their glass booth for NBC and CBS will count on Walter Cronkite. ABC has developed the new "anchor team" of Edward P. Morgan and Howard K. Smith.

SOME OTHER indications of the size of the networks' efforts:

CBS, with 522 people working for it, will use a "citywide radio paging system" to contact its own key people. Their vest-pocket receivers will carry instructions from convention headquarters.

ABC and NBC will operate teletype networks to inform their own people what's going on. One teletype will be installed in Eisenhower's suite.

The Europeans, who have always claimed to be appalled at the way Americans pick presidential candidates, will have a chance to watch the process. The Telstar and Re-lay satellites will carry the convention to western Europe.

NBC will use "black beam sound, a system for transmit-ting sound using invisible light" to give it two more audio channels to describe events on the convention floor, Each network is limited by Federal Communications Commission regulations to four audio channels. With the new system, NBC editors can choose which of six channels of sound will go on the air.

Likewise, CBS says it will round in the same street and

TV Personality Counts Heavily

By DICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)-With the Republican National Convention starting Monday, the television personalities of the key political figures again will be closely scrutinized by viewers

Proper advice about how to conduct oneself before the ever-present cameras, especially in the heat of pressure, is important to the politicians, as past events have shown. Even a knowledge of basic technical procedure can be of help.

Dwight Eisenhower's television adviser was Robert Montgomery, the veteran ac-tor. John Kennedy utilized the services of Franklin Schaffner, the director, in a similar capacity.

The politician's most powerful weapon on television is, of course, his personal quality, with which the cameras cannot compromise. But experience with the video medium, and the nature of a setting—as well as professional direction-can be large factors for the man whose career is on the line.

KENNEDY was completely at home on television and used it to his great advant-age. Eisenhower has appeared so frequently on the medium that he is now an old pro at it, but especially in the hands of interviewers with whom he seems to feel at ease. He will, in fact, be an on-the-air con-sultant for ABC-TV at the GOP convention, which, in view of the pressures on a former President at his party's nominating get-together, may well find him making news in addition to interpreting it. Televiewers will see Eisenhower address the convention on its second day.

Those who have carefully followed President Johnson's progress in getting comfortable on television can bear witness to the days when he was far less at ease than he is now before the cameras. The setting and professional advice, however, are not to be underestimated. For instance, Barry Goldwater, Richard Nixon and some of the Kennedys have rarely looked better than when they were informal guests of Jack Paar.

IN RECENT weeks, Gold-water and his chief announced opponent for the Republican presidential nomina-tion, William Scranton, have appeared on separate half-hour paid political broadcasts on CBS-TV. Both are attractive men on television. Like President Johnson in his early video days, both came off personably through their directors and/or advisers seemed to be less than expert in polished aid concerning camera instruction and edit-

GOLDWATER-MILLER TICKET SEEN

Chief, I/ P-T Convention Surease

SAN FRANCISCO ---The 1964 Republican National Convention which will open here Monday will probably do the following things:

1. Nominate Sen. Barry Goldwater as candidate for President of the United States.

2. Nominate Rep. Wil-liam E. Miller, of New York, as candidate for Vice-President.

3. Write a moderate which will compromise the differences between the party's varying desires, and

4. Adjourn sometime on Thursday.

The world "probably" is used for the simple, reason that when some 2,600 or more politically worked up Americans gather in one place almost anything can happen. It is possible, for instances, that the No. 1 spot could go to Gov.

William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania, or to Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York or to someone other than Goldwater. Possible, but improbable.

Likewise, the vice-presidential nomination is not necessarily cut and dried. Perhaps Sen. Goldwater's prevailing mood will change and for a variety of reasons he may choose whose name is not Miller. Undoubtedly considerable pressure will be exerted ton. He may well yield to those pressures on the?" basis that Scranton's candidacy would help bring about party unity. Yet in view of the strong attacks which Scranton has made in recent days upon the policies of Goldwater il would be difficult for Scranton to run easily with the senator from Arizona, Past convention histories show that a Goldwater - Scranton ticsible but not probable.

For excitment and tion, the civil rights platform plank offers the greatest opportunity. Already the so-called "lib-eral" wing of the Republican Party has demanded a wording which goes far beyond that which the likely nominee, Goldwater, wishes to accept. The current word from Goldwater headquarters is that the senator is will-wording which will avoid a head-on party fight. The strategy being followed by the Arizonanis to get the proceedings over with as fast and as smoothly as possible and he will bend as far as he thinks he can on the civil forestall a floor fight. However the "liberals" are pressing hard and may insist upon a plank which declares the recentlypassed Civil Rights Act constitutional a position in direct contradiction to what Goldwater has said. Such wording would obviously be unacceptable to the prospective candidate and it is upon this issue that a convention brawl is most likely to take place.

The role of former President General Dwight D. Eisenhower, could give the GOP meeting a dramatic turn. The

Democrat Policy Blasted by GOP

SAN FRANCISCO (A)-A half-completed Republican platform "indicted" the Democratic administration Saturday for policies which it charged will lead to "a potential parity of power with communism" instead of clear mili-tary superiority for America.

It said that the Johnson administration is in the hands of "federal extremists," reckless in managing public funds and restraining individual freedom and creative

The document on which Republicans will seek to unseat President Johnson in November accused his administration of "weakness before communism," of opening a "hot line first with a sworn enemy rather than with a proven friend," and of having fostered discord and distrust in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization

campaign promises, without fulfilment."

The Republican platform writers, torn among themselves over the writing of a civil rights plank, accused the Democrats of "playing on the just aspirations of the minority groups, encouraging disorderly and lawless elements, and ineffectually administering the laws."

The Republicans asked the American voters this

STUDENT HELD AFTER BARRY SIGN HITS IKE

AMARILLO, Tex. (UPI)
-A West Texas State University student was charged with assault Saturday for allegedly hitting former President Dwight D. Eisenhower with a "Goldwater for President" sign when Eisenhower's special train stopped.

Melvin Phillip Floyd, 23, of Spearman, Tex., denied ha threw the sign at Eisenhower. He said he tossed it at the train but thought Eisenhower had already gotten aboard.

Another West Texas State student was released. The former President doubled up as the sign struck him in the side, but he was not hurt. He had been waving to the crowd as the train pulled away.

After he was hit, he kept waving "V for victory" with his fingers.
Floyd was jailed and

Snub of Ike in Platform Stirs Furor

SAN FRANCISCO (A)-The omission of former hower's name from the first installment of the Republican platform Saturday created such a furor that the platform writers Saturday night were putting it into every available spot in the second installment.

Supporters of Gov. William W. Scranton charged

that the original omission was deliberate and some accused the conservative backers of Sen. Barry Goldwater of attempting a deliberate snub of the former President.

BUT SATURDAY night, Rep. Charles Goodell New York, assistant to the chairman of the platform committee, told reporters midway of the final, closed drafting session:

"We have been referring to President Eisenhower throughout."

SAN FRANCISCO (A)-Rank-and-file Republican convention delegates swarmed into town Saturday and into caucuses that should all but wrap up and deliver the party presidential nomination to Barry Goldwater.

Unless there's another San Francisco earthquake along political lines next week the Arizona senator is going to become the nominee on the first ballot Wednesday. The convention opens Monday.

UNDAUNTED by! Goldilelegate strength, Gov. William Scranton of Pennsylvania fought tirelessly, if futilely, on.

Evidently the senator will be running on a platform built to Goldwater specifications. The 100 redeyed members of the platform committee toiled far Saturday,

The first/half of the platform won't stir up much trouble in the Republican legions, but the second half may lead to a fight on the convention floor over civil rights and other bones of contention between Goldwater and Scranton forces;

The convention votes on the platform Tuesday.

L.a.C. Says: Facing Reality

If Senator Goldwater is nominated the American people will have to adjust themselves to a new kind of candidate—and if elected—President. It will mean a candidate who speaks out on issues without hedging or playing up to different groups with different attitudes. When Goldwater told a reporter that no Republican could defeat Johnson "as of now" he not only gave an honest opinion, but spoke the real opinion of a large majority of Republicans, But his "as of now" was the key part of his statement. It would have been much easier to say-"of course we can defeat him." But we doubt any realistic individual really believes "of course" would have been an honest statement.

Before the California primary election there were even greater doubts. But that election showed there was a widespread surge of conservative reaction in this country. It showed up in Democratic elections in Wisconsin, Indiana and Maryland, where more than a third of the Democrats voted against Johnson in these primary elections. No one can say how these votes will be cast in November. But there are strong indications that the forthright attitude of Goldwater is consolidating strength that can win against Johnson. It is equally evident that a so-called moderate or appearement attitude would give few new votes for a Republican candidate. * *

The revelation of how Goldwater's statements have been distorted and taken out of context is changing the attitude of many people. He gave an honest opinion when he said he doubted any Republican could defeat Johnson "as of now." But he has given many reasons why it can be done 41/2 months from now after a strong candidate brings out the arguments against the Johnson administration and general trend of the Democratic party. In my opinion there is a very good chance of Goldwater winning in November, But this will occur only if he continues his honest approach and the American people adjust themselves to appreciate honest statements and not political ex-

. He has voted his convictions on the constitutionality of the Civil Rights Bill. He voted against the test ban treaty because Russia had only recently broken a similar agreement-and Goldwater demanded safeguards. On foreign aid he says technical assistance and military aid are valuable-but he questions the value of our spending billions of dollars in over 100 foreign countries where 15 years and our $100 billion have brought us few friends-or brought freedom to those we have tried to help. He has voted for every Social Security bill as a senator.

On the farm program he has said-farm production, like any other production, is best controlled by the natural operation of the free market—there is a positive evil in programs that reward people for not producing. The only way to persuade farmers to enter other fields of endeavor is to stop paying inefficient farmers for produce that cannot be sold at free market prices.

It has been a long time since the American people have had such positive statements on vital issues. The frantic efforts to stop his nomination by distortions of his position have consolidated support for his views among conservative Democrats as well as Republicans. He gives the people a choice between paternalism by government—continued, unbalanced budgets and an end of wasteful foreign aid and similar domestic programs. There is a doubt as to whether he could be elected. But he gives the people a definite choice that no other leading GOP aspirant gives. But there is a very good chance that people of both parties will welcome such a change. That is why "as of now" does not apply to next November.-L.A.C.

In the former role he is not expected: to toss any fireworks, in the latter role he could—if he so wishes. It is generally conceded that he most probably will not take any dra-matic part in the proceedings, despite heavy pressure from certain quarters for him to come out against Goldwater and for Scranton. It is now so late in the game that it is questionable whether the General could stop Goldwater even if he so wanted, but an Eisenhower stand on the candidates would undoubtedly serve to generate considerable excitement. However, the General's leanings are towards a quiet, uncontroversial convention and in 'view of 'his aloofness these past weeks, there is little reason to believe that he will change his wing John Birch Society. and other extremist groups.

 Goldwater sought to heat the breach with a declaration that, "we are going to come out of the convention united and fightingwith each other, but with the Johnson administration ...

At the same time he proclaimed that he would withdraw from the White House race if the platform adopted were unacceptable to him. He said the platform should not be used "as a factional wedge or a substitute for judicial or legislative decision."

FORMER President Dwight D. Eisenhower disagreed. In Chicago as he left for San Francisco, the general-still declaring his neutrality vis a vis Goldwater and Scranton — said the platform should recognize the great issues of the times, state the principles and say how they should be applied. But Eisenhower wouldn't say whether it should brand constitutional the new civil rights law which Goldwater voted against.

Goldwater, after a fiery clash with a Negro member of the platform committee, said with some emotion that he would, if elected, unhold the civil rights statute and work in other ways to end racial incouality. The Negro had questioned the senator's good faith in view of his vote.

Accompanying Ike was his brother, Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, who will place Scranton in nomination. Also typifying the party schism was Sen. Kenneth B. Keating's position An aide to the New York Republican said the senator would not campaign for Goldwater if he is nominated and would run for re-election "on his own record." Goldwater warned that this could "be a tactimistake" which could cost Keating his Senate LODGE called Goldwater 'trigger happy" in relation to the East-West cold war. Scranton demanded that the platform underwrite the civil rights law and thus rebuff Goldwater.

Rockefeller appealed to Eisenhower and former Vice President Richard M. Nixon to break their silence and form a coalition to bolster Scranton's sagging hopes. Also joining the stop - Goldwater phalanx was Michigan Gov. George Romney who pleaded for a platform denouncing all extremists.

Goldwater was reported reliably to have selected GOP National Chairman William E. Miller as his first choice for the vice presidential nomination. He regards the 50-year-old New York congressman as real gut fighter" who thinks like he does and would wage an effective campaign.

In deference to the Republicans, the Democrats, who plan to nominale Johnson at their own wing ding in Atlantic City next month, played dead, although the President challenged a Goldwater pronouncement that his administration is "fiscally irresponsible."

JOHNSON called a press conference at which he presented statistics backed by the American Bankers Association, Henry Ford, Jr., and economists painting a rosy business and fiscal picture. The President said he hopes to give the country "more good news" on the economy this week,

On the turbulent racial rights front, the President appealed for non-punitive enforcement of the rights law "as a landmark of human justice." Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy reported that initial compliance had been "very, very good" though FBI director J. Edgar Hoover went to Jackson, Miss., to open a new FBI headquarters office.

Johnson said Hoover de cided to establish the office "after a survey" and in the wake of the assignment of 50 more FBI agents to Mississippi to search for three missing civil rights work-

Gov. Paul B. Johnson of his plans and solicited his cooperation,

Former Florida Gov. Leroy Collins, head of the Community Relations Service under the rights lam, began calling on state governors to explain the statute and urge voluntary com-pliance among their businessmen and citizens. Collins said that persuasion and conciliation could help avert scars from law suits and street fights.

IN ATLANTA, Ga., however, a motel operator sued the government in a test case for $11 million on grounds the statute had deprived him of liberty and property without due process.

In other areas some hotels and restaurants went out of business rather than admit Negroes, but a majority grudgingly accepted integration. In other news spheres, the Senate Labor Committee approved Johnson's $962 million war-on-poverpackage, with Goldwater and John G. Tower, R-Texas, voting

The United States sounded out its allies on a Soviet Union plan for a United Nations peace-keeping force over which Moscow would have veto power. Johnson found it unacceptable, but did not close the door to negotiations. Meantime the U.S. announced it had put its first underground European missile bases into operation at undisclosed points in West Germany.

This pert miss of many moods is 18-year-old Inger Sande, Norway's entrant in the International Beauty Congress at Long Beach Aug. 5-15. Inger feels at home along the ocean for she halls from the picturesque port of Bergen, where she is a modeller's assistant. A modeller in Norway is not someone who turns pretty girls into models, as you might erroneously guess after looking at Inger. It's a pattern-designer, and talented young Inger is studying hard to become a designer of ladies' clothes. "That is why I want to win the contest," she says with disarming candor, "to have some money to finish my education." A 5-foot-7, 115-pound green eyed blonde, the beauteous descendant of the Vikings measures in at 34-22-36½. Her favorite food is Chateaubriand, her 34-22-30/2. Her lavorite lood is Chatcaubiland, her favorite sport—natch—sailing. She loves animals, goes for John Gavin, Peter Sellers, James Stewart, Doris Day and Danny Kaye, prefers Chopin to the Beatles. Her kind of man? "One who loves dogs, children and, of course, me."

Since 1940, Hollinger reported, the county has sub-mitted 30 bond issue measures. Of these, 13 have car-ried and 17 have falled. Three of those which carried the two flood control bond issues of 1952 and 1958 and ine Marina del Rey Issue, required only a majority vote.

HOSPITAL medical facilities have been most successful, with four out of seven bond projects approved, Hollinger said. Juvenile facilities were approved on three bond issues, but defeated on three.

Three out of seven bond issues for county jail facilities were approved, but voters relected three bond issues for court and general office facilitles, two for the museum and art institute, one for recreation and one for incinerá-

Of the 10 bond issues approved, five were "repeat" items, covering projects which previously had been turned

Final selection of which items, if any, will go on a Nov. 3 bond issue should be made by supervisors by Aug. 18, Hollinger said. This will give the county cousel and registrar of voters time to do the necessary paper work.

Powerhouse expansion Rancho Los Amigos Hospital, Downey, $1,136,000. San Pedro County, Courts

General development, South Coast Botanic Garden, Rolling

Hills Estates, $847,400.
All of the projects on Hollinger's list involve expendi-ture of $500,000 or more. Most of them top $1 million. Two other major projects in clude $6.5 million for replacing existing buildings at Mac-Laren Hall juvenile facility and enlarging it from 148 to 400-person capacity, and $2 million to expand Los Padrinos Juvenile Hall for girls from 310 to 400 persons.

HOLLINGER also had been asked to report on possible construction of buildings by private interests, which then would lease the facilities to the county with the latter having option to purchase.

Hollinger said this method is "much more costly" than a hond issue, and commented that the supervisors "have properly reserved" the leasenurchase method only for essential projects for which other methods are not feasi-

Teen-Agers Take Over U.S.

but what are adults doing? Laughing it up at what teen agers have created to lull their parents into a state of premature senility. Evidence?

"How do you shoot a green "With a green elephant

"And how do you shoot a yellow elephant?"

"Hold his nose until he turns green, then shoot him with a green elephant gun.

IF ALL started with the attack on reason.
Some deep thinkers not so long ago decided that what is really wrong with western civilization is that it puts all its eggs in the basket of reason, and the thing that we have to recognize is that rea son is the enemy.

. This was right up the Teenager's alley. Any parent who has tried to counter the instincts of her young with the sweet saneness of reason will immediately recognize the impregnable wall that goes up just before the offspring goes off mumbling "nobody understands me." The wall makes the Iron Curtain appear as mere gossamer.

THE TEEN-AGE revolution is here and three-quarters of the adult population is already absorbed into the new order, Teen-agers control what goes into films, the radio television and there is a suspicion that the daily newspapers are really written for them.
What makes the whole thing so unbelievable is that adults are paying for all this by lavishing allowances on the young unheard of when you and I were young Maggie.

IT'S NOT that this situa tion just grew. There is sufficient evidence around to indicate that it could be called a plot. Teen-agers are clever all right. They know just what they're doing.

They write in their secret diaries and barricade themselves behind doors on which they brazenly hang signs: "Parents: Keep Outl"

IT IS ONLY by study of their publications that it is possible to get some idea of tlie gigantic growth of the "movement." You have to subscribe to the junior and senior high school news papers. And even then you liave to read between the "Teen-age years," writes John F issue of the Poly High Life, student publication, "are a trying time of life, beside being an experimental one . . . The teen age set is often criticized by adults as being wild and irresponsible. Every teen-ager owes it to himself and his friends to always try to make the teen-age group seem mature and responsible in the eyes of his teachers, parents and other adults."

There is some stuff in there about studying and making good grades, but that is obvi-ously, just window dressing. More evidence of their in tent to take over the world necessary? Okay. Here it is. We have studied the junior throughout the year and nearly every issue has some fea-ture devoted to the Beattles.

THERE'S a good lady in town who is awfully upset over seeing headlines which identify the GOP frontrunner as "Barry." From her complaints to this desk, I gather that she's not merely disturbed by what might be considered overfamiliarity and informality in the headline use of the first name only of a big man—she doesn't think Barry Goldwater ought to have that first name, a fine Irish moni-

When I told her I couldn't see what any of us could do about a decision made by the candidate's parents over 50 years ago, she said she was disappointed in me. There is, she said, more than one way to skin a cat, and she indicated she would take the matter up with Goldwater's political opponents,

I asked her to let me know how she fared. Now there'd be a campaign issue for you!

WHEN I said something of Y the kind once before, a Navy officer friend of mine challenged the comment, but it still appears to me that the proportion both as to popu-lation ratio and the number of service men drivers as compared to others,

These guys are killing themselves off awfully fast. Two more sailors were injured here Friday night, Service identification shows up with tragic frequency in traffic acidents reports. Sometimes the news indicate the highway between here and San Diego must be strewn with Marine accident vic-

What's life explanation? Do these men, whose regular work calls for limited movement and restraint, simply go wild when on liberty and they get behind the wheel of

When it was suggested here some time ago that driving safety campaigns be staged among the service men, I was told bluntly it was aiready being done. If that's so, it obviously needs to be made more effective. The motor accident destruction among these fine young men, in whom the public has a substantial investment, and who are highly valued by friends and family as well as country, is simply appalling.

MAYBE you'll happily never encounter one, but this being the time of year when people get out on the open country, I think maybe I should say something about the palarnello tick

We don't have many dangerous ticks in Southern California, but the pajaroello is here in considerable numbers and seems to be increasing and going farther afield. The pajarcello is mottled brownish gray and is about an inch until he gets to sucking blood. Then he swells up

This tick is not actually poisonous, but his wound can be serious if the victim is allergic to the creature's salivary fluid.

The thing to do if bitten by a pajaroello is to suck out the fluid by mouth application and to apply an antiseptic and sterile dressing as soon as possible. There's no nced, I'm sure, to advise swallowing the fluid once it has been sucked into the

AND speaking of getting out into the open, those who do it here about are more likely to encounter other people than ticks.

A reader just called to ask me, as a reputed mountain man (I love the description, accurate or not), where to go on a week's camping trip nearby that will provide solitude and surcease from constant, contact with the human horde.

I couldn't give much help. Our region does have some lovely mountains, but they're close to a lot of valley houses, and in good weather they're pretty jammed with people. One can't hope for much solitude in any section or facility that is open to

Laguna Pageant in 29th Season

The 29th annual Pageant of the Masters and Festival of Arts opened Saturday at Laguna Beach's Irvine Bowl and will run through Aug. 16. At final curtain, an estimated 250,000 people will have seen and thrilled to living pictures created from well-known masterpieces. Each night in the romantic open-air amphitheatre nestled in the hills at the north of Laguna Canyon, the 8:30 o'clock program will repeat the same 25 masterpieces always followed by the reverent portrayal of "The Last Supper." For most visitors the pageant is a moving experience, richly refined from the days when the festival was new and primarily intended as a site for artists to sell their works. Eight hundred townspeople contribute their time and talent to an endeavor matched nowhere. The Festival grounds open daily at noon, close at midnight.

TRIAL RUNS SHOW L.B. Taxi Riders Get More for $

Long Beach taxicab passengers are getting slightly more than the mileage they pay for, according to a series of spot checks supervised by the City Bureau of Fran-

Twenty trial runs by 10 cabs chosen at random from downtown stands showed that the meters are allowing an average of 70 feet more than the 1.4-mile minimum specified by city rates for a 90-cent fare. Chief Engineer Henry E. Jordan, who reported the re-sults, had ordered the tests in view of charges that Los Angeles Yellow Cab meters are shortchanging customers.

Cabs tested here are owned by the Diamond and Yel-low Cab Cos., which have no connection with the Los Angeles firm. The local companies operate all cabs with city-wide Long Beach permits.

JORDAN AND Officer Jerry Harris of the police traffic division made the test runs over a measured course along Pacific Avenue northward from Third Street.

The 90 cent fare and 1.4 mile course represented 50 cents for the initial ride of .4-mile, plus 10 cents for each additional quarter mile. The average cub traveled 70 feet beyond the end of the course before the meter changed for another 10 cent charge, Jordan said.

Twelve of the 20 runs exceeded the course length by an average of 145 feet, while eight runs were short by an average of 40 feet. Jordan said the variation was "not unreasonable" in view of constantly changing traffic

Barry Victory in California Looms Big in Convention

EVEN WHEN RESULTS seem obvious long in advance, national political conventions always openan aura of excitement and suspense.

The dimensions of the prize and the possibility of the unexpected are capable of holding the interest of the most cynical observer.

So it is with the 1964 GOP convention in San

LOGIC TELLS US that Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona is "in." There is always the possibility, however, that the firmness of the commitment of Goldwater delegates has been misjudged or that someone -Dwight Eisenhower's brother Milton, for examplemight suddenly seize the imagination of the convention. Such things can happen,

But if the performance goes according to script, Goldwater will get the nomination, very likely on the first ballot. If he does get it, the achievement will be another testimony to the political power and prestige of California.

For it was here that Goldwater scored the primary election victory which put the seal of success upon his candidacy. Had he lost the contest in California, all hope of a convention victory would have died instantly. Winning in California was crucial; he did it; and apparently he has been able to build a successful nomination bid upon that structure. California, the key state, turned Goldwater into the key man.

IT IS POSSIBLE to sympathize with the frustrating and apparently futile battle conducted by Gov. William Scranton, Henry Cabot Lodge, and the other "moderates," but certainly the saddest figure on the eve of the convention is Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of

It was Rockefeller who put his political reputation on the line in the primaries and who fought to the showdown in California while the other moderates whispered their encouragement from the sidelines, cratic Certainly he would seem the logical person for the convention to turn toward should Goldwater somehow lose out-but it probably won't work that way. Just as California gave Goldwater an essential boost, it delivered the coup de grace to Rocky.

That there is justification for the complaints of many property holders in fraternity neighborhoods is agreed, even by fraternity spokesmen. #### Barry's Past and Future Based on 'Creative Dissent'

I, P-T Political Editor

KEYSTONES which may serve Sen. Barry Goldwater through platform, through the Republican nomination and through his campaign for the United States Presidency were little noted and scarcely remembered from his Friday presentation before the GOP Platform

They are, in his own words, "creative and "unity of principle."

Goldwater has sold his partisans for years of the "creative dissent" theme They rejoiced again Friday when he paraphrased it like this: "I don't believe any senator should just go along wagging his tail after his leader.

His "unity of principle" pitch was a wistful return to his often-stated preference for a Republican statemen of principles rather than a lengthy platform of specifics which he once characterized as "misinformation and lies."

These keystones are the reasons for the Senator's success. They are the reasons he has 86 locked-in California delegates for him, 86 alternates just as strongly committed—and he could have had thousands more out of

THE TURN TO GOLDWATER is, in fact, a turn to dissent. And so it seems there could be no more futile exercise in San Francisco than the preachment against Goldwater's minority position of dissent, the factic being used by his would-be stoppers.

Delegates, and especially the two-thirds block of Barry's people on the Platform committee, seems to be saying, "Of course we know he voted against cloture, against the Civil Rights bill, against foreign aid and agalpst other items in which he represented a minority among Republicans. But, you see, that's precisely why we want

Thus, a Scranton argument that Barry is a dissenter yields from Barry's people only a "Hear, hear!" and nothing at all in dismay or surprise.

THE SENATOR'S TASK as a nomince, then, is not to dispute his dissension, but to demonstrate that it truly is creative. This task is monumental. It is difficult in one instance because of the extremists who endorse his positions for reasons less worthy than Goldwater's. For example, Goldwater claims defense of the American Constitution as a reason for his no vote on the Civil Rights bill. He is lauded by individuals and groups whose motive is patently racial.

His task is monumental because he must sell the nation's Republican voters that their representatives in Congress have voted wrong on many of the major issues of our life. Then he must sell the same conviction to vast numbers of Independents and Democrats, IMPOSSIBLE? Perhaps not. Because the Senator is not about to impute "destructive compliance" to his congressional colleagues while he claims "creative dissent", for himself. He surely will, instead, attempt to stake out a new mainstream in America, and to show Americans at the same time that honorable men in Congress have taken wrong turns from the mainstream with good but misgulded -a faulty reading of the will of their constituents.

Goldwater's rudder in this white-water cruise is "unity principle." That device, in his view, can excuse his colleagues for their faulty readings of national direction and goals of the past 30 years.

WASHINGTON. — Nelson Rockefeller's "ultimate" weapon-which he declined to use in the California Primary against Barry Goldwater-once again has become a matter of controversy among the coalition of moderates who want to stop the Arizona Senatorfrom winning the Republican

It was made under the direction of Rockefeller aides during the primary, and takes the viewer inside the John Birch Society. # Code for

NEW YORK (A) -most drastic overhaul of the American commercial theater in its two centuries — including codes of ethical prac-– has been undertaken by Broadway producers and theater owners, the New York Times reported.

The story said the program of the League of New York Theaters was begun as a defensive action against State Atty. Gen Louis J. Lefkowitz' ecent investigation of ttheaer practicés.

The story said three major points are involved. A code of ethical practices for the ale of tickets; a producers' code of ethical practices, and the appointment of a com nissioner to supervise the poicing of the codes and take other sweeping, constructive ections to improve the health nd status of the commercial heater.

The codes were adopted ionths before the New York egislature enacted into law two bills proposed by Lefko-witz. The code provisions are nore stringent than the legislation in requiring that the business of the theater shall e carried on without chicanery and the sale of tick-ets shall be conducted withnut the payment of illegal premiums

At public hearings on the heater business conducted y Lefkowitz last winter, there was testimony that overcharges on Broadway theater tickets imposed by "scalpers" amounted to at least $10 million a year.

Angels Stir Mr. Rigney

The Angels are a cinch bet not to win the American League pennant, but boss Bill Rigney thinks they'd have a real chance if (1) the majors enjoyed the luxury of a split-season and (2) he had his present personnel last April.

Boy, if the majors started everybody from scratch after the All-Star Game, like we used to do in the old-

Coast League, we'd have a good chance to meet Baltimore in the playoffs," enthused Rig when the Angels resumed action Thursday

"On the other hand, if had the guys I've got now the whole season, maybe we'd be up there with Baltimore, Chicago and the Yankees."

Rig has been known to become excited quickly when a newcomer bats 333 his first week with the Angels, but his present enthuslasm is something different. The man actually drools when he tackles the nightly problem of making out a lineup.
"I feel like a kid with

Rigney's words weren't idle ones. With his "new"

Angel corps he can maneuver like a chess player.

Vic Power, Felix Torres and Joe Adcock.

Young catcher Bob Rodgers, the greatest luxury of all, bats from either side,

"Those other guys can't come into town now and juggle their pitching rotation just to choke the Angels," snorted Rig, "Now, the shoe's on the other foot. The Angels can adapt to any pitcher the rest of the American League throws at us.

EXCLUDING THE PITCHER, the new-look Angels. had only two players in Thursday night's starting lineup who were with the club last season, Fregosi and Rodgers.

The other six people were Bobby Knoop, Power, Adcock, Clinton, Wonderful Willie and Piersall. (Okay, Clyde, don't argue with me about Piersall. He was with the Angels for only 20 games at the tag end of '63.)

Everybody gives credit to general manager Fred Haney for making the swaps that suddenly rocketed the Angels into prominence, so I have to join the cheering mob. I had the impression last season that Mr. Haney had given up on baseball and was ready for the rocking chair, but I guess there's a lot of life in the old boy yet.

Anyway, the Angels now have the codgers on the neighborhood bar's stools chattering about them and there's more than a little hint that the public thinks the Dodgers had better shape up, else the Angels will be swiping a good deal of the Sophisticales' fancy.

A-FEW PARAGRAPHS BACK, I mentioned exclusion of Thursday night's pitcher. That was merely to illustrate the new-look point. Nobody really ever can exclude Bo Belinsky from any Angel conversation.

Before the game, Bo was as relaxed as a cow in the pasture. Which is Bo's usual manner. I don't think the guy would act nervous in death row or confronted by those law suits you used to read about.

(Come to think of it, doesn't some matron now have a case pending against Bo regarding loss of $1,500, which she thought she had merely "loaned" him? Oh, well, in view of Bo's string of activities, this incident is strictly minor league.)

'What's new on the (Leo) Durocher thing back in Vermont?" wondered the pride of Trenton, N.J. "I know what the guy's going through. Just because he's got a name, some guy's trying to get publicity. I hope Leo beats

"How come you're suddenly interested in somebody else's troubles," questioned another chap. "Didn't you have enough woman trouble of your own the last two years?

"I still got some," he laughed, "only you other guys don't know about it. That was my trouble when I first came up. Everything I did was public. Now, I've got a

PRIVATE LIFE OR NOT, Belinsky still was interested

In the public.

"How many people you think came out to see me tonight?" he clucked. "You think maybe we got 10,000. Well, I better go out and count the house."
With that, Mr. Belinsky took the field and prepared to warm up with coach Del Rice. Before his first pitch, however, Bo looked over the stadium like a surveyor, took off his cap to show the girls still interested that his hair was in place, then hitched-up his belt.

Bo must have liked what he saw. He proceeded to hurl a nifty, two-hit shutout. Private life agrees with Mr. Belinsky of the new-look Angels.

Like a larger-than-life curloon character, Mike Austin slampedes a golf tournament with only his presence.

A man of many splendored talents, he is opera singer, rocket engineer, poet, inventor, kinesiologist, professor of Infinite Science, self-appointed United Nations representative to the underwater kingdom of Aqualandia and self acclaimed longest hitter in golf.

Above all, Mike Austin is a nice guy who likes people and is liked by people.

Austin was eliminated in the first round of the Southern California PGA Champion-. ship at Recreation Park Thursday, but the story of how he arrived to play in the tournament is as bizarre as befitting its main character.

LET MIKE TELL IT:

"I flew over to Scotland a week ago to play in the British Open and introduce the Flammer overseas. The Flammer is my golf invention, the greatest aid to the golfer ever invented. I named it the Flammer from the Greek word Flamma which means illumination. I chose the name because the Flanmer sheds light on the correct golf swing.

"The Scottish people were crazy about the Flammer and I've never been received so graciously. I was born on the Isle of Guernsey and lived in Scotland as a boy, so it was sort of a homecoming for me. The heads of the old Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews treated me like I was a member and allowed me to demonstrate the Flammer inside the clubhouse. Imagine, that was the place a professional golfer wasn't allowed to enter 25 years ago. "I played a few practice rounds with Bob Walker, the Scottish champion and the longest hitter in Britain, and he said. Nobody could outhit me.' I drove one ball 25 yards over the green on the 18th hole at the Eden course and the hole is 380 yards long.

"I played my qualifying rounds for the British Open on Friday and Saturday, and shot 73-73-146. I finished early the second day, looked at the scoreboard and saw that there were 47 players ahead of me for the 32 places. I didn't see how I could possibly make it.

So I called the airlines to get a plane back to the states so I could play here in Long Beach. They informed me that there was only one seat left on a plane leaving right away or else I would have to wait four days and miss the tournament here. I left the course and flew home. .

"When I arrived back home in Hollywood. I received several phone calls from pros and friends asking me why I had returned. They had heard over the radio that had qualified to play in the tournament. I don't know for certain, but I've been told now by 30 or 40 people that they have seen or heard it.

"Wouldn't that be something if I really did make it? To fly that far and come back. But I love this tournament, and wouldn't have wanted to miss it for the world, and I did accomplish half of my

I now have Flammer distributors for England, Scotland, Ireland, New Zealand, South Africa, Egypt, Holland, Germany, France and Hong Kong. My man in Hong Kong is Mr. Luh, the pro at the Fan Ling Country Club and I predict great things for the Flammer in Hong Kong.

"The one person who should be most thankful that I didn't get to play in the British Open is Tony Lema. He may have beaten me, but my drives would have made his look puny."

Austin will be a headline performer today at the clinic which follows the championship match at Recreation Park. Don't miss it. A great showman and quite a guy is Mike Austin.

NEW YORK (UPI)-Commissioners of the National and American pro football leagues disagreed Saturday on which league owns the rights to star Arizona State halfback Tony Lorick, and the Oakland Raiders of the AFL hinted they may take the case to court.

NFL Trading Fast and Furious

As far back as I can remember, there never has been as many major trades in the National Football League as there has been since the end of the 1963

At last count, there have been 16 trades involving 42 players, including some of the biggest names in the game ... Sam Huff, Sonny Jurgensen, Norman Snead, Tommy McDonald, Buddy Dlal, Dick Modzelewski, all-pro center Jim Ringo, Earl Gros, Fred Williams, Rich Kreitling, Clarence Peaks, Red Mack, Sam Baker, etc.

The Redskins have acquired eight new players and club officials actually feel they can make a run at the New York Giants for the Eastern crown

What Svare left unsaid was that there must have been differences of opinion between Wietecha and Heinrich, who was in charge of the offensive last season.

"Just say it was personal problems," said Heinrich when he received the news at the Rams' training camp at Orange Saturday. "It can be interpreted several ways."

Shoemaker also attributed the rich victory to Longden:

"Everytime I came to Real Good Deal, John would pull away. We just couldn't tag him today, although Close By ran as well today as he did in his last two winning races. I had some trouble on the first turn. I was outside of three horses and finally had to go on after waiting to see what those two between John and me were going to do. Longden beat me today, when all the votes are counted."

Performing Art's Jockey, Jim Craswell, admitted inexperience was his colt's big problem, "but he's going to be a real top colt. Man, he was rolling at them down the lane and he's a powerful dude."

Longden's previous Derby winners were Busher (1945), Solidarity ('48), Pedigree ('49) and Four-and Twenty ('61). Which was his most thrilling?

"The older I get, the big-ger the thrill," squeaked the leathery-faced little man. "I sure got a kick out of beating Shoemaker to-

By DONNELL CULPEPPER By LEW ALLISON (Fishin' Around for Donnell Culpepper, Who Is on Vacation) The image of the United States Navy is more than a little tarnished in the eyes of hundreds of Long Beach-area fishermen, who apparently have lost the war and must give up hope that the ban on fishing at the Seal Beach Weapons Station jetty might be relaxed. Hopes that restrictions might be eased with the com-pletion of dredging and other operations in the Anaheim Bay channel were dashed by Capt. W. C. Hall, commanding the station. The rocks, he ex-plained, are part of the station he commands, the station is a restricted area, and he is responsible for enforcing the restrictions. Interest in the situation among sportsmen is evidenced by the hundreds who have been arrested as trespassers, lmost of whom have been fined $29. Both the Seal Beach Police Department and the Orange County Sheriff's Department have been enlisted to help put down rebellious fishermen who have ignored the barbed wire and posted warnings. The west jetty, at the end of the Seal Beach public strand, is in the city limits, while the east jetty is in county jurisdiction. Many vho fish there do so because it is fun for the price of a little bait, recreation for many who cannot afford to spend. And there are some who fish there because they need the fish to augment small budgets. Some of these "criminals" have been hurt by $29 fines. The indignant have got nese questions for Uncle Sam:

1-Why after all these cars have the fishermen sudlenly become a menace to the Navy's security?

2-Why is it only the Weapons Station that cracks down on sportsmen, who use other breakwaters, jetties and heaches that are under jurisdiction of various govern-mental agencies?

3-Would not the Navy's iability be met if the rocks were posted "Use at Your Own Risk?" After all, the jetty was not considered dangerous to the public for 40 years until the recent ban was or-changing times has become a way of life at Wheaton Candy Co., a home-grown industry that has flourished for 43 years at 1351 W. 14th Street, in Long Beach. Although the firm's kitchens still are filled with aroma, of chocolates and caramets, there is increasing emphasis on a system of customized food service installations for industries, hospitals and office buildings that has been developed by Pang Wheaton son of the company's colorful founder, Ivan P.

demand recently led to for-Food Service Systems, a new entity in the Wheaton success story. THE NEW UNIT is the latest step in a series of diversifications since Ivan Wheaton, a World War I Marine Corps aviator, established the Wheaton Candy Co. in a garage behind his home in the 600 block of Loma Avenue in 1921. By the beginning of World War II the company was marketing its chocolates through 11 Southern Cali- Inc.

the end of World War II, Wheaton had be-come a wholesale candy its product line. Ice cream sales quickly outpaced candy sales. Then in 1949, the company purchased live cream vending machines.

THE NET result has been a replacement of the conventional company cafe teria or fully automated snack bar with a custom designed, personally attended, compact buffet service of hot entrees, fresh salads and desserts that is augmented by automated cof-

THE PANG'S Pantry concept is now a proven tech-nique and W & W Inc., Food Service Systems is rapidly expanding the service. Pang's Pantries already have been installed by Honeywell Corporation, the Broadway Department

L'Esperance said that Orange County women are quite fertile: for every 1,000 women of child-bearing age, there are 559 children under 5 years of age.

It means they need larger than usual homes for their families, and that's the reason the county's builders are erecting an increasing number of multi-bedroom places.

DANCING IS PART of the lively activity of every Mexican fiesta. Here dancers perform a "jarabe" or folk dance in a Mexican village.

Fiestà in Mexico

By Fred Taylor Kraft Travel Editor

THAT MEXICO at long last has established liself as a major world tourist destination is altested to by the fact that this year more than a million Americans will vacation there to taste its sanguine pleasures and exciting adventures wherever travelers gather.

And, it is a land of interesting people who love to celebrate, and who are pleased when their visitors celebrate with them.

Southland travelers find it easy to get to Mexico. Three airlines-Aeronaves de Mexico, Mexicana and Western—all fly direct from Los Angeles International Airport. Greyhound conducts bus tours. The highways are generally good for those who wish to drive.

ALMOST ANY DAY in the year a parade or procession is winding through the streets of some Mexican town. Indian dancers in gaudy costumes appear to perform their tribal dances. There's the echo of mariachis and marimba music. Builtights are enacted in blazing color.

All of which generally adds up to a fiesta, which may last a day or a week, and roll around as often as 30 times a year in some localities.

No one visiting Mexico should miss seeing at least one important fiesta. Some, such as Inde pendence Day-Sept. 15-16-are nationwide, At 11 p. m./on Sept. 15, the President of Mexico gives the "grito," the cry of independence, from the bal-cony of the National Palace in Mexico City. It is echoed in every Mexican town. The fireworks then become deafening, the tempo of the celebration a thing to witness

Another colorful ceremony—this one in Mexico City Aug. 21—honors Cuauhtemoc, the last of the Aztec emperors, who was tortured and killed by the conquistadors when he refused to reveal the hiding place of the legendary hoard of Aztec gold. # Two Shes on Skis

KATHY takes lead above as she and sister, Wendy, keep in trim by tire hopping. Below, close knit family gathers around the piano as Wendy plays for at-home sing-along.

By MARGARET McKEAN

Two pert and pretty teen agers want to come down from a mountain top faster than anybody.

They'll be wearing skis when they do.

The Allen sisters, at 18 and 19 years old, seem destined to ski their way to the Olympics.

Skiing is not a sometime thing with them. Training is year around, dry land in summer and snowy peaks in winter at Mammoth Mountain, Calif.

"They come to town only to see their dentist," said Wendy and Cathy's mother on a rare weekend when she had her daughters at home at 3900 Carolina St., San Pedro.

Sometimes they travel down from the mountains to be present when the awards are passed out. Latest one, presented by the Helms Foundation, was for Cathy as outstanding junior skier in 1964 in the Far West Ski Association.

Both seem happy to win awards but are indifferent to the inherent glory. They forgot they were to be starred in an hour long filmed television show and didn't even turn on the set.

THEY WERE 6 AND 7 years old the first time they wore skis.

"It sounds corny but it seems I knew then they'd be good, real good," remembers their dad, Grant Allen, who added, "I was never a good skier, just an enthusiastic one." (His job is with the sea, he's marine superintendent for Global Marine doing off-shore drilling in Long Beach).

"My brother had a cabin at Green Valley when the girls were little, it was our weekend home for years," he continued.

Recognition for Wendy and Cathy's prowess didn't wait for high school graduation.

They went to Chamonix, France, to train, the only two girls in the western division junior team.

They went to Stowe, Vermont, for competition; have skiled in Oregon, Washington, Idaho, and in Aspen, Colo., which they say is the nation's best ski country.

Their longtime coach is Dave McCoy who helped champions like Jean Saubert win gold medals at the Olympics.

"Dave is tops in the country, a really dedicated coach. He owns the lodge at Mammoth Mountain. We live there with the McCoys and their six children and the lodge guests. We train from 4:30 a.m. on; we do some work around the lodge. It's private citizens like Dave who send United States teams to the Olympics," the girls chorused.

THEY'LL BE READY for the 1968 winter Olympics in Grenoble, France.

Before then there will be competition just as important to them, the International Federation of Skiing tourney in Portillo, Chilc, in 1966. They also will travel the senior circuit all over the United States from December to March, and

Newlywed Terry and Mike Kessler have a world of travel on ice.

As members of an ice extravaganza, they're out to skate their way through South America come September—through Europe next

"It's a cool way to go places," says Michael, handsome 6-foot-tall 23-year-old artist-turned-performer. "Take the trip through the Latin lands, We'll see, among others, such famed spots as Guatemala City, Rio and Caracas."

A new man on the blades, he took them up just two years ago, Mike's warmly enthusiastic about this wintery way to make a living. And, he should be.

Since he took up skating professionally, he's acquired a beautiful wife (he met her in the show), a honeymoon (plus pay) in Mexico and invitations to stay in spas and resorts here and on the continent.

Terry, his bride of two months, a tall, willowy blue-eyed brunette,

They went to sea to see-not sea, but homes.

First they drove to HH in their own cars; switched to shuttle bus service to see some of the homes; switched again to Harbour's cruise boat, "Islander," to tour more homes on the waterfront.

In between time, there was much walking to, in and out of model homes. A highpoint of the day was the cocktails and luncheon "break" at the development's Huntington Harbour Club.

A few in merry melee of meanderers were Toni Mallery, Bev Carver, Lois Bockman, Agnes Mallery, Nikki Pittman, Vee Nelsen, Dorā Lee, Ber Beret, and Barbara Quick. Toni, candid camera clicking away, did her best to catch everyone off guard and now they're all worried how they'll look. Barbara, Sema member, added greatly to tour's enjoyment by giving tips on color coordination of homes. She's an expert in this field.

STILL RECOVERING from their annual "Safe and Sane Fourth," painfully, are certain members of the Monita Street (College Park Estates) Block Party participants. As it turned out, a few of 'em would have fared better playing rugby on the freeway.

First casualty of the day was Don Barden. In the morning softball game he slid into home plate and skinned his knees so badly he was sidelined. In same game, played on asphalt of nearby playground, Burt Barrud, swinging, running, fielding, and all in carefree barefoot condition, blistered his feet so badly he wasn't able to get shoes on until midweek, hobbling gingerly all the while.

Then came the volley ball matches. As a result Dr. Joe Traub and Cal Lenzen are wearing casts. Joe broke one foot; Cal broke bones in BOTH feet. In the Moms vs. Kids kickball game, Rose Bishop developed such a painful charley horse she was hors de combat for

Critic Reviews Eight Years upon the stage of the Met-

By RACHEL MORTON

Today I am beginning my eighth year as music critic and writer of Major & Minor Notes for the Independent, Press-Telegram. Just think of it-nearly 400 Major & Minor Notes columns; all on ONE subject-MUSIC! And heaven knows how many music reviews are within the covers of those seven huge scrapbooks of minel Inever dreamed I would "last" this long. (I am not a young woman.)

If my columns have not been brilliant literary efforts, at least they have served to acquaint my readers, first hand, with some of the greatest personages in the musical world through my personal interviews with them. It is my honest conviction that, had it not been for my own career as an opera singer, I could not have interviewed most of these celebrities. They are very busy people, or past needing publicity. But they have, without exception, re-ceived me as one of them and many have become my dear friends.

GREAT ARTISTS, I have found, have characteristics in common. ## New York By Day or Night

THERE IS A . . . Rhythm to its Roar

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON I, P-T Fashion Editor

NEW YORK-Where else in the world could you see "Oliver" on one side of the street and catch a glimpse of Liz

Taylor and Richard Burton on the other. Then have your hair styled at midnight next to a Copa girl, sup coffee after-words at a counter across from TV's Mr. Kleen, and hang your hat (a must) on the forty-second floor of a hotel where Charles Boyer, Jill St. John and Jimmy Stewart often hang theirs.

Where else could you lunch in the most luxurious of gourmet establishments (The Four Seasons) to view the most prophetic of space suits, then that evening dine amid the ivy-covered heria tavern built in 1870 (Central Park's historic Tavern-on-the-Green).

Where else but New York City could such a variety of persons, places and things be crowded into one 24-hour

And that's just one day out of an action-packed week in which—along with 200 other fashion editors from the U. S. and Canada—I previewed some 500 fail-winter collections by the nation's leading designers, lunched and dined in some of the city's most plush eateries. . . . Whistled at cabs, crowded into overloaded buses, took in the world's fair, went without sleep and didn't care, gulped coffee on the run, joined the crush of humanity on Fifth Avenue, and paused to reflect on probably the world's largest diamond in Tiffany's window.

YOU CAN'T be in New York for a week-whether to preview next season's fashions or ogle other wonders of this universe in microcosm-without soon being caught up in its tempo.

You're swept along by its currents and, almost instinctively, adjust your timing to the rhythm of its roar.

Just as you know daylight will come, you know that, at 8 a. m. each day, a horde of 2,300,000 men and women-the city's work force-will swarm into Manhattan, only to be swept up vertically into the city in the skies. . . . And just as you know that at noon, hundreds of thousands of secretaries, stenographers and clerks will come down from their towers to rush out, grab a sandwich and beverage, gulp and run-to shop, or get a hairdo or look into some nearby ex-

And you know that it is futile to try to hail a cab at 5 p. m. when the masses surge back into the canyons, homeward bound. But caught in the excitementwhat does it matter if traffic is so heavy that it's quicker to walk?

THEATER TIME in Manhattan is most exciting of all.

You can set your watch by the flow of fun-seekers who are soon swallowed up by "Hello, Dolly", "Oliver" "How to Succeed in Business" and 20-or-so other musicals whose songs are hummed the world over.

This season New York police apparently are having to set their watches by the final curtain of "Hamlet," Richard Burton's current hit at the Lunt-Fontaine.

. Every night, thousands push and surge outside the theater to catch a glimpse of the star and his famous wife, Liz, as

When Not to Finesse

Here is a hand that illustrates when not to finesse.

In the actual play of the hand, South went up with dummy's jack of clubs at trick one. East covered with the queen and eventually South lost two diamonds and a club.

Had South restrained his impulse to use that club jack at trick one everything would have come up roses.

NORTH

There was no reason for him to play that jack right away. If East held the queen of clubs, the jack would be gone and forgotten. If West held the queen of clubs, the jack would hold the trick but, as Fred Karpin points out, if West held the queen of clubs at trick one he would also hold it at trick two, three, four and so on.

Now let's see what would happen if South plays low from dummy. He would win the trick with the ace, ruff a heart, draw trumps, ruff his last heart, and play the ace and another diamond.

EITHER opponent could win that diamond trick and lead another diamond for a second defensive trick. Then, if West held the lead, he would have been forced to play a heart or a diamond. South would ruff in dummy and discard his losing club from his hand.

If East held the trick, he would have had the addiclub in which case dummy's jack would actually take a

age of land for cometeries?—L. Lovett, Boston, Mass. A. In part. The land shortage is acute in England, the . Netherlands and Belgium.

Q. Didn't screen star Errol Flynn leave a fortune in England when he died?—R. L., Jamaica, N.Y. A. The Chancery Division of the British High Court reports that the Errol Flynn estate has assets in England of $420,000 in savings bonds and cash.

Q. I've heard that four of the most successful Negro women singers chose white husbands, Will you print their names?—James E. Edmonds, Asheville, N.C. A. Lena Horne, Dorothy Dandridge, Eartha Kitt, Pearl Bailey.

Q. I understand that Swedish Princess Desiree, recently married, asked her grandfather, King Gustav, for a tractor for her wedding present instead of the family jewels. Is this so or just publicity?—Kathleen McCarthy, Oak Park, Ill.

A. True. Desiree, who studied agriculture, said a tractor would be more useful than the family jewels on her husband's farm.

Q. Why has nothing over been said in the American press about M. Bleustein-Blanchet, the mastermind behind Gen. De Gaulle?—Hon Guido, Los Angeles, Calif.

A. M. Bleustein-Blanchet, 55, runs the largest publicity agency in France, also the American-type drugstore on the Champs-Elysées in Paris. He met Gen. De Gaulle during the war when he flew for the Free French. In 1958 De Gaulle called him in as a TV consultant. Bleustein-Blanchet advised De Gaulle to "throw away your glasses, throw away your notes, insist upon close-ups, speak with dramatic intensity." De Gaulle followed the advice. Bleustein-Blanchet conducts the monthly poll which reveals De Gaulle's popularity quotient in France. Most American newspapermen have not heard of him.

A. Eisenhower is and always has been popular in Great Britain. Montgomery is bitter about Eisenhower and rarely misses an opportunity to criticize him. Following Montgomery's BBC blast, a U.S. embassy spokesman in London said: "Attacks by Field Marshal Montgomery on Gen. Eisenhower are nothing new." And Marshal of the R.A.F. Lord Tedder said of Montgomery: "This outburst is a pitiful example of a man's second childhood."

Q. I was told that Mario Moreno (Cantinflas) is the world's best paid comedian; also that he maintains a number of charity houses and a number of orphanages. Also that if a mother is unable to support her child, all she has

Parents and children in a land at war: Liz Nelson, Lt. Cmdr. Andrew Nelson, Larry, 11, Lesley, 8, Jeffrey, 5, before Saigon home.

An American family in Vietnam

COVER AND PHOTOS BY LARRY FRIED

his is everyday life for an American family in Victnam: Larry and Lesley Nelson attend school in a building with bars on the classroom windows and an armed guard on the roof. Their mother shops in a commissary encircled by barbed wire and patrolled by a pistol-carrying MP. Their father packs a .45 on many of his missions with the Victnamese. And the whole family must be careful to avoid crowds, stay out of unfamiliar areas and never to leave Saigon.

Navy. Lt. Comdr. Andrew Nelson; his wife Liz; Larry, 11; Lesley, 8; and Jeffrey, 5, are among 500 U.S. military and 1,500 U.S. civilian families in this embattled country. They live in a virtual state of siege, surrounded by danger and uncertainty with occasional overtones of terror. They do not know when a bomb or a grenade could go off, or when they themselves could become targets.

You might think that under the circumstances these Americans would be petrified. You might wonder why in the world they stay in this wartorn nation at all. Yet the fact is that the majority like their confortable existence, wouldn't dream of leaving voluntarily and — like Liz and Andy Nelson — are calm, cool and collected about it.

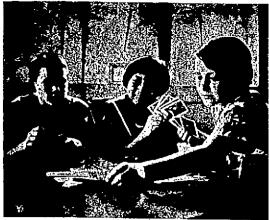

"We're not heroes," says Liz Nelson, a short, brunette former schoolteacher from Old Greenwich, Conn. "People back home get the idea we're bravely facing gunfire all the time. Actually, life here isn't much different from life in some other places we've lived. In fact, it's even better in some ways." Her husband, a career Navy man and son of a Navy officer, is more emphatic. "Just because I carry a weapon sometimes," he says impatiently, "doesn't mean I'm in danger of being shot on the way home."

Actually, many persons in the U.S. are not even aware that there is a U.S. community here. And the overwhelming majority of the 16,000 Americans aiding the South Victnamese government in its struggle against Communist Vict Cong guerrillas do not have their families with them. They serve 13-month "hardship" tours and leave their wives and children at home. But a small handful of personnel—highly skilled, hard-to-replace specialists who serve two or three-year tours and employees of the State Department and other agencies—are permitted to have their families here. There are an estimated 1,700 families in Saigon and another 300 in other parts of the country.

TERRORIST TARGETS

Recently these families themselves have assumed an important role in the conflict. The Viet Cong have begun a campaign of terrorism against U.S. personnel, including dependents. The most serious incident occurred Feb. 16, when a terrorist threw a bomb into the Kinh Do Theater, an American movie house, and killed 5 persons and wounded 50 others, many of them women and children. A few days later, a bomb went off under a crowded grandstand at Pershing Field, the U.S. athlette facility, during a softball playoff game. Two more were killed and 18 hurt. Since then there have been repeated lesser incidents.

In the wake of these attacks, U.S. officials, here and in Washington, have debated whether to evacuate all dependents. But they concluded that such a move would be a virtual admission the U.S. could not protect them—and a clear propaganda victory for the Communists. Accordingly, Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge announced that individual families could go home at government expense if they wished, but ruled out a mass exodus. It is known, however, that the U.S. is considering, on the highest level, a total evacuation, coupled with an announcement that the move is a prelude to clearing the decks for action.

Here in Saigon, however, it is often difficult to convince yourself that any threat exists. Although you can sometimes hear gunfire within its limits, this city, with its broad, flower-decked boulevards, its sidewalk cafés and Paris-at-the-turn-of-the-century architecture, its stately women in their flowing ao dais, still seems like the idyllic setting for an old James A. Fitzpatrick travelogue. And, indeed, for the Americans here, life can be beautiful, comfortable and placid.

HOW THE NELSONS LIVE

Take the Nelsons, for instance. Their home is a high-ceilinged, four-bedroom-and-three-bath stucco place with air-conditioned sleeping quarters and a servant staff of four. The children swim and play badminton at the near-by Girque Sportif, founded by the French in the colonial days and just as Old Empire today. They can shop dirt-cheap for all kinds of things-Liz recently bought a handmade, hand-embroldered dress for about $6 and a pair of children's slippers for 30g. Social life is brisk. The wives hold a regular round of bridge parties, fashion shows and charity affairs. They even follow the social protocol of the stateside military post, making the required calls on the wife of the Ambassador, the wife of the commanding general, the wife of the AID mission chief and so on, in the accepted order.

Even some of the alleged hazards of living under the gun are little different from those military families encounter elsewhere. There is the matter of the contaminated water, for instance; Liz must boil every drop before the family can drink it. Or the vegetables. Families are told firmly not to eat them until they have been washed in purified water, soaked in a chlorine solution for 20 minutes and then rinsed.

Yet real danger does exist, and no one can ever completely forget it. "You try to put it out of your head, but you can't," says Liz Nelson. "You're always conscious of it in the back of your mind." Almost everyone in the community knows someone who was injured in one of the bombings, or someone who has sent his family home because he feels the danger.

The community abounds in rumors, most of them allegedly based on "intelligence reports." "Have you heard the latest intelligence report?" one wife will ask another. "The VG are going to bomb the commissary!" The most chilling rumor, which crops up repeatedly, is that the terrorists plan to kidnap American children. This would show dramatically, the argument goes; how weak is U.S. and Vietnamese security.

BEACHES ARE OFF LIMITS

And military authorities have clamped some tight restrictions on the U.S. community. Movies and sports events have been stopped since the theater and stadium bombings. The bowling alley has been shut down. Extra guards have been posted at the hospital, PX, commissary, school, church and dispensary. Social gatherings are limited to 20 persons unless an armed guard is present. And although Vietnam has some of the most beautiful beaches in the world, at Nha Trang and Cap St. Jacques, Americans are not permitted to drive to them.

Liz and Andy Nelson knew about the restrictions chance we had," says Andy, who was at sea when two of the children were born. "The idea of being separated for that long just made me unhappy. I'll admit, I wondered if this was a good place to bring children and all, but I finally decided to be fatalistic about it. Besides, Liz and I talked to a lot of people who'd been here. They liked it and minimized the danger."

First, however, the Neisons had personal problems

"I just decided we were going to be together every

and the hazards before they came to Saigon. But they didn't hesitate. Ever since they met on a blind date in Washington in 1947, their lives have been one separation after another. Most recently, the family lived in Newport, B.I., while Andy was on duty with the Atlantic fleet, and often was gone for several months. This time, given a choice of a year's tour of duty without his family, or two years with them, he

First, however, the Nelsons had personal problems to settle. Jeffrey was born with an extreme hearing deficiency and poor vision, and it was necessary to be sure he could get proper treatment and speech training in this part of the world. Liz learned that he could receive medical care, lined up a Vietnamese woman tutor with a degree from Boston College and contacted a specialist in Bangkok. Next, arrangements had to be made to take the others out of school. This completed, Andy took the two-year term as an adviser to the operations office of the Vietnamese fleet.

UNCERTAIN ARRIVAL

He left for Vietnam on Jan. 9. On Feb. 20, Four days after the theater bombing, Lizareceived authorization to follow. "There was a big flap at the time about evacuation," she recalls. "The possibility of danger itself, though, didn't bother me. What I did worry about was they might cancel the orders when Andy was already here." No such thing occurred. The family sat up 22 hours on a flight to get here, arrived to find the dependents expecting to be pulled out at any moment. In time, however, the hubbub subsided.

Today, the Nelsons are well settled in Saigon. They're pleased with the children's school and playmates and see no evidence that the tense atmosphere affects them. Liz carries on an active social life, recently volunteered to conduct classes in English at the American-Vietnamese Association. The family entertains a steady stream of friends, many of them "temporary bachelors" from Andy's unit.

And danger notwithstanding, Liz has fallen in love with Saigon. She's learned already which restrictions must be obeyed strictly and which bend a little. Thus, with her maid Thi Hai, Liz barges around Saigon on her bicycle, exploring shops, wading into the Central Market, striking up acquaintances. She declares that "you've got to remain aware and alert," confesses that she "often worries about the children," but adds she has had no trouble and has seen little evidence of any. "I think the terrorism aspect is dying out," she says.

Some authorities here agree. They point out that the worst outburst came just after the coup that ousted, Ngo Dinh Diem and attribute it to the fact that the government's intelligence network broke down during that period. Under the new government, these sources maintain, terrorism has become less common, and a number of incidents have been nipped in the bud.

Nonetheless, few people here believe that Americans can relax their vigilance or that no more incidents will take place. "You can't spend all your time worrying," says Liz Nelson. "You've got to be philosophical about it. But I always think, what a wonderful place Saigon is! What a pleasant life it would be here, if there were no war to be concerned about."

PARADE'S SPECIAL INTELLIGENCE REPORT

LEARN TO SWIM. At least half the persons in this country would drawn if they had to swim for their lives. Last year there were 6,500 deaths by drowning. Approximately 50% of the population consists of nonswimmers. These allegations are made by Robert O'Donnell, director of the N. Y. Safety Council, who says drowning ranks fourth among fatal accident causes, outnumbered only by traffic accidents, fire and falls. He urges all Americans to learn how to swim.

BANKRUPTCY, Newest racket in the U.S. underworld is bankruptcy. Here's how it works. The mob gets a *front, * supposedly a respectable business man. to purchase any operating business. The "front" then buys as much as possible on credit. He sells the goods at out-rate prices, takes the money and deposits it in a numbered account in a Swiss bank, Presently he declares bankruptcy. admitting that he spent much of his firm's money on high living. The law can do nothing to him. In the past 4 years gangsters have boosted the fraudulent bankruptcy rate by 40%, the loss to creditors from $100,000,000 a year to $350,000,000. The Department of Justice admits the racket is rapidly getting out of hand.

AIR AGREEMENT. According to the Warsaw Convention, air passengers flying overseas are now limited to a maximum of $8,300 in damages in case of accident. If you believe your life worth more than $8,300, take out additional insurance, either from an agent or an airport machine.

INSANE POLICEMAN. Suppose several persons were sent to jail on accusations and . evidence supplied by a police officer. Suppose it: was then revealed that the officer had been insane for years. What would you do? The London Metropolitan police are now in the midst of that dilemma. Detective Sgt. Harold Challenor is alleged to have planted pieces of brick on eight people arrested last July after demonstrations against the Greek royal family on their visit to England. He has been charged with making false statements, unlawful arrests and fabricating evidence. A prison doctor who examined Challenor said he was a paranoid schizophrenic who had been abnormal for a very considerable time. More than $5,600 has already been paid in compensation to people concerned in his cases, and the Director of Public Prosecutions is now reviewing more than 20 cases handled by Challenor, supposedly a top gangbuster.

PREDICTION. In the next 10 years 38,000,000 Americans -- an average of at least one member in each household -- will be killed or injured in a motor accident. This information is contained in a Call to Action fact sheet compiled by the insurance companies of the Kemper group. To alleviate the situation, the insurance committee suggests the following steps: (1) better law enforcement; (2) considering driving licenses as revocable privileges rather than irrevocable rights; (3) state laws to make seat belts and safety devices compulsory.

BLACK LUFTWAFFE. The new African state of Tanganyika and Zanzibar has hired West German air crews to train and organize its air force. Other independent African states may follow suit.

POVERTY & PLANNING. In all the millions of words mouthed by politicians on the war against poverty, hardly anything is ever said about a major cause: uncontrolled fertility among the poor and uneducated. Donald B. Straus. chairman of the Planned. Parenthood Federation of America, blatantly placed the problem before the House Education and Labor Committee: *The vicious cycle of poverty persists in part because couples on the lowest rung of the economic ladder tend to produce the largest families. The poor in this country do not want more children they cannot feed. It's simply that they do not know how to prevent them -- this is particularly true of uneducated Negroes --and relief agency rules generally forbid their being told. If President Johnson is genuinely serious about ending poverty in this country, he will start seeing to it. that child planning information is made available to the poverty-stricken and uneducated, in line with the teachings permitted by the various churches.

UNDETECTED CRIME. Professor Leon Radzinowicz, director of the Cambridge Institute of Criminology, is the authority for the statement. that 85% of all crime in Great Britain and probably elsewhere goes undetected. The 85% consists of crimes never reported, crimes reported but where the perpetrator is never caught (which applies to two out of three crimes) and, finally, criminals who are apprehended but not .convicted.

ver since she was 12. Garifalia Hardy has looked 18. This premature blooming into womanhood has caused her trouble and success - a trouble which will soon involve her in a headline-making court battle, a success which will shortly find her under contract to at least two major film studios.

At 15, Gari Hardy, a Marilyn Monroe look-alike, is 5-feet-7, weighs 123 lbs., measures 36-21-32.

A bleached blonde, green-eyed and enormously photogenic, she has worked in three films: What a Way to Go. John Goldfarb, Come Home and The Art of Love. All these jobs were secured on the basis of her shapely figure, which three years ago brought her a notoricty now scheduled for resumption.

When Gari Hardy was 12 years old, attending the seventh grade in Beverly Vista elementary school, Beverly Hills, she was 5-feet-5, 118 lbs., measured 34-21-32, dimensions admittedly larger than those of her classmates, also 12.

One hot October day Gari arrived at school wearing a sun dress with a high square neck, shoulder straps 134 inches in width and a skirt 11/2 inches below her knees. "I had made some brownie cookies for a school party," she recalls, "and I took them to the vice-principal's office. She looked at me, said my dress was indecent and that she was taking me home at once. On the way home we saw my mother at the grocery store. As we drove up, Mummy thought there was something wrong. I got out of the viceprincipal's car, and she said to Mother, 'Mrs. Hardy, here's your daughter. Her dress is improper for school. Cover her up before you send her back," "

Indignant and angry, Mrs. Eileen Hardy drove her precocious daughter home, clothed her in a demure sharkskin sailor dress, sent her back to class. She then called on Dr. John French, the school principal, and demanded to know what was wrong with the little sun dress her daughter had been wearing.

NYLONS & A BARREL LOOK

According to Mrs. Hardy, Dr. French told her: "We've had problems with Gari before. She wears nylon stockings-besides, she has a disconcerting barrel

"I asked him," says Mrs. Hardy, "if he meant her skirt was too full, and he said, 'No, she's too big up here,' indicating the bust, 'and if you can't cover her up completely, don't send her back to school."

Mrs. Hardy, divorced wife of a Bakersfield cattle-auctioneer, thereupon bought a $25 muu-muu for her daughter. Muu-muus are long, shapeless,sacklike coverings American missionaries introduced to the natives of Hawaii 125 years ago. They hide all physical charms below the neckline.

Before Gari went off to school clothed in her flower-print muu-muu, a reporter aware of the previous day's happening asked her what she planned to wear. When Garl told him a muu muu, he said he was coming along to photograph her. Mrs. Hardy was most co-onerative and welcomed all reporters.

When Gari hit the Beverly Vista schoolyard in her muu-muu, the viceprincipal and the boys' physical education teacher rushed the girl, before the press could have a field day, into the principal's office. Here they tried to phone her mother, called the police, presently took her home, where she was besieged by reporters and photographers. Later Mrs. Hardy received the following letter from the school: "Gari appeared this morning in a dress which we deemed unsuitable for school wear. Since she has been counseled on numerous occasions regarding suitable school dress, we are suspending her for five days for failure to follow directions."

Gari's suspension was played up in the press, and it wasn't long before a call came from Hawaii offering her and her mother a five-day trip, all expenses paid. to the 50th state, "where the wearing of a muu-muu to school is considered no crime." The trip was quickly accepted.

Eventually, Garl returned to Beverly Vista elementary school, a celebrity of sorts. But, according to her mother, her classmates began teasing her-children are cruel-and it wasn't long before the physically precocious girl had a nervous breakdown, was treated for 16 months. Any mention of school during this period, Mrs. Hardy says, immediately sent Gari into temper tantrums and crying fits. When she recovered, the board of education assigned a teacher to her home each day, and Gari was permitted to graduate from elementary school. Gari is now enrolled in a private high school. She has filed a claim for $100,000 against the Beverly Hills school board, charging them with loss of time, health and education. If the claim is denied. she will file suit for the same amount in California Superior Court, according to attorney Ward Sullivan, former partner of the late Jerry Giesler. Sullivan believes his client has a strong case. Certainly when it comes to trial, it will achieve nation-wide press coverage.

PUBLICITY WON'T KURT

Gari maintains that she prefers to earn her fame on her acting ability.

"I don't want to be known," she explains, "as the girl who got thrown out of school. Of course," she adds realistically, "I don't think the publicity will hurt one bit.'

It was not publicity, however, which got Gari Hardy her first film break. It was her striking face and even more striking figure. Last year, when she was 14, she and her mother were snacking in the Beverly Wilshire drugstore. They were approached by Joe Whitman, an old friend and father of actor Stuart Whitman.

"Gari," he said, "I want you to meet someone." He introduced her to producer Frank King, who thought she was at least 20. King said, "You're a beautiful girl. Are you an actress?"

"No," said Garl, "but I'd like to be." "Go see Leon Charles," instructed King. "He's a dialogue director working at 20th Century-Fox."

Gari and her mother made an appointment with Charles. When they turned up on the set of What a Way to Go, Leon Shamroy, ace cameraman who worked in most of Marilyn Monroe's films, was amazed at Gari's resemblance to the late star.

"It's incredible," he said. "You could be her twin."

Immediately Gari was hired to work in What a Way to Go. The director of the film, Lee Thompson, then signed her for his next, John Goldfarb, Come Home.

Gari Hardy was on her way,

Today, this 15-year-old tribute to nature's wonders is approaching the rise to a long and lucrative screen career with confidence and enthusiasm.

Untutored and as yet completely unproven as an actress, she is endowed with curvaceous physical assets and an ambitious mother who will get her more publicity than any salaried press agent

Remember the name-Gari Hardy. She may be another Marilyn Monroe.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Chicago-born Lee Tully, approaching 40, is touted these days as one of the potentially great monologists in show business. Tully, a stand-up comedian, features topical muterial tinged with satire. Originally an All-City basketball star in Chicago, where he played for Tuley High, Lee broke in as an apprentice comic on the Borsch Circuit, then went to work for Ben Blue as a straight man. Married and the stepfather of his wife's two children by a previous marriage, Tully now lives in New York, where at the top nite spots he tells such jokes as these:

I try to keep up with foreign affairs, but the Cuban situation really puzzles me: The capital of Cuba is Havana; the government is in Moscow; and most of the people live in Miami Beach!

my favorite jokes

by Lee Tully

A small African country sent word to the United States that its people were starving. So our State Department sent the people there a 16-piece jazz band -and they ate them!

One of the biggest problems our country faces today is the state of our economy. The United States is making more money this year than Europe and Asia know what to do with.

"Yes," answered the patient, "another doctor."

In America, where we spend millions of dollars a year just on health alone, is it any wonder that we have so many healthy doctors!

Many people believe that because of the World's Fair, hotels in New York have doubled their rates. Not true. Some have tripled them.

But don't worry or change your plans for visiting the Fair. You can still get a beautiful room for $12 a day . . . Of course, if you want to stay overnight, it's extra.

Lunderstand that a full-blooded Indian was hired as an extra bartender to handle the rush business this summer in New York, He didn't last very long. He asked his first customer, "What will you have?" When the customer said. "]'ll take a Manhattan," the Indian charged him $24!

I have often wondered why it is that doctors write their prescriptions in Latin, but now I think I've finally figured it out. The doctor is actually writing a note to the druggist which says: "I've got mine---now you get yours."

My wife is a light eater. The minute it gets light, she starts to eat . . . She is dying to move to Beverly Hills, where all the big movie stars live. She says we'll start out on a small scale—just a swimming pool and tennis court. Then the next year we can build the house!

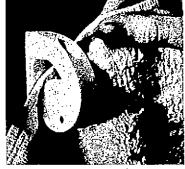

We have two dogs at our house, but we never let them sleep with the kidsthe kids bite!

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION RECALLS

lities of Party and Presidency

By Hoyt McAfee

WHEN Republicans rise to the challenge of picking the challenge of picking their presidential nomince in a San Francisco convention starting Monday, they may produce a surprise or two. Even so, it is a safe bet it will be no match for the blockbuster which came out of the Republican convention of the Republican convention in 1880. In that one, Republi-can delegates turned to an outspoken non-candidate and literally rammed the nomina-tion down James A. Gar-field's throat!

After 34 frustrating ballots, that national convention remained deadlocked. No one of the three contenders-Ulysses S. Grant, Gen. Sherman, or James Blaine-could muster enough votes to nail down the nomination. Promptly, then, an admirer proposed Garfield's name for consideration.

In response to that Garfield bounded to his feet and shouted: "Please disregard that, Mr. Chairman! As much as I appreciate the compliment, I am in no sense of the word a candidate. May I add for emphasis: I have no in-terest in the nomination."

BANG WENT the gavel at that moment—and James A. Garfield was ruled "out of order!" He continued to pratest, but was squelched at every turn. On the 36th bal-lot the "hot potato"—or presidential nomination—fell into his unwilling hands! As every history student knows, James A. Garfield rolled on to victory against his Democratic opponent, Winfield Scott Hancock. Later he was assassin-back in 1848. A hero in the war against Mexico, Taylor shrugged his shoulders over word that the Democrats had convened in Philadelphia.

Some expected Henry Clay (famous for the remark, "I'd rather be right than be President") to make the grade on his 5th try for the nomination Instead, he met defeat again. And Zachary Taylor, unconcerned over what was going on at the Democratic national convention, sought rest and relaxation at his home in Baton Rouge, La. One hot July morning soon thereafter, the postman came by on his appointed rounds. He held out a bulky letter and remarked: "Postage due on it, Mr, Taylor,"

ZACHARY TAYLOR re-fused to accept it and in-structed the postman: "Please return it to the sender." That letter contained the official notice of his nomination as the Whig candidate for pres-ally, he gave the stuffed shirts in Washington a real jult by riding his favorite horse, Whitey, through the horse, Whitey, through the White House gate and across the lawn. From that day till Zachary Taylor's death, his mount roamed and grazed freely about the White House grounds!

ANOTHER military hero-William Henry Harrison—also made himself "at home" immediately after entering the White House. His inauguration on Merch 4, 1841, proved a rugged, tiring experience for him: an occasion marked by his delivery of a recordsetting 8,445-word speech, out of doors and in a snowstorm!

Later, although he was by then house of voice and feverish, Harrison decided that what he needed was plenty of his favorite drink — milk. It distressed him to discover that the White House kept no cows on its premises! President Harrison hit upon a ready solution for that.

Accompanied by two aids, he visited the nearest caltle market, selected a cow, and led her back to the White House grounds! An improvised lean-to was erected for her shelter. And until Harrison's death one month later, he — the hero of the battle of Tippecanoe — had all the fresh milk he wanted,

IF THESE true incidents scem to be a bit wacky, stick around for a minute! John Quincy Adams was, from all accounts, the first U.S. President to indulge his yen for swimming in the raw. But he had to steal away to a quiet stretch of the Potomac River for his early-morning "dips."

An enterprising woman reporter in Washington secretly learned of these outings and followed the President one day. After he had divested

"Mr. President, I'm the one who has been trying to interview you for weeks. Now, shall we have a private, friendly chat?" By then, Presldent John Quincy Adams' were chattering. He knew there was only one way for him to retrieve his clothes so he answered every one of the girl reporter's questions rapidly! She wound up with

Orphan Dollars

ABANDONED bank accounts—orphan dollars—in the sum of more than $371,000 were transferred into the care and keeping of the State of California in 1963 simply because the depositors, or their heirs, failed to keep the accounts active and their whereabouts known. And, for all the state knows, some of this money might have been yours! Last year 1,447 accounts were de-clared "Abandoned" and the proceeds turned over to the state because the accounts had shown no activity for the past 15 years.

California law spells out quite clearly the procedures to be followed by banks, savings and loan associations, credit unions and insurance companies holding funds of persons presumed to be dead or from whom they have had no contact for 15 years.

A survey of six local branch banks indicate the reason savings and checking accounts show no activity such as deposits or withdrawals for such long periods of time are mani-

ply forget they have the account.

Another official said it was not uncommon for a man (or wife) to open a secret account. Occasionally they carry their secret to the grave.

Bad addresses, illegible writing, and misspelled names can be the cause of some accounts being labeled "dormant" and ultimately being declared "Abandoned."

In some cases depositors unfamiliar with the state laws put money into an account and deliberately "forget"

A recent case in point is that of a Garden Grove farmer, Approximately 19 years ago this Orange County cit-rus grower and his wife deposited $500 in a savings account as a gift to their newly-born grandson. The cou-ple planned to "forget" the account, letting it grow with interest, until the hoy was ready for college.

However, when the couple went to the bank to withdraw the money they were shocked to learn the money had been turned over to the state four years ago.

WHAT HAPPENED to the Garden Grove grandparents is not unusual. It happens to all accounts "abandoned" after 15 years.

But this does not mean that banks and savings and loan associationsboth governed by the same state laws are an unsafe place to keep money. Far from it, for the same state statutes which caused the bank to transfer the "abandoned" money to the state can be used by the depositor to recover his rightful property

Those who "distrust" banks and hide their cash under the mattress, or secrete it in the phone book, or in the toe of an old slipper, can only turn to their pastor for solace if their hardto-come-by savings goes up in smoke or over the back-yard fence in the pocket of some thief.

Procedures to be followed by financial institutions doing business in California is set forth in the section for Civil Procedure of the California Codes-Section 1500.

SUPPOSE some member of your family dies and you are surprised to last-known address of the depositor an address often 15 years old.

If the amount left by your uncle had been in a checking account and amounted to $10 or less, you might do just as he did—forget it!

SERVICE CHARGES against the account over the years, in most cases about 75 cents per month, would have eaten up the account, Also the state would charge a minimum of $10 or. I per cent of the amount (whichever is greater) as a handler's and caretaker's fee. For example, a checking ac-count of $135 abandoned for 15 years office it stopped earning interest. The state is not obligated to pay interest on money transferred to it for safekeeping.

ASSUMING THE bank and the state controller's office complied with the law this is what happened after your uncle's account was declared "Abandoned."

Between June 30 and Nov. 1 of the year the account became 15 years old, the bank notified the administrator of unclaimed property in the Sacramento office of the state controller the account was deemed to have been abandoned. The controller's office then sent a letter to the last known address of your uncle. If no reply was received his name and address was published "in English, in a newspaper of general circulation in the county in which the person was last known to have lived at least once each week for two successive weeks."

In .1963, the list for Los Angeles County was published on Nov. 13 and 20 in the Los Angeles Times and for Orange County in the Fullerton News Tribune on the same dates.

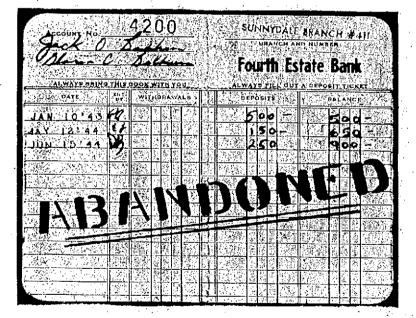

IF YOUR UNCLE had given no address or one that was out of state then the legal notice would have been published in the county in which the bank or savings and loan association has its principal place of business.

The Bank of America's home office is in San Francisco. The Farmers & Merchants Bank, the Security First National Bank, the United California Bank, and the First Western Bank all have their home offices in Los An-geles County. The main office of the United States National Bank is in San Diego County. However, if your uncle's account had amounted to $25 or less the controller would not have been required to have advertised it. For such amounts he is only required to send a letter to the depositor's last known address,

The controller is authorized to charge the account a pro rata share of the expense of advertising it. He may also charge against the account any expenses incurred in the handling, any expenses incurred in the handling, storing, or selling of any properties given into his care. In the case of abandoned "real property" these charges might be levied for automobile and truck storage, commission for the sale of real estate, or for taxes and similar liens. and similar liens.

SINCE YOUR rich but secretive uncle failed to contact the controller or his bank the money in his account was transferred to the Administrator was transferred to the Authinistrator of Unclaimed Property. Money received by the state is deposited in an account entitled "Abandoned Property." (In 1960 the amount "abandoned Continued on Page 20)

learn you have inherited the proceeds of a savings account heretofore un-known to you. You go to the bank where the account is supposed to be on deposit and are told there is no record of such an account.

Here is what may have happened to your money and what you can do to get it back.

Before funds in the account may be turned over to the state; "reasonable diligence" must be exercised in attempting to locate the "missing" depositor. This effort usually takes the form of a letter mailed to the

would have been entirely consumed by monthly service charges

However, since your wealthy uncle left you his money in a savings account, take hope. Policies are slightly different concerning savings accounts compared to those governing personal or commercial checking accounts.

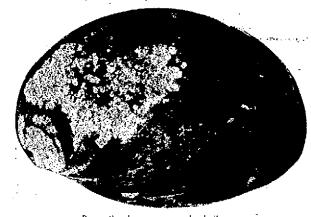

Savings accounts earn interest and thus grow through the years.

The lowest amount on which any of the six local branch banks pay in-terest vary from a minimum deposit of $1 to a minimum of $25. If your wealthy uncle's account was above these minimums it would have grown through the years, but only up to 15 years. Had he "activated" the account with a deposit or withdrawal or by communicating with the bank the account would not have been turned over to the state and the interest would continue to have been added to the original amount.

When your inherited account was turned over to the state controller's

Beneath abaiones rough sheli is a source of prized food,

By Lew Allison

CALIFORNIAN Haliotidae are one of the most primitive kinds of snails, whose shells are found imbedded in Paleozoic rocks.

They also are the prize of the div-ing sportsman, the delicacy of the epicure, and still important commer-cially to California.

Abalone once abounded by the thousands on the tidal rocks of most of the California coast. Waders could get them, and once they began to find out how tasty the abalone could be, the waders did get them, eluding game wardens with great hauls of them from dollar size up. The abalone quickly disappeared from such easily accessible places.

But there still are rewarding catches for adventuresome sportsmen who will risk rocks, rough water and the depths to pry them loose,

HALIOTIS IS one of the toughest critters you're likely to come up with -if you do get him up. One doesn't just wiggle down with his swim fins. pluck an abalone off a rock and pop back up ready for dinner.

If you're going after him you'll need a tool. A husky screwdriver will do, or you can purchase a stainless steel or aluminum abalone iron, or use an old-fashioned tire iron. If you get under one before he's aware of you, he can be flipped off his rock with just a good quick pry. But he a little slow about it and that abalone will be clamped down solid and you're going to have a lot of trouble

There's a pretty common fable dealing with the abalone fisherman who got his fingers clamped under Haliotis' shell and there he stayed until the tide came up and drowned him. This is reaching pretty far. But there is an element of danger in this sport, just the same, particularly for the free diver who may be out of breath when his fingers get pinched. It's easy to panic down there.

ABALONES FEED on kelp, which means, too, there often are entangling weeds around your prize, and you have to fight these as well as keep on the alert for any unpleasant wild life like eels or sharks,

So the first rule of abalone fishing is pretty obvious-don't do it alone Even commercial divers with professional equipment recognize that law,

The second rule is not a matter of life and death to you, but it is to the abalone—observe bag limits and legal sizes. The sportsman's limit is five, in combination of all species. Minimum sizes: Red abalone, greatest shell diameter, 7 inches; green, 61/4 inches; pink, 6 inches; black, 5

Man is almost the only predator that depletes the abalone population. The fishery is stabilized, and each year-the season is from March 16 to Jan. 14-just about the same number of abalone grow to legal size, and the state's total catch is about the same, though the number of divers may vary.

Wardens watch as closely as possible, and overlimit or undersize catches can be most expensive. An abalone you don't want to keep must be put by hand right back on the rock where you found him, He will move around the rock for a bit foraging for food but he likes to return. right to that smooth spot he's worn and he's not much for traveling

ONCE YOU'VE got five fat mollusks in the bag, you're still a long way from the dinner table. Haliotis is hooked to his beautiful shell by a big muscle in the middle of his back, and that has to be cut before he emerges. The unpleasant business part at the bottom of the creature is removed, the tough outer surface and the edges are trimmed off, leaving about a pound of meat from the mid-dle known as the "foot," or muscle. A rubber tire easing is just as tender

Cut it across the grain with a sharp knife into half-inch steaks. These are placed on a block and massaged, none too gently, with a wooden mal-let. After a while the steak, now somewhat thinner, feels soft and velvety. It can be pounded too much, of course, into a pasty mess; however, hard spots remain if it's whacked too lightly or unevenly,

. This has to be a hand process, even in the commercial processing plants. If you run the steak through a pulverizer as you would a cube steak, you will have nothing better than a handful of rubber bands.

Once flattened out tenderly, though, it's a delicate, tasty morsel you have. Salt and pepper the steak, dip it in beaten egg and then in bread crumbs, and fry it in hot oil until delicately brown. Don't cook it foo much or it will be tough and dry. Properly done, the finished entree is like a choice yeal cutlet, only better.

ONCE ABALONE were harvested for their shells, which were shipped to China, to be cut into blanks, then shipped back to American manufac-turers of ornaments. Today only a few of the shells are in demand for novelties, and the rest are left to disintegrate. The sportsman may clean them and seal the holes to make unusual, beautiful chowder bowls.

Orientals developed the use of abalone for food early in California history. At one time many were dried and shipped to China until state law prohibited this too-rapid depletion. Canning never proved profitable. Today about six million pounds are harvested commercially each year-about half of them in the north-central area, chiefly near Morro Bay, and the other half in Southland waters, mainly off the channel islands.

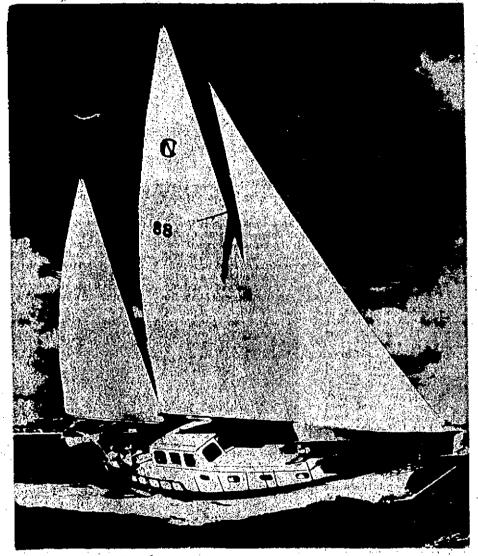

There are processing plants at Santa Barbara, Newport Beach and San Diego. There the steaks are froz-en to be moved to distributors, who market them mainly to restaurants and hotels. They can be bought at retail at a relatively few markets that offer seafood specialties.

A DIVER covering one to five miles of the rocky ocean floor in a day may send 20 dozen or more abalone in bags up to his companion, or two partners, in the boat above. For these they may receive $3 a dozen at the plant. The commercial diver, who op-erates under state permit, may not take abalone in water less than 20 feet deep and his catch must conform to minimum sizes. With SCUBA equipment—air tanks—the skin diver may invade this harvest ground in the depths. But usually the sportsman keeps closer to shore, and with a little experience he can take his limit with no more equipment than fins, face mask and something to pry loose the reluctant gastropod.

Commercial interests blame water pollution for depletion of the abalone from the shores of this area. Conservationists are more likely to blame the game hogs. At any rate, commercial divers have been forced out to the islands for their livelihood—mostly Santa Barbara and San Clemente Islands and a relatively small fishing grounds near San Diego.

Globe-Trotter With Sails

Known around the world, the 40-foot "Newporter" ketch (above) is the development of C. E. Ackerman, Orange County boat builder, who designed them for utility and comfort.

By Lou Jobst

RANGE COUNTIAN C. E. Ackerman's yearning to make sailing a loss Spartan business has put the name of Newport Beach on every sea of the globe.

Ackerman is creator of the renowned 40-foot "Newporter" ketch, possibly the world's most sought-after and best known medium-sized sailing vessel.

And, undoubtedly, the most famous of the famous breed is Newporter No. 49, better

Boalbuilder Ackerman conceived his "dream boat" design during a two year, 15,000-mile voyage through the South Pacific.

HE LIKED to say he began work on creating the 11-ton ketch-rigged craft when he stretched out on the cabin deck of the 45-foot South Seas schooner in an effort to find the section of the boat with the least pitch and roll for the purpose of creating a level galley.

At the time of Ackerman's cruise, sailing was back-breaking work with few conveniences and less comforts. You were considered soft if your boat carried an auxiliary engine or even had a toilet aboard. Cabins were small, stuffy and conducive to seasickness.

Few women were attracted to such a life, and the wife of the serious yachtsman was likely to become a "boating widow."

Ackerman set about on a stem-to-stern, top-of-the-mast to bottom-of-the-keel study of his schooner and, during a two-year period, developed blueprints for an airy and light craft capable of comfortably carrying six to eight persons.

conducive to comfort aboard are shown in this view of the main cabin which includes chargo a store.

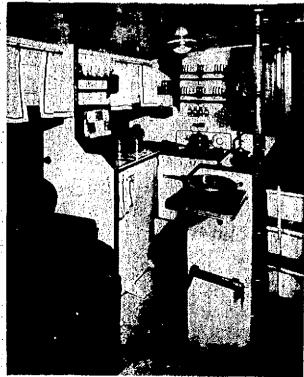

MAKING EXTENSIVE use of fiber glass, he built a boat that featured a wide main cabin with diring, steeping and head room (6 feet, 4 inches) for four adults and a deckhouse stateroom for two others. He installed such unheard of luxuries as a cabin stairway (climinating a hand-over-hand ladder), a fullyappointed modern galley and shower and bath. He redesigned the usually uncomfortable cockpit into a lounging station for eight persons. He even put in a charcoal-burging colonial fire-

The completed boat weighs it tons, has a waterline length of 32 feet, a 13-foot beam and carries 837 square feet of sail. She can do nine knots.

Ackerman had planned to sail his "dream boat" back to South Pacific, but was prevailed upon to sell his craft. He built another and then another until his six-month stuy on the beach had stretched out to 17 years and nearly 100 "Newporters.

NUMBER 49 was built at Newport Beach in 1957 for a man in Racine, Wis., and then sold in 1958 to Ted-Richmond of Beverly Hills.

ESTANG VA TIMOM STATES ON SUNDAY

Corridas for the Yankee Dollars

By Rich Roberts

OST sun-loving residents of Southern California find it easier to leave the country than to leave the state.

This peculiarity of Southland living offers the opportunity to participate in another way of life in a foreign country — Mexico — without such international nuisances as visas, injections and travelers checks.

You don't even need to bring your toothbrush, unless you brush after every meal, because it's a cinch to be back across the border and

home by bedtime.

But although Mexico is, unmistakably, a foreign country, the activity and economy of Tijuana, Baja California, is geared to the United States.

YOU SPEAK your own language and observe your own customs, privileges granted freely by your hosts privileges because you are also spending your own money.

The chief single tourist attraction during the warm months is bullfighting, the Latin nations' traditional corrida, a Sunday afternoon spectacle of blood and brayerv.

Even this in Tijuana, is presented primarily for the benefit of Americans from north of the border

Because of the tourist trade, Sunday is a working day in Tijuana. A survey showed that the largest group attending the bullfights comes from the upper Southland area; next are tourists from other parts of the U.S., followed by people from the San Diego

THE POOR Tijuanan seldom manages to get out of his pottery shop between the hours of 4 and 6 p.m. when the bullfights are in swing.

Many who have visited the bullfights prefer to leave their cars on this side of the border, Tijuana traffic is Mexico's answer to Destruction Derby.

For a dollar one may park a car on this side of the line at any of several convenient lots located about 100 yards from the border.

Then for 50 cents per person-with a full load-one of the eager Mexican chauffeurs will hustle you into town or directly to Plaza El Toreo, the downtown bull ring—sort of like taking the jalony, and leave the driving to Serape.

But it is suggested that the standard 50-cents-per-person fare be specified before you enter the machine.

THE OTHER bull ring, Plaza Monumental, is a longer drive and the going rate is a dollar a head. Monumental, the "bull ring by the sea," operates in July and August, Plaza El Toreo in September.

Tickets are $3,85 to $12,65 at the ring.

With bullfighting winning more patrons from north of the border, Tijuana has become a corrida center.

This weekly dispatch of a half-dozen bulls puts a strain on the breeding farms. While Tijuana cabbies have long since learned how to reclaim used cars, nobody has figured out how to reclaim used bulls.

But whether you share the

Latins' devout understanding of the corrida or regard the whole thing as a ghastly exhibition of cruelty to animals, it does make for an interesting afternoon.

The taxi ride alone is worth the price of admission.

Trumpeters signal the phases of the bullfight, taking cues from judges seated below who award trophies

NGENIOUS USE of flower arrangements in the remodeled and enlarged residence of Mr. and Mrs. Buford Moore, 5218 Ebell St., has resulted in what friends of the Moores call a flower garden home.

From the street face, the dwelling would be termed neat, attractive but rather small. Changes that include additions have altered its actual complex, however, And Mrs. Moore has been responsible for planning and executing all of the interior decorating as well as much of the manual labor, including knocking out walls, to bring about her concepts of theme and

A large bay window in the living room was one of the first alterations made in the home, adding fresh qualities to both the living room and the exterior of the house. In the center of the window, Mrs. Moore placed a high pedestal supporting one of the handsome flower arrangements.

A CURVED black sofa faces the window across the room. Small occasional chairs in white are nearby.

The kitchen has been completely redone with new cup-

Color tones are aqua and green. A long sofa faces the fireplace across the room. Twin chairs in olive green are at right angles to the sofa viewing the TV in the corner.

ADJOINING THE family room is a large, closed-in lanai, where, in a tropical setting, are a sofa, occasional chairs, coffee tables, a small dining set, and various colored lights placed around the ceiling.

The use of the flower arrangements is one factor that gives the home its individuality. There are flowers in a hanging basket above a dinette table in the kitchen. A large cluster is on the other side of the balcony by the table. Near the glass wall in the family room, overlooking the garden, is a large plant. Mrs. Moore has blended the artificial with the real in such a way that a second glance is needed to see which is which.

Subtle elegance is the mood, and textured and wood-grained finished hardboard wall treatments are the method in this up-to-the-minute dining room

It's Done With Hardboard

RASHION'S pendulum is well past mid-swing on its trip from casual to elegant. Left behind are "far-out" modern and strictly functional furnishings, while right ahead are the true classics—those materials, textures and design motifs that keep coming back like a song.

One reason for the return to classic motifs is their versatility. Not limited to one room, not dated by novelty treatments or gimmicks, they are enduringly appropriate. They wear well.

The classic elegance of today is a far cry from the 18th century "don't touch" drawing room, for it's built to take the punches of family living—and come out smiling.

For example, such traditionally elegant backgrounds as marble and richly figured wood grains can now be effected with paneling of dent resistant, wipe-clean hardboard. Even the expensive look of filigree grillwork can be achieved with die-perforated panels of this inexpensive material.

Furnishings of many periods are at their best against these classic backgrounds, but especially well suited to their timeless quality is a new "Concerto 75" collection by Basic-Witz, shown here in a dining room.

The interplay of three textures on the dining room walls serves as a pale, elegant foil for the deep-toned furniture and the clear splashes of color in carpeting, lampshade and accessories. These textures—cherry wood-grained finished, the look of travertine marble and filigree panel doors—are but three faces of hardboard's many new surfaces.

The deep-textured simulated marble hardboard (far less costly but more flexible than the real article) makes a handsome pedestal for the Oriental statue which gives the room its Far Eastern flavor.

Capable of producing many decorative moods, these same components—classic-lined furniture and hardboard paneling team up in a bedroom that is long on charm but short on space. Here, too, is elegance. And the prevailing mood can grow, with only a change of the hed-covering and accessories.

Visual stretching of a bedroom's tiny dimensions is accomplished by using the randomgrooved walnut wood-grained finished hardboard wall panels horizontally instead of vertically. Relating the dark finish of the furniture to that of the walls also makes the room seem

Other uses for the filigree hardboard panels include room dividers, folding decorative screens, cabinet doors and shutters. They may be painted to match or contrast with any decor and, like all hardboard products, can be handled with ordinary wood-working tools by the family handyman.

What makes hardboard so ideally suited to today's twin demands of practicality and elegance is its unique nature. An engineered wood product, it can outwear other wood panel products for it is more resistant to moisture, dents and the "hard knocks" of general family use. It also offers the "plus values" of easy cleaning and easy maintenance.

To the wealth of prefinished textures and surfaces—ribbed, striated, perforated, embossed and wood-grained finished—of familiar hardboard paneling another finish has been added. Plastic. This brings hardboard panels into the kitchen, bath, laundry and other areas where high humidity might pose a problem. Special designs in the new plastic-coated fiardboard are geared toward kitchen or bathroom use—such as tile effects, pastels and small-scale decorator patterns.

Whether it is used to set the theme of an elegant living room or as a buffer against scuffs and dents in the children's playroom, hardboard ranks as a contemporary classic for its ability to "take it"—and look lovely in the process.

king for a Job

By Howard E. Kent

QUESTION: "Can you offer some tips on how a new graduate should conduct himself when he goes to be interviewed for a job?"

ANSWER: The United States Department of Labor provides a checklist of items which its counselors have found most important. Most of the items apply to newcomers in the lob market as well as to older applicants:

1. Take with you a summary of past experience and education, with names, places, and dates... 2. Have ready a list of three to six people or firms (with names, addresses and telephone numbers) which may be used as references.

3. Take your Social Security card.

4. Don't take anyone with you to the interview.

5. Be on time for your interview, not even one minute late.

6. Dress well, but not gaudily. Be clean and neat. If you are a woman, do not use flashy make up or excessive jewelry; if you are a man, avoid sports

7. Even if you feel tired or a little unwell, sit up and look alert. Don't yawn, slouch or show signs of nervousness.

8. Answer all the employer's questions frankly, honestly, and briefly. Don't boast, but speak with confidence.

9. If you are asked to fill out a number of forms or to take various tests, do so cheerfully and do as well as you can.

10. When you are asked, point out the value of your past experience, especially as It in polles to the job you are seeking.

11. Don't let yourself argue with the person interviewing you.
12. Do not criticize others, including your past employers or teachers.

13. Keep your personal, domestic or financial problems out of the conversation. The employer only wants to know what you can do and how well you can do it—he isn't interested in your troubles.

14. Be polite. Show courtesy and respect for the person interviewing you.

Whether it's for surfing on a boat wake, a new sport, or riding the ocean's big waves, the necessary board may be home-made easily, inexpensively from a pattern.

By Steve Ellingson

IT'S BEEN A long time coming, but it's here—surfing for everyone on any water anywhere. Heretofore, surfing has been limited to those who live near the ocean. Now that same sport can be enjoyed by millions of boating families on any lake or river. The idea is completely new and is called "boat surfing," It's so simple that it's surprising someone didn't think of it years ago.

Here's what you do run your boat (outboards and inboards work equally well) between 8 and 12 miles an hour. The wake from your boat creates a veritable "ocean sea" behind you. Lying on your surfboard, you hang onto a 20-foot length of towline as the boat driver eases up to maximum wake speed. Keep your halance, rise to your knees and gradually, stand up. Suddenly, you'll feel that "propulsion," drawing you along. Toss the towline clear and you're riding free. A little practice and you'll soon be cutting from wake to wake at speeds much faster than the boat.

UNLIKE the traditional coastal surfers, who ride their waves a couple of hundred yards off shore, the "boat surfer" does his stuff a mere 20 of 30 feet behind a slow running boat. The suction of the boat's wake carries him along for miles on end. The sport is catching fire everywhere there are boats, water and people. Before the summer is over, it's expected to rival water skiing as the world's fastest rising sport.

Surfboards are expensive to buy, but inexpensive when you build them yourself. The one pictured here may be used either on the ocean or behind your boat. And any amateur can undertake this project with success when he uses a full-sized pattern. A list of required materials along with lots of easy-to-follow illustrations and directions are included. The pattern also shows how to use the board after you've built

New Theory in Heart Attacks

By Ben Zinser

ITTLE fissures in the inside walls of arteries may prove to be the big factor leading to a heart attack, new research shows.

The little cracks are microscopic breaks in fatty patches that have been deposited in the inner lining of coronary arteries, the vessels that bring blood to the heart muscle.

A study of the coronary arteries of 20 humans who died of heart attack shows that each instance the o celuding blood clot that caused the attack was firmly anchored in an artery-wall fis-

The finding is that of Dr. Paris Constantinides of Washington University School of Medicine, St. Louis.

His study also shows that the little wall cracks are also the site of hemor-rhages (bleeding) which often accom-pany clot formation.

DOCTORS ARE trying to find the precise cause of "ice cream headache," according to Virginia Medical Monthly.

This type of headache is very common, says the report. It's a sudden pain in the right front skull that occurs while eating ice cream on a hot summer day.

RING-FINGER flesh injuries, caused by accidental traction on the ring, can be reduced in severity by a simple preventive measure:

Have a slot cut in the ring to allow ring expansion in the event of accidental pulling of the ring.

The idea is proposed by two Yale University plastic surgeons in a report in Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery.

The surgeons got the idea from a 27-year-old male patient. The man had once snagged his wedding ring in a : machine, and the result was a ripping away of a lot of finger tissue. He cut a slot in the ring to prevent a possible recurrence.

A NEW ANTIBIOTIC, capreomycin, appears to be as effective as streptomycin in the treatment of tuberculosis, a Veterans Administration research project discloses.

The drug currently is available only for research. It has not yet been released for general use,

Drs. Luther B. Newman and William S. Schwartz of the Oteen, N. C., VA Hospital, a d m i n istered capreomycin along with another anti-TB drug, PAS. Only a small number of patients got the drug, so more research is needed, they say.

THE DRUG Ismelin significantly lowers blood pressure in the pregnancy complication known as toxemia, Bombay researchers report.

Further, the drug in no way harms the patient or her unborn child, says a report in the Indian Journal of Medical Science.

Select eight similar plates, Wash and dry thoroughly and paint them a solid white on one side—four of the TV plates on the recessed or concave side, and the other four on the convex side. Alternating these on the pole later gives variety and depth to the faces.

When white paint is dry, brush in features in black with touches of brilliant red, yellow and green for vivid accents.

NOW MOUNT the plates close together by nailing with tacks to a five-foot (or higher) board, about three inches wide and one inch thick. Place a short cross piece at the top for fastening the wing spread (made out of an aluminum pie plate cut in two) on the top-most TV plate, as shown.

This totem pole may be used indoors, or, by sharpening the lower edge it may be stuck into the ground in your patio or yard—an object of laughing mimicry for your children and their friends.

D. FORBES-ROBERTSON

NASCAMBA DAMENT PARCON, PRESIDENT PRESIDENT

GEORGE ABBE'S latest work, "ONE MORE PUR-ITAN," Windfall Press, Chicago, $2.75), a novella, and so small in size, holds more interest than many a fat novel. The canvas is New England; though sketched mainly in various shades of gray, the characters live in these, a poet's pages, the whole moving and rhythmic prose.

The husband, Neil, a teacher, in order to find life bearable with his wife, Verna, lives with her family. Verna torn between her Aunt Mary, who controls the household; her mother, a person less aggressive; and her husband. Noric, the young visitor to their home, brings to Neil's hours a new longing: Norie is that warm fire Neil's household dominated by chilled neurotics. But that is only the bare outline of the novella. Flesh and blood are here.

Abbe, well known for his lectures in Southland colleges and clubs, and as a contributor to the quality magazines, knows New England as few novelists know it.

The Era of King Edward VII

By VERA WILLIAMS

WULL sweep of the era of 1855 to 1910 is caught in "KING EDWARD VII" by Magnus (Dutton, Phillip $8,50.)

Edward VII was a fascinating and complex man who lived in a fascinating and complex era. He lived and loved life to the fullest—but he was deeply religious, patridevoted to his and otic family.

Edward's boyhood was austere — remember that his mother was Queen Victoria! But the pace of his life quickened.

In his time kings ruled, India was the "richest jewel of the empire," Disraeli, Gladstone, Franz-Joseph, the Kaiser and the Czar were living beings to be reckoned with. So were Lily Langtry, Lord Balfour, Bismarck, Kitchener and a young firebrand named Winston Churchill.

The 500-page volume comes to America after months on the best seller lists in Britain.

EVEN IN backward Asia women have achieved a new public status in recent years. "WOMEN IN THE NEW ASIA" (Columbia University, $10) describe the impact of that change on the private and the domestic lives of both men and women in a number of countries in Southeast Asia. Editied by Barbara E. Ward, the study is a UNESCO project and a very interesting one, Burma, Ceylon, India, Malaya, Indonesia, Thailand, Viet Nam, Laos, Pakistan, the Philippines, and Singapore are the nations discussed.

Two Burmese women are among the contributors; Mi Mi Khaing on balance and harmony between the sexes in her country; Ni Ni Gyi describes the pattern of social change in her own family, from her grandmothers' days to her own. Three generations of a Calcutta family are pictured by Jyotirmoyee Sarma of India, A Laotian, Banyan Phimmasone Levy (she is now the wife of a Western scholar on the Orient) writes autobiographical notes on the yesterday and today of women's lives in that strife-torn little country.

Recipe of the Week

ANTALOUPES are basic to many recipes for delicious eating and such is the case with this week's $5 prize winning recipe submitted by Mrs C. H. Yates, 9342 Marietta Dr., Garden Grove. The recipe:

Cantaloupe Supreme

1 ripe cantaloupe

pkg. (large) cream cheese pkg. cherry gelatin can fruit cocktail

Whipping cream

Peel cantaloupe deep enough so it is all ripe. Next, cut off one end just large enough to take out seeds and clean out. Have gelatin prepared and pour into cantaloupe and replace end. Set in dish or container so it will sit upright until gelatin is set. Next take cream cheese that has been softened and spread all over cantaloupe and put back in refrigerator until set. When ready to serve, slice around, put round slices on lettuce leaves. Put a dash of whipped cream on top.

What's your favorite recipe? For each recipe published in this space, Southland will pay $5. Men are urged to submit their recipes along with the ladies. Send yours, with name and address to Recipe Contest Editor, Southland Magazine 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90812.

Secret War in the Kitchen

By Ruth C. Ikerman

VEN ON days when all seems serene in the family kitchen, the housewife may be in the middle of a new battle in the constant tussle with nature.

Right now I'm trying to win an argument with a beaupersuading it to ripen fast enough for me to bake a batch of cookies by next Saturday. It would take a safecracker's tools to even dent the skin of this delicious fruit when it is intent on keeping its skin intact.

Why fruit as good to eat as this should object so heartily to becoming the ingredients for something so tasty as a persimmon pudding, I'll never understand, But they are sure fighting back and right now seem to have won round 15, but I'm going to turn them one more time, hoping for success,

When I bring the pudding finally to the table, nobody else in the family will have any idea of the battles of the secret war which this housewife has been waging with the ripening fruit,

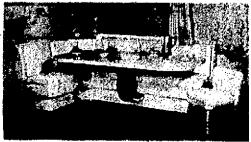

THEN THERE'S the housewife's battle with seeds in lemons and oranges. Seeds which stick like they were growing in mucilage when you try to pry them out first with a spoon or fork will slip out like greased lightning and fly clear into the bottom of the pie custard. Then you must stir and stir to get the seeds out of the flavoring before the pie goes into the oven.

But the real battle victor in most kitchen wars at our house is that choice piece of walnut hull which merrily mixes in with the choicest of the white meats. You can't get it out without spooning through all the rest of the fruit cake you are mixing.

And why try, for it is al-ready firmly imbedded in the piece which is destined for your most critical relative to put into her mouth at a family dinner. The way that wal-nut hull with unercing ac-curacy finds that particular slice in any given loaf is final proof of the superiority of nature over the housewife in the secret wars in the kitchen.

Red abalone are the principal commercial species for the north-central part of the state. Most are taken from a 25-mile area around Morro Bay, some from San Nicolas Island and a few near San Diego, but they are rare along the southern coast. They are the largest of all abalone and draw the highest prices. Sometimes they are found over 11 inches in diameter but average nearer 8 inches. The reds are found in active surf, seldom in coves or quiet water. Most of them are at depths of 35 to 50 feet, although many are taken between high tide mark and 25 feet.

PINK ABALONE, the important commercial variety of the southern area, are plentiful off the channel islands and prefer quiet coves and inlets-an advantage to the Southland skin diver. They are most plentiful between 20 and 80 feet, but are found from the tidal rocks to depths as great as 180 feet. They may be as large as 10 inches, averaging 6-7 inches. The pinks have been fished commercially only since World War II. They now account for almost half the state's total product.

Also likely to be found by the skin diver in this area are black and green abalone, both of which like shallow water, Greens, easily taken, have been heavily exploited, but still make up about 20 per cent of the southern commercial catch. Because their meat is not as attractive as the pure white meat of pinks or reds, the green abalone is not as highly prized. The blacks are abundant, but because of their small size and darker meat---which is not, however inferior in. quality-they are not much sought.

If the abalone become extinct, it will be because of game hogs and pollution, and not the fault of the female abalone. During a given couple of days of late spring a six-inch female may release more than two million eggs into the sca, there to be fertilized by the male's sperm, Free-swimming larvae hatch in the water and after two or three weeks begin to grow a shell, then slowly sink to the bottom to fasten themselves to rocks where, if living conditions will support them, a limited number of survivors will live on algae they can scrape off. By one year they have attained the size of an inch and begin consuming seaweed, and within four to five they have matured at three to four inches in diameter. Their rate of growth from that time on depends on environment.

When he was sent overseas to make a film later that year, he put the "Black Swan" aboard a freighter and shipped her to the Mediterranean island of Majurca. He intended to make a cruise aboard, but was fatally sticken by a heart attack while on the set of the movie, "Solomon and Sheba."

"THE BLACK SWAN" was bought by an RAF flier who, during 1959-60, sailed it throughout the Mediterranean, touching most of the famed ports and landfalls of the area. Renamed the "Black Moth" in 1960, she was taken out into the Atlantic, up the coast of France to England.

After re-fitting, including the installation of electronic gear and a Mercedes Benz en-gine, the Newporter 49 set out, in Sept. 1961 on a south Atlantic crossing to the western hemisphere. The 10,000mile voyage via Gibraltar, North Africa, South America and the Barbados ended 11 months later at New York.

The trip, considered one of the classics of modern sailing, has firmly established the Newporter as a globe-trotter in a field dominated by generally much larger vessels.

Lively Fish for a Dead Sea

By Bob Young

C'ALIFORNIA'S largest lake, the Salton Sea, was once a dry and desolate stretch of desert wasteland, Today it provides one of the most remarkable sports fishing areas in the nation.

On pleasant spring and winter weekends, the Salton Sea is dotted with the boats of fishermen. Certainly there's nothing unusual about that, for many lakes attract numerous weekend fishermen. But fishing in this 340-squaremile body of salt water is unique in one respect: every game fish in it belongs to a salt water species transplanted from the ocean. Salton

Young fisherman and corvina he took from Salton Sea, casting a small, wobbling spoon from the shoreline. Sea, which once supported only a few mullet that got into it through irrigation water, now has a population of

the millions.

BECAUSE of the peculiar character of the sea — high salinity, and water temperatures which frequently near 100 degrees - it seemed an almost hopeless task to introduce a fish that would live. And, as a matter of fact, since 1929 a total of 34,000 fish, drawn from 35 species, 27 genera and 15 families—ranging from trout to tortuavahave been tested in the Sea. Till 1955, only two, the coast-al mudsucker and the gulf croaker, both bait fish, survived.

The croakers made an explosive growth and in a few years, they numbered in the millions. The ability of the croaker to adapt itself spurred interest in developing the sports possibilities of the lake. A "shot-gun" plant of other species was made and they came up with a bell-ringing success. Both the sargo, a small, tasty game fish, and the orange mouth corvina, made the grade. It was especially encouraging in the case of the corvina, a popular fish with the sportsmen in the Gulf of California and a fish closely related; to the so-called sea trout of the Gulf of Mexico. In additions to being able to withstand wide ranges of salinity, food and water temperatures, the corvina has other advantages: it is an excellent fighter, will take artificial lures, is an ex-cellent food fish, and sometimes reaches rather large sizes. One specimen netted by the Fish and Game men weighed more than 40 pounds!

THE SARGO, also a very desirable food fish, reaches a size of only 10 to 12 inches, but fishermen like it because it is a bluegill type fighter, caught on bait, and is a good pan-sized fish.

At the present time, the greatest limiting factor in the number of fish is probably the food supply; but artificial reefs have been dumped into the Sea which will attract pile worms and other food for fish. Icthyologists are continually seeking out new ways to enlarge the crop of available fish.

Corvina are astonishingly strong and when the pressure is applied they come exploding from the water like a tarpon. They make short, incredibly fast runs which test both the metal of the reel and the mettle of the fisher-

Happily, these fine, fighting fish may be caught from both boat and shore with nearly equal success. The best fishing time is during the spring and fall. Although the fish bite well in the summer, the desert weather is discouragingly hot. The Sea is ringed with accommodations of, all sorts, including those for campers. There are ramps and boat basins at various other sites along the shore.

Iris may be planted in bare-root form in mid-year and some varieties of bearded iris will bloom twice a year.

By Joe Littlefield

EARDED IRIS are not only a garden favorite today, but they were one of the favorite flowers of ancient times. These lovely blossoms were named after the Greck goddess Iris of the rainbow who was the fleet-footed messenger of Zeus and Hera.

These flowering plants were grown by the ancient Greeks on the graves of their women, because one of Iris's duties was to lead women's souls to the Elysian Fields.

Charles V of France chose the form of the bearded iris "Fleur-de-Lis" as the royal emblem of France.

Today, bearded iris have become so improved in size, form, and color variations, that they merit choice spots in our gardens. What's more important, hybridizers have, and still are, introducing variety, onco bred-Wenonah a soft powder blue veined white, a lower grower than the fleur-de-lis bearded type. There are more varieties of these repeat bloomers, and newer varieties, too. Check with an iris specialist about them.

Remember that winter bloomers will suffer frost damage if you grow them in areas where the frosts are quite frequent.

BEARDED IRIS may be grown in full sun or partial shade. Planted along a walk or driveway they present an informal hedge type planting...

July is a good month to dig up old iris clumps, refreshen the planting area with some well decomposed manure or compost soil mixed with bone meal. The old clumps should be separated and the young plants reset.

Be careful that part of the top surface of the rhizome is above the soil line.

Iris plantings in heavy soil should be planted on built-up "plateaus." This means the planting area of the soil should be two inches or so higher than the rest of the flower bed. Now's still time to buy bare root iris for planting.

Carlcature by PETE WILLETTE ALFRED CORNWELL

Champagne and Candlelight

NOTHING in the whole beautiful world pleases Alfred Cornwell more than designing a, nèw treat to enchant the palates and sensibilities of his patrons.

At his fashionable Alfred Restaurant, 700 E. 45th St. near Atlantic, Alfred once again has created a masterpiece, Called Champagne and Candlelight, this marvelous dinner includes a broiled filet mignon with wonderful mushrooms and a Bordelaise sauce. Since this is an Alfred creation, naturally it also includes much more, such as champagne (a delightful Hanns Kornell vintage); colorful, tastebud-tingling hors d'oeuvres; soup du jour or fine salad, vegetables and beverage. The grand finale is crepes Suzette, an extraordinary dessert confection.

The price for that array of goodness really shouldn't be mentioned, since perfection should never be priced. But, for the curious, let us note that it is $4.95, a reasonable sum indeed, when you consider Alfred's surroundings and service, Champagne and Candlelight, incidentally, is featured only Monday through Thursday nights.

Daily and Sunday, Alfred's serves such other-epicurean treasures as grenadines of beef, frog legs Provencale, crepes Neptune (French pancakes stuffed with crabmeat), jumbo mushrooms Marianne and numerous fowl and sea food delights, such as pompano Key West, an unusual fish affair baked in a vegetable parchment bag. The dinners, priced from $2.75, include hors d'oeuvres, soup or salad, vegetables and

TV and Radio Editor

Bill Szathmary is a family failure. He says so.

As Bill Dana, well, he's ok. As Jose Jimenez, well, he's alright, too.

But as Bill Szathmary-strictly a fam-

He hopes newsmen attending the 31st International Convention of the American Newspaper Guild in Long Beach's Lafayette Hotel won't hold that against him when he entertains them at their banquet Tuesday night.

Now you take his successful brothers and you'll see why Bill feels he's kind of let the family down.

There's Irving Szathmary, arrangerdirector-composer. Irving, back in the 30s, was a prime mover in the breakthrough of modern jazz, quite an accomplishment.

Currently, to keep an eye on the family failure, he's musical director of "The Bill Dana Show." It's a hellhoy series which returns to NBC-TV for a second-season starting in the fall.

THERE'S AL Szathmary who made it big in the construction business. Cur-rently, he's helping the family failure build his future by serving as Bill's personal álde.

The genius of the family is Arthur Szathmary, professor of philosophy at Princeton University.

Arthur graduated from high school when he was 15 years old and received his first degree from Harvard when he was 18. 6 5 9 ...

"HE COMMUNICATES on every level

there is," said Bill.

For awhile, the philosophy professor communicated the fact that Bill Dana is his brother. But he's stopped that,

It's not that he's ashamed of the family failure, nor would Arthur agree with Bill in the latter's own self-definition.

It's simply that when students realized the philosopher and comedian we're brothers, enrollment in the Princeton prof's classes swelled out of proportion.

The knowledge of his popularity has not swelled Bill's head.

"I'm the family failure," he repeated. "I'm the only one who never made it.
What you going to do?"

There are a few consolations. Like speaking French, German, Span-ish and Italian.

Like doing a great deal of the writing for his series. Like acting in the series, which "is

YES, THERE ARE a few consolations. He knows, for example, that when he worked nightclubs, it was always permissable for parents to bring their children if they didn't mind the youngsters being up late at night. His material was never blue.

He believes he's on his way to being a millionaire and that might be "fun"

As a matter of fact, when you get right down to it, if he had it to do all over again, he'd do it exactly the same way.

AND SOMEDAY he may no longer look at himself as the family failure. For he's doing a considerable amount of serious poetry writing. If he can over-come being "self-conscious," he may attempt to get it published.

So far, however, he doesn't think he's written any better poetry than his first

fuli 60 min. at 5:30 p.m., ch. 4, from San Francisco.

CONVENTION PREVIEWS—Believing that conventions, like ballgames, cannot be appreciated without a pre-game scorecard, line-up and ground rules, CBS, NBC and ABC all will blue-print what to look for in the byplay of the conclave in San Francisco, evaluating the candidates and touring their own TV facilities on the Cow Palace floor and other key locations. Walter Cronkite anchors a 30-min, preview at 6:30 p.m. on ch. 2 with Huntley and Brinkley hosting a full hour at same time on with Huntley and Brinkley hosting a full hour at same time on ch. 4; while William H. ## There's More Camerainen than Convention Delegates

By MYRON FEINSILBER.

NEW YORK (UPI)-A total of 1,308 Republican delegates will gather in San Francisco lo decide on their candidate for the presidency. A total of 1,670 television people will gather to report that decision.

The, money spent by the networks for covering poli-tics in 1964, starting March 10 in New Hampshire, is conservatively estimated at 18 million dollars. This amounts to about 26 cents for every vote which will be cast on Nov. 3.

Twenty-four years ago, the National Broadcasting Co. (NBC) dispatched 20 people to Philadelphia to cover the Republicans by "radiovision" and estimated its audience at 50,000 "scattered all the way to remote parts of Pennsylvania and Massachusetts."

This year, NBC estimates 100 million will watch the Republicans. Other estimates put the figure at 70 millionroughly the same number as there will be voters on Nov. 3.

THE CONVENTION was planned for TV. Republican officials have vowed to elim-Inale favorite-son nomina-tions acclaiming "the man who" will be forevermore forgotten 10 minutes after his moment of glorious television exposure.

The platform, which ran 15,100 words last time, probably will not be read on the air this time, although what it says on civil rights is likely to be one of the convention's most disputed decisions,

A 10-foot platform has been built in the Cow Palace for the TV cameras, although it will block the view of hundreds of delegates.

And the convention schedule was arranged for the ma-jor events to occur during "prime" evening hours on the East Coast, which is three hours ahead of San Francisco. That means delegates will be taking their seats during the cocktail hour, after the peo-ple in the East have had din-

COVERING the conventions is a matter of extreme competition among the networks. Although all carry essentially the same show, all battle for the largest share of the audience.

They feel that if they can get you to watch their "an-chor" men for a 20-hour period in one week, you'll watch him while he gives the news for the next four years.

Elmer W. Lower, president of news for the American Broadcasting Co. (ABC), explains:

"It is generally agreed that during the convention period Americans who are interest-ed view television more intensively than at any other time. So this presents a chance to get the public better acquainted with our top people."

ABC learned the lesson painfully in 1960. It came out at the boltom of the ratings.

NBC, with its learn of Dayld

Brinkley and Chet Huntley, came out first. CBS was second.

The sponsors of news shows do not pay enough to cover their costs. But the networks feel they win prestige and image with news coverage. And there is some carry-over of audience — people who tune in one network for the news at 7 p.m. stay with that network when entertainment starts at 7:30 p.m_

slump, ABC has hired Dwight ' be able to select the picture D. Eisenhower as a commentator to help cover the Republican proceedings, The "New York Daily News" reported his "salary" to be $200,000.

Eisenhower will have the right to go on the air whenever he wants to and has agreed to appear at least twice a day from the St. Francis Hotel where he has a suite and where ABC has built a studio for him. He will discuss the convention with James C. Hagerty, vice president in charge of corporate relations for ABC and Eisenhower's press secretary when he was President, and with ABC editor William H. CBS, with 522 people working for it, will use a "city-wide radio paging system" to contact its own key people. Their vest-pocket receivers will carry instructions from convention headquarters.

ABC and NBC will operate teletype networks to inform their own people what's going on. One teletype will be installed in Eisenhower's suite,

The Europeans, who have always claimed to be appalled at the way Americans pick presidential candidates, will have a chance to watch the process. The Telstar and Relay satellites will carry the convention to western Europe.

NBC will use "black beam sound, a system for transmitting sound using invisible light" to give it two more audio channels to describe events on the convention floor. Each network is limited by Federal Communications Commission regulations to fourcaudio channels. With the леw system, NBC editors can choose which of six channels of sound will go on the air.

Likewise, CBS says it will

TV Personality Counts Heavily

By DICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)-With the Republican National Convention starting Monday, the television personalities of the . key political figures again will be closely scrutinized by viewers,

Proper advice about how to conduct oneself before the ever-présent, cameras, especially in the heat of pressure, is important to the politicians, as past events have shown. Even a knowledge of basic technical procedure can be of help.

Dwight Eisenhower's television adviser was Robert Montgomery, the veteran ac-tor. John Kennedy utilized the services of Franklin Schaffner, the director, in a similar capacity.

The politician's most powerful weapon on television is, of course, his personal quality, with which the cameras cannot compromise. But experience with the video medium, and the nature of a setting-as well as professional direction—can be large fac-tors for the man whose career is on the line.

KENNEDY was completely at home on television and used it to his great advantage. Eisenhower has appeared so frequently on the medium that he is now an old pro at it, but especially in the hands of interviewers with whom he seems to feel at ease. He will, in fact, be an on-the-air consultant for ABC-TV at the GOP convention, which, in view of the pressures on a former President at his party's nominating get-together, may well find him making news in addition to interpreting it. Televiewers will see Eisenhower address the convention on its second day.

Those who have carefully followed President Johnson's progress in getting comfortable on television can bear witness to the days when he was far less at ease than he is now before the cameras. The setting and professional advice, however, are not to be underestimated. For instance, Barry Goldwater, Richard Nixon and some of the Ken-nedys have rarely looked better than when they were informal guests of Jack Paar.

IN RECENT weeks, Gold-water and his chief announced opponent for the Republican presidential nomina-tion, William Scranton, have appeared on separate halfhour paid political broadcasts on CBS-TV. Both are attractive men on television. Like President Johnson in his early video days, both came off personably through their directors and/or advisers seemed to be less than expert in polished aid concerning camera instruction and edit-
